Prompt Response to Treasurer's

Call for State's Funds.

State Treasurer Julius H. Block recently issued a call upon all of the depositories outside of the Twin Cities for the state funds deposited with them. Although the time limit named was Oct. 25, $200,000 of this money, which in all amounts to about $375,000, had been received by the treasurer yesterday afternoon. This prompt response to the call, Mr. Block says, is a convincing proof or the healthy financial conditions of the banks of this state.

Judge Jaggard yesterday dismissed the suit for a divorce brought by Lydia Cobb against Hiram Cobb. Mrs. Cahffe, who is now Mrs. Cobb, was divorced by her husband in Wisconsin, but the attorneys held that the divorce was not legal by reason of certain delinquencies in serving the complaint. Taking this for a basis, it was argued that the marriage between Mrs. and Mr. Cobb was invalid, and Judge Jaggard sustained the arguments and dismissed the case on the motion of the plaintiff's counsel.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES FOR ALLEGED DEFAMATION OF CHARACTER

RESULT OF NEIGHBORHOOD ROW

Evidence of Such a Character That Court Requests Women to Withdraw - Other Court News.

Judge Lewis and jury, and a court room full of curiosity seekers, were en-gaged yesterday in hearing the evidence in a suit for $5,000 damages for alleged defamation of character, growing out of a neighborhood row.

Martha Lehman is the plaintiff in the case and is seeking to recover the above amount from her next door neighbor on Rondo street, Peter Galles, a railroad that Judge Lewis ordered the court room cleared of minors, and suggested to the women who are called as witnesses, that they retire to the jury room. These or-ders did not have the effect of driving away the large number of women who were gathered to hear the sult, how-

If Mrs. Lehman's charges are true as to what Galles said to her, her character must certainly have suffered somewhat with anyone who heard the lively conversation. On the other hand, if the defend-ant's statements are to be believed the plaintiff has been guilty of using language unfit for publication, and has ap-plied several unmentionable names to the defendant. A son of Galles, who was called as a witness in the case, said to the Globe: "She is suing my father for saving things about her that she said about him, and lots of us heard her, too," and that is about the way the case stands, and the jury will evidently have plenty of testimony to consider in decid-ing whether or not Mrs. Lehman's charcter was defamed

Emil G. Gustafson, a young man who is a barber, living at present in Minneapolis, stated that upon his own knowledge Mr. Galles was "a perfect gentleman." Gustafson objected somewhat to a number of queries put by the plaintiff's atterney, and replied to more than one attorney's business.

Judge Lewis admonished the witness to confine himself to yes or no, and to answer questions that were proper. The barber knew Galles at St. James, and had met him on the street and in a barber shop, but refused to say where else and left the stand after a futile attempt to get something tangible out of him. Matilda Heising, who admitted that she lived in the neighborhood, but scornfully answered that she had no acquaintance Since the idea of an exhibition of manufactured products in St. Paul was originated by the Northwestern Manufacturer's association, interest in the project has increased steadily, until considerable enthusiasm has been aroused. It is felt that this will be by all odds the greatest exhibition of the kind ever held in the Northwest. The assistance of the ladies' auxiliary is proven invaluable, and the enthusiasm displayed by that body presages success. The ladies' executive and chairmen of committees will hold a meeting this morning at 10:30 in the parlors of the Aberdeen hotel, Mrs. Ansel Oppenheim presiding. The executive and chairmen of committees are: Mesdames Maurice Auerbach, C. A. Severance, Hiram F. Stevens, J. B. Hoxie, J. W. Bishop, E. A. Jaggard, A. J. Stone, J. H. Biddleman, J. A. Swenson, C. J. Conville, Henry Schurmeier, J. B. Johnson, John Ames Gardner S. Moore, A. H. Lindeke, James Morrow, J. P. Adamson, Myron Brown, Dennis Follett, F. B. Doran, Secretaries—Mrs. A. P. Shurick and Miss Mary Stees. with the plaintiff and that she did not know anyone who knew her, was on the stand when an adjournment was taken.

