GEN. SCHMIDT IS DEFERRED

DISTINGUISHED SOLDIER'S NAME TAKEN OFF ACTIVE LIST YESTERDAY. For Two Years Was Omit' Adjutant-General—Won Medal for Gallantry in Civil War.

The retirement of Brig. Gen. Theodore Schmidt from the regular army marks the close of a stirring military career which covered a period of forty-four years. The general, who is now living at the Aberdeen, was retired yesterday, and he will now take his long-desired and much-needed rest. He has been in St. Paul ever since his return from the Philippines, and most of the time his health has been poor. The career of the general in the Civil war was a gallant one, and at Peleeb's farm, Oct. 1, 1861, he received a medal of honor for most distinguished gallantry. He helped a brother officer when it was a case of every man for himself. Some fifteen years ago the general was transferred from the line of the army to the adjutant general's department, and he was sent to the Philippines. He was Gen. Otis' adjutant general for two years. Gen. Schwan looks every inch a soldier. He has sharp blue eyes and hair and mustache of iron gray. It was only a few weeks ago that he was appointed brigadier general of the regular army.

BIG CLOCK IN DARKNESS.

City Hall Timepiece Went Out Without Giving Warning. For some unexplained reason the half of light that illuminates the big clock in the city hall tower failed in its race to the belated traveler and the denizens of Newspaper Row last night. Darkness, except in its intensity, held court, and the big clock tower stood as a silent witness to the mystery. The "glim" failed in its mission about 10 o'clock, and the faces that habitually looked out their old friend, were left in the dark. The messenger boys gathered in groups to discuss the cause, while the belated traveler, who had just returned from a night of travel, stopped in at the neighboring saloons and compared notes. It was a momentous question, this sudden departure of an old friend, and some given to caprices and whose habits were as steady as the day. What conclusion was reached is not known, but more than one of the messengers is reported to be inquiring about the fate of his old friend and to be pleased to know that he is still there, and that it was only until the orb of day peeped over the horizon that its familiar face once more beamed down upon those that have grown so used to its cause was a defective fuse which will be repaired today.

DEMOCRATIC COUNCILMEN MAY SELECT ONE AT A CONFERENCE.

There is a rift in the clouds, however, and the close of the month will probably see Mr. Markham's finish and his retirement to private life on the date named by the charter. March 15, instead of a caucus with its entangling alliances, a conference of the Democratic members has been proposed, allowing each member to name his preference, with the consequent discussion that cannot but result in the selection of a man acceptable to all.
