FOUR PANHANDLE TRAINMEN ARE KILLED IN FREIGHT COLLISION

FLAGMAN BURNED TO DEATH

Victims Asleep in Caboose When Fast Flying Engine Crashed Into Standing Train and Smashed Cars to Kindling Wood.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., Oct. 6.—Four Panhandle trainmen met death near Onward, fourteen miles southwest of here, today, in a recent collision of freight trains, the bodies of three being taken out badly mutilated, and the fourth being almost entirely consumed by the wrecking crew could subside the flames sufficiently to permit work in that portion of the debris. The dead:

BIG LOSS BY WRECK AND FIRE

During the night Conductor Weaver, in charge of the second section of train No. 79 en route to Hartford City, and who were en route to this city to spend Sunday with their families. They were all asleep when the train stopped near Onward to make up steam. The flagman was sent out to watch the train section from the east, and no danger was thought of until the train loomed up too close for any to escape, except Weaver, who jumped and got off unharmed.

KIDNAP WOMAN

PHILADELPHIA NEWSPAPER MEN TRY TO DUPLICATE PAT CROWE'S STUNT

HELD PRISONER FOUR DAYS

The Victim is Stripped of Her Jewels and Forced to Sign Checks for Her Money

CULPRITS ARE UNDER ARREST

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Charged with kidnaping a woman and holding her a prisoner for four days, robbing her of jewels worth more than $2,000 and compelling her to sign bank checks for sums of money, is the story which the police unfolded here today when they announced the arrest of a newspaper reporter, a stenographer on another newspaper, a stenographer on a morning newspaper, and a barber, whom the police charge with complicity in the crime.

The men now locked up are Howard St. Clair, Oscar Dunlap, a barber employed in one of the most prominent shops in the city. The victim is Mrs. Mabel Goodrich, the proprietor of an establishment on North Tenth street. The four men were arrested last night and will be given a hearing on Monday.

Last Monday Mrs. Goodrich went to police headquarters and told her story of kidnaping and robbery so daring that the police at first doubted its truth. She said that for some time past a young man with a mustache, dressed as a reporter, Henry Wallace, called on her at her home and asked her to sign a check for $100. She refused to do so, and he threatened to expose her to the other women in the place. She accepted and the next day she went out with him in a carriage with a pair of richly caparisoned horses and a coachman in the box wearing stylish livery.

BLINDFOLDED AND GAGGED.

At a lonely place in Fairmount park the carriage was stopped by a man who, she said, represented himself as D. Clarence Knott, editor of the Philadelphia Record and other society of this city. This man told her he had a warrant for her arrest on the charge of keeping a disreputable house, and that if she would be freed up, he was invited into a carriage and the next moment she was gagged and blindfolded. She was driven somewhere she did not know where, but she noticed from the corner of the handkerchief over her eye that the men paid toll at two toll gates and took in a gateway where a heavily laden truck was standing. She was kept in the carriage from Wednesday until Friday night without anything to eat or drink, and was then driven to another house, where she was stripped of her jewelry, which she had deposited, and compelled to sign checks on the Third National bank, where she had her money deposited. They made her sign for more than $2,000, and she was compelled her to promise to make up the deficiency when she was released. One of the men, she says, then took her on a tour of the city, and she saw the Tenth and Poplar streets, a mile from her home.

DETECTIVES GET CLEW.

With other information the woman gave them, the detectives began to work out what they believed to be a fairly safe plan. They located the man who led them to a fire engine house in Fort Wayne, fifteen miles from this city. The fire company is a volunteer organization, and the man who led them to the engine house was a volunteer. The nearest house was occupied by a family named Findlay, and there the police learned that one of the men, Knott, had been in the house home but little during the past two weeks. Getting a description of him, the police returned to this city and found the young man, who is only twenty-one years of age, in the office where he is employed. He was charged with the crime and broke down and implicated three other men. Findlay said that he had impersonated the coachman; that Sloan, the unemployed reporter, acted the part of Attorney Gibbons; that the barber played the part of the rich Germantown resident, and that Wallace, the society editor, had rented a house in Germantown where Mrs. Goodrich was to have been held captive. He told substantially the same story as was related by the woman. He said that they kept her confined in the fire house and then took her to a house at No. 2556 North Tenth street, where Sloan was arrested yesterday, and the plan to keep her in the Wallace house in Germantown was abandoned in favor of the Sloan house. Sloan, the police said, conceived the whole plot, and it was he who kept her in the Wallace house in Germantown.