Officers Oppose.

It is understood that certain army officers of high rank and influence will oppose the selection of Fort Snelling as one of the four chief military stations of the country, on the grounds that the winters here are altogether too severe for a great many of the soldiers and officers, who have spent nearly all their lives in the South. All the other accommodations, however, such as transportation facilities, etc., are considered excellent, and Fort Snelling stands a good chance of being made one of the four stations. Gen. Miles was in favor of making it such when he was here last month. Mrs. Brandt Sues Trustees of Kittson Residence.

She alleges that during the first winter she lived in the house the mercury went down inside to a degree of coldness equal to that outside. The second winter the defendant put in a second heating apparatus which was not much better, and this year she proposes to have heat or some of the company's money. She states that the defendant agreed to put in a suitable plant, and that she was to pay $125 a month rent. She claims to have lived up to her part of the contract, and as the defendants have failed to fulfill theirs, she wants damages.

BOTH SIDES BITTER PRODUCE VERY HIGH RAID ON CAMBLERS

MARKED INCREASE IN THE PRICES OF MANY STAPLE M ARTICLES

30 PER CENT ABOVE LAST YEAR

Poor Crops in Many Sections of the Country Cause Advance in Prices of Apples, Eggs and Other Necessities.

Prices for produce are considerably higher this year than they have been for a long time. The main cause of this general advance in prices is the poor crops many sections of the country. e section has suffered a complete failure, yet many localities have so suffered from the poor crops that they are compelled to go into the market to purchase things for home consumption which they have placed on the market in other years. The advance in prices over last year ranges from 10 to 30 per cent.

Apples are a failure in many sections of the country this year. Especially is this true in the New England states and in all the Northern states. The Northern apple crop this year, taken as a whole, is a failure. New York and Michigan are both in the market to purchase apples for their own consumption, while last year they placed thousands of barrels on the market. While the crop in the North has been poor, the South has made up for the shortage, and Southern Missouri and Arkansas have a large supply. But the South cannot keep the prices from advancing, and apples that last year sold for $2.50 per barrel this year find a ready market at $3.50. There is no prospect of a decrease in prices on apples before another crop is harvested, and those who buy will be compelled to pay high prices raised by the farmer, and which are sub-ject to climatic conditions, is there a marked increase in price, but the increase seems to be general in all lines of prod-uce. Eggs are higher than they have been for years, and never has the storage upply been opened so early in the seaon as has been the case this year. Seva number of queries put by the plaintiff's atterney, and replied to more than one question by expressing a doubt as to whether his movements were any of the attorney's business. throughout the summer months caused an unusual demand for live poultry, and this in turn caused large numbers of hens to be sold for market instead of being kept for laying purposes. Whether this is true or not is of little moment. It reains a fact that prices for eggs are high for this season of the year, and the indi-cations are for still further advances. The California fruit which is on the market is also high, lemons and oranges having materially advanced in the last few days. The first of the California walnuts will be on the market this morning, a carload having just arrived. They will be sold for more money than could have been secured for them at this time last year.

While prices are high for all kinds of produce, yet the quality of that which is on the market is fully up to the standard of previous years, and there is no danger of a shortage. The conditions that are new in existence have been in effect all summer, and yet there has not been a time when any of the local wholesale men were compelled to back order their Arthur Smith, the twelve-year-old son of Mrs. Scott Mars, of Red Rock, endangered the life of Mrs. Franklin C. Ford, at that place, Monday, by the careless use of firearms. He was practicing with a small rifle, and used a pumpkin for a target. The pumpkin, however, did not stop the bullet, which sped on its way, and went through the dining room window of the Ford residence. Luckily no one was in the path of the bullet.

MINNEAPOLIS POLICE DESCEND ON JAMES GARRITY'S PLACE

WOMAN MADE THE COMPLAINT

Mrs. Davidson Claimed Her Boy Had Lost His Money in the Institution, and Secured

Armed with warrants issued at the instance of Mrs. Clara A. Davidson, residing at 533 Tenth avenue south, Min-neapolis, a detail of Mayor Ames' police late yesterday afternoon raided the gambling rooms of James Garrity, well-known in the Twin Cities, over Tom Lally's saloon, at 308 Nicollet avenue.

