DEAL'S AGGREGATION LOSES FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME TO THE SAINTS

WADSWORTH IS BUMPED HARD

Huggins, Wilson and Dillard Hit for Four Sacks, and Harry Cook Held the Visitors Safe.

Again, five straight, poor, poor Mr. Deal, the magnate did not appear on the bench when his men yesterday, but occupied a nice, hard seat far up in the left-hand corner of the grand stand. He could afford a seat in the grand stand because yesterday's game was one of those transferred from Minneapolis, and he temporarily owned the grand stand. The "official scorer" was there, too, and yesterday the "S" has been the proud possessor of a seat on the Minneapolis bench. Yesterday he contented himself with a seat in the stand right up close to Magnate Deal. The "S" and the magnate are said to be very "bally," but the sound of their voices failed to break any large holes in the atmosphere yesterday. Cook had his second try at the Millers, and found them even an easier proposition than on the first day, when he assisted in putting them on the path that leads down to the right hole. Harry pitched a nice, easy ball all through the game. His arm has not as yet entirely recovered from a little touch of rheumatism acquired out West, and he did not care to exert himself. He did not have to. Even with the slow ball, the best the Millers could do was four scattering hits and three tall ones, the latter all due to fielding errors.

In the meantime the Red Caps were doing their old, familiar stunt. The only difference was that Wadsworth was at the throwing end of the ball. The manager deserted his place in the sun field to have a try at the Saints. Ordinarily, "Wad" is in the dugout, but in these days all pitchers look alike to the Red Caps. It is immaterial who is in the box for the opponents, the only thing really necessary is that they have some one there to throw up the ball. Wadsworth did not start out well. Shannon, the first man up, hit the leather for a three-bagger. This hit the manager some inkling of what was coming to him, and it made him a bit nervous. Following the hit he gave two free passes, and then he pitched a single. It looked like a whole lot of free, but over anxiety on the base left the Saints down with but a single tally.

For the next two innings Wadsworth did right well, but after that it was only a case of how many. The Saints did not let an inning go by after the third without sending a hit more or less across the plate. Everybody but Brad took a walk at the ball. They came so easy that Huggins and Wilson joined Dillard in wanting the pitcher over. McDowell's head in center for home runs, which he more properly to say that Dillard joined the other two, for their game first. The fact that they got them made Pat sore. He knew that if they could, he could, and so he did.

Holly made his appearance in left field, and played a great game of ball in spite of the fact that he is a new pitcher, and through him that let in two runs. The entire team played fast ball, and the work of the infield was simply great. Huggins' two errors were the only ones in some of the most sensational kinds of stops and throws.

DIAMOND DUST. The final game with the Millers will be played at Lexington today. Play will be called at 3:30 o'clock. Cogan will pitch.

The Millers are simply outclassed. Yesterday's win put an everlasting cinch on that statement. The ones now stands 11 to 6 in favor of St. Paul. Cogan pitches his last game for St. Paul this season. He has been a business affair at home, and he has pitched a grand ball. He has pitched great ball for the Saints, and has been one of the hardest workers for the success of the team. He is deserving of all that he has given him. What do you think of Huggins? The team in batting yesterday with a homer and two singles. "Old Bill" Wilson was the hero, hitting a home run, a two-sacker and a four-sacker. These two men are entitled to a large chunk of the credit for winning the five straight games from Minneapolis.

Cook pitched his eighth game yesterday. He has lost but one game since the team, and that one was the first that he played. Seven straight wins is a record that would make some of the stars of the big leagues take off their caps.
