PAUL MARKS, WAITER, MEETS HORRIBLE DEATH IN BURLINGTON YARDS

Body Found Four Miles Away

Told Friends He Would Steal Ride to Chicago—Worked at Metropolitan Hotel—Parents Live in City.

Paul Marks, twenty years old, met a horrible death by falling from a Milwaukee train in the Burlington yards, near the high-hangery, shortly after seven o'clock last night.

While walking along the tracks in the yards, one of the brakemen at the Burlington transfer was started at seeing a head and neck protrude from a track that had been completely severed from the body, about an inch above the shoulders. The face was upturned, and the features scarcely marked, were those of a beardless boy. On turning the head over, a long yawning gash was found extending from the top of the head back below the right ear. Near the gash the head was found no sign of the body or any of the young man's wearing apparel. The police at Margaret street station were at once notified, and the patrol wagon was sent to the scene.

Beginning at the spot where the head was found a careful search was made, and for two miles down the track articles of clothing were found far apart as the length of the body, and one by one. About fifty feet from the head, a linen collar was found bearing the name Marks. Not far from the collar a black string tie was picked up, and still farther down the track lay a linen handkerchief, which bore no marks of identification. A shoe with the upper almost torn off was next found.

SEARCHED WITH AN ENGINE. Acting Coroner Whitcomb in the meantime had secured an engine and still further down the track was begun an excavation. Accompanied by Detective Munkholm, the coroner with several trainmen with lanterns walked slowly down the track, followed by the engine. Four miles from the head the body was found. Both limbs had been severed from above the knees. The body was frightfully mangled. The lungs and heart, having been torn from the breast, were found some distance from the body. At a point distant from each other all of the parts of the others members were found with the exception of one foot. On the body there was not a vestige of clothing and the remains were mangled to a pulp. The train was taken five miles farther down the track, but nothing more was discovered and the search at 1 o'clock was given up for the night.

How a young man met his fate is a matter of conjecture. It is thought that in endeavoring to beat his way he secreted himself on one of the trucks. In falling his clothing caught in the iron work of the train, and he was hung until the last piece of clothing which fastened him to the train had been torn off.

Fred Hartlage, 128 West Sixth street, whose name was on the ticket, was seen by a reporter for the Globe at the Metropolitan hotel. Last Sunday he left the Metropolitan. Yesterday afternoon he came to my room, and with him and several other friends I played cards for the greater part of the afternoon. He had a very large quantity of liquor, and for three days had been drinking quite heavily. He intended to leave for Chicago in the evening, and was going on the 6:30 Milwaukee train. He was very drunk, and he would eat his breakfast in Chicago in the morning. At about 4:30 o'clock he left his room, and I saw him in his note book, asking him to write to me. Shortly before six o'clock I met him at the Metropolitan. He said he had again told me that he would leave in the evening. That is the last that I saw of him.

There is a Milwaukee train that leaves at 6:55 o'clock, and it was probably this train that Mrs. White's head was found at about 7:20 o'clock, about fifteen minutes after this train passed the spot.

The mangled remains were removed to the county morgue. In speaking of the case Dr. Whitcomb said: "It is easily the worst that I ever saw."

MINNESOTA COMMISSIONERS DELIGHTED WITH LOCATION FOR THEIR BUILDING

GOOD DISPLAYS ASSURED LARGER BUILDING NEEDED

Generosity of Joseph Eisinger and Others Has Partly Overcome This Difficulty—Receipts and Expenses.

The annual report of the Children's Home society for the eleven months ending April 1, has been published and shows that the home cared for a total of 212 children in the period. Of this number 143 were received for the first time and forty-two were returned to the society. The number received during the eleven months was larger than in any similar period preceding since the home was started 1,661 children have been handled.

No fewer than sixty of the homeless children had lived less than twelve months in the institution, and a large proportion of the rest were less than two years of age.

In the course of the year the society was called upon to investigate a number of cases of reported cruelty and neglect, and many instances of the most heartless treatment were unearthed.

One of the most pressing needs of the society is for a larger home. The present building at 464 Fairview avenue is much too small, and many of the children have been kept elsewhere. By the generosity of Joseph Eisinger and others a receiving home has been partly met. He has donated an excellent site on Dooley avenue, and has interested others in the project to the extent that $5,000 has already been raised.

The total receipts during the year were $100,000 in one bequest, and $3,358.55 from other sources, making a total of $103,358.55. The current expenses were $102,626.74. This, divided by the 1,412 children which the society has either in charge or has under supervision in homes, amounts to a net average of 73¢ per capita. The present has been the first year in which the expenses have exceeded the income and the deficit was occasioned partly by the unusual number of new children, partly by the fact that the society has been scrupulous persons making unauthorized collections, and partly from the failure of the Western part of the state to remit the amount of the money which was expected to be received from those portions.

PLANS FOR NEW MARKET

ARRANGEMENTS MADE TO EXPEDITE ERECTION OF BUILDING.

As the result of the meeting of the joint committee on public property city property and markets, a resolution was introduced on Tuesday night, directing the city clerk to advertise bids for paying the Constans portion of the new market site. A special meeting of the board of aldermen will probably be called for the purpose of adopting a resolution so that the work of getting the new market in shape will not be delayed.

At the meeting yesterday afternoon, City Engineer Clausen submitted two sets of plans for the new market, one calling for the placing of the stalls on the Jackson street side, and the other on the Washington street side. The city engineer estimates that the total cost of construction at getting it in shape, will be about $50,000. The site is 300 feet long with a frontage of 22 feet on the north side, and 22 feet on Tenth street. The market, according to the plan, will contain four large driveways, 54 feet wide each, and will be covered by a roof supported by iron columns. On both sides of each of these sheds, there will be sidewalks 18 feet wide, which will be covered by the roof extending out 18 feet on each side.