The officers found in the room two roulette wheels, two faro bank tables and three poker tables. William Garrity, a brother of one of the proprietors, and

James Ford, the colored porter, were the only persons in the place, and they were taken with the patrol wagon load of paraphernalia to the central station.

While the officers were holding a consultation with the proprietors of the place, someone lugged off the head and spindles of the roulette wheels, the casekeeper of the faro tables and other valuable pieces of gambling furniture. This se enraged Detective Schulta, when he saw that the police had been outwitted, that he ordered the colored porter, Ford, locked up on the novel charge of inter-fering with an officer while in the discharge of his duties. The raid occurred just at a busy hour in the evening, when Nicollet avenue travel is the heaviest. The street for a block was a congested mass of humanity. The patrol wagon made three round trips and carted away in the neighborhood of $1,500 worth of gambling furniture.

The raid was caused by Mrs. Davidson, who alleges that her son, who is an elevator operator at the Eastman block, had been frequenting the place and had lost money there. A few days ago she called up one of the proprietors of the gambling house and asked for an interview with him at her home. This was granted, and then she made a verbal complaint to him. The later confessed ignorance of the boy's alleged presence at the place at the time, but told the mother of the boy that if she would show him her son he would guarantee that if in the past he had fre-quented the place, he would not again be admitted. The proprietor of the place also agreed to pay back any reasonable claim the woman might make, but she refused both propositions. The issuance of the complaints yesterday was the first intimation that was given that Mrs. Davidson bore any further ill-will against the gamblers.

DR. WRIGHT GIVES INTERESTING LECTURE ON GLORIES OF EGYPT

Customs and Costumes of Land of the Lotus Graphically Pictured by One Who Knows Them Well.

There is one exception to the general run of high prices this year. That exception is sweet potatoes. They have sold ever since they came on the market for less than were the current prices last year. The reason for this condition lies in the fact that they are a Southern good this year. They were advanced 50 cents a barrel yesterday, and still further advances are in sight.

RECRUITS FOR THE NAVY pointed out as native customs and native costumes.

Excellent pictures, made from photographs taken by Dr. Wright himself during his frequent trips to Egypt, enlivened the lec-ture and made the journey doubly realis-The tourists were not allowed to linger long at Port Said. They paused for some time at Cairo, however, long enough to admire some of the mosques the bazars and bits of old Cairo. Dr. Wright stated that if ever Cairo were destroyed. Egyptology would examine with interest the stones imbedded in the public buildings, for many of these are known to contain inscriptions that would probably throw light on ancient Egyptian history. A picture was shown of the Mosque of Mohammed and views of the interior, among them the famous prayer niche was also given. The university mosque, with a picture of the students at work, was interesting because of its complete contrast to a modern institution of learning. The Koptics, Dr. Wright stated, were the most progressive people of Egypt. There are about 250,000 of these people to be found in the "land of the lotus." and they represent the highest type of people there. A picture was shown of the Koptic cathedral. The Palace hotel in Cairo was presented as a specimen of Sara-Egyptian architecture. The house of the French ambassador was shown. Dr. Wright stated that the home of the American consul, like the homes of other American consuls and ambassadors in other parts of the world, was too shabby to be pictured. The papyrus plant was shown and a bit of its history was given. The lecturer stated that this plant no longer grows in Egypt, but is cultivated in ancient Syracuse. It is used chiefly to repair the ancient papyrus in mu-seums and libraries. Dr. Wright said that he had been presented with a roll of this apapyrus and found that it did not compare with the ancient papyrus. The legend of the poetic blue loture was told, and a picture of the flower favored of Cleopatra shown. The Bed ouins of the desert, the Nubians, camels and the alligators were pointed out to the travelers, and the lecture closed with a pretty "Sunset on the Nile" picture.