A delegation of gardeners were present and recommended that the stalls be placed on the Tenth street side, which request was granted by the committee. The market will hold about 250 teams comfortably.

RESCUE WORK HER THEME

Colonel Catherine Higgins Speaks of Reclamation of Fallen Women.

Col. Catherine Higgins, New York, addressed a small audience at the Plymouth Congregational church last evening, her subject being rescue work among the fallen women of the city. Miss Higgins is superintendent of the rescue department of the army, and as it applies to the reclamation of fallen women, an interesting talker. Her lecture last evening was aided by a series of stereopticon pictures, which were shown by the aid of a projector.

A pretty girl was also secured by the rendition of several songs, illustrated by pictures. Col. Higgins, while in St. Paul, located a number of these girls, and this being a part of her work. About 2,000 fallen women are reclaimed annually in the United States, and this is the work of the rescue department of the army.

CRUSADERS GAVE BANQUET

Celebrate Nineteenth Anniversary of Order in St. Paul.

The nineteenth anniversary of the organization of the St. Paul Crusaders society was celebrated last night by the members and their friends at the hall in the Creth high school, Sixth and Fort streets. The program consisted of a banquet, a programme of toasts and music being carried out in connection. Nearly 200 guests were in the celebration.

The address of welcome was made by P. W. Waters, who also officiated as capacity of toastmaster. The following toasts were delivered: The Crusaders, "The Pleasures of a Sober Man," D. C. Connelly; "Temperance in the Present Day," J. J. McQuinn; "The Future," J. F. McGuire; "St. Paul Boys in the Temperance Cause," L. E. McQuinn; "Disappearance in the Schools," J. J. Regan; "The Union," A. W. Gunder; "Working of the Crusaders in General," Rev. J. J. Lawler.

INVEST IN OIL LANDS

St. Paul Company Secures Holdings at Beaumont, Texas.

Louis J. Wilde, Attorney F. H. Ewing, of Mortly & Ewing, and Attorney Gail, of Stillwater, left last night for Beaumont, Texas, to investigate the oil lands in the new oil fields. Mr. Wilde visited Beaumont a short time ago on his wedding tour, and while there he saw the Lucas square, which is two miles from Beaumont. This oil well or oil reservoir, known as the Lucas well, is twenty-four hours, which at the present market price is worth 65 cents a barrel, making $5,000 a well.

A New York syndicate recently gave $1,500,000 for the "Beatty well," which had a flow of 20,000 barrels a day. Mr. Wilde while there bought 200 acres, only a short distance from these keys and has organized a company to be known as the Wilde & Ewing oil company. A contract will at once be let for drilling a well.

GOOD WORK BEING DONE BY CHILDREN'S HOME SOCIETY

COMMISSIONERS TAKING STEPS TO SECURE NECESSARY INFORMATION

WRITE TO COUNTY AUDITORS

The Board Decides to Visit Mankato, Fairbault and Winona Soon and Other Cities Later.

The state tax commission is now deep in its labors and members have already become convinced that they will need all the time given to them for the work in hand. With a view to getting the information and suggestions possible they have addressed general communication to all county auditors and county attorneys. In part this communication reads:

"As you are aware, the legislature of this state has created a tax commission and has authorized it to prepare for the action of the legislature, either at a regular or special session, a revision of the tax laws of the state. The undersigned, constituting that commission, are aware that suggestions of great practical value can be made by county auditors and county attorneys who enjoy very exceptional opportunities for testing the efficiency of our system of tax legislation. The commission, therefore, invites their hearty co-operation in its labors and requests every county auditor and county attorney to carefully prepare and furnish it, as early a date as may be, statements and suggestions which are deemed desirable, whether in the nature of additions to or eliminations from the present law."

The communication then specifies the subjects upon which it wants suggestions. They are subjects of taxation, exemptions, listing of property, assessment (which is to be made by general and taxing districts (subdivided) town board of review, county board of equalization, tax levy, tax lists, collection of taxes, payment of taxes (subdivision), tax judgment, tax delinquency, and sale and refundment, sale of forfeited property, taxes paid by occupant, mortgage, lien on taxes and omitted property. The commission states that it will be glad to receive suggestions from any one in the state.

The commissioners have decided to visit four towns in the western part of the state for the purpose of meeting the tax officials and citizens generally. They will be in Mankato April 30, in Fairbault May 1, in Austin May 2, and in Winona May 3. In each of these towns the commissioners will visit all the towns in the state where information can be gathered.

EPIDEMIC OF DREAD DISEASE AMONG CANINES IN ST. PAUL

For fifteen years the state board of health has reported occasional cases of rabies from different parts of the state, and each year's report has shown a gradual increase in the number of cases. Rabies has been given by veterinarians and physicians who have made a careful study of the fatal disease, yet from the start it has been regarded lightly, and in many instances it has been neglected. Health authorities of state and municipal palities are confronted by a proposition that is at least grave. In St. Paul in the past week at least twelve dogs and several horses have been bitten by dogs that undoubtedly suffered from rabies. These are known cases, and doubtless there are others that are unknown. St. Paul is not alone in this. The same conditions exist throughout the state. When asked what steps would be taken to stamp out the plague in this city, Dr. Chas. H. Ochs, chief of the health department, has called to his attention, and no orders had yet been issued from the health department.

Of rabies there are two types—furious and paralytic. The symptoms of both forms are the same. The dog evinces a complete change of behavior. A docile or quiet dog becomes nervous, a mor
