GOPHERS SIGNALLY TRIUMPH OVER THE FAST INDIAN PLAYERS

BOTH TEAMS PLAYED FIERCELY

On a Field of Ice and Snow Minnesota Rolls Up Five Goals Against Worthy Antagonists.

Minnesota 28 Huskell Indians 0

The Minnesota football team got busy yesterday with the good fall out of Dr. Williams' anxiety, and incidentally depleted the treasury of the Huskell Indian school. The husky Gophers proved themselves better than the fast Brother Red Water and his tribe of red men, and located the north pole five times, while the Indians got no farther north than Franz Josef land.

Good luck attended the Gophers, and although there was every opportunity for a fluke of some kind, fortunately none happened, and the Minnesota aggression will probably go to Wisconsin with an unbroken line.

It was the most exciting game played in Minneapolis this season, and from start to finish it was fast as a furious wind. The crowd manifested its displeasure frequently at this feature. The referee had to occasionally consult the rule book. While he gave Minnesota the worst of several things, he more than evened up on the inoffensive Indians.

There was considerable speculation on the part of the audience as to what Mueller's playing meant. While Huskell, not being a member of the big nine conference, could not protest him, it looked rather queer that Williams would play a man who was to be barred from the Wisconsin game rather than try out some new men for the position in view of the fact that the all important contest is less than two weeks away. It was rumored that Mueller was to be allowed to play this season out. It was also said that Wisconsin would not protest Mueller if Minnesota would not protest Schriber. It is not at all probable, however, that such an agreement would be made, and if Mueller is to play there is a better reason for that than that.

When the Minnesota officials took a look at Northern field yesterday morning they regretted that they had not played the game on Saturday. The field was one mass of ice, and looked more like a skating rink than a football field. It was entirely out of the question to play on the field, and after arguing in vain with the Huskell people to declare the game off altogether, the management decided to play out on the open campus. It was well along toward starting time when they came to this decision, and it was after 3 o'clock before they had the goal posts up, and the yard lines marked off. The game represented a big loss to the Minnesota management for even the most patriotic could hardly be persuaded to put up their own for a ticket when it was possible to see the game for nothing. About 4,000 people shivered through the two hours' play, and there were even those who were not satisfied to have any monopoly on Red Water.

The campus was covered with snow and ice, but was softer than the field, by about one inch in a hundred. The campus was so slippery that neither team could do its best on defensive or offensive play. Both teams were pushed all over the field. Each team kept a blanket brigade handy, and whenever time was called the blanket brigade rushed out and covered up the heroes of the battle.

The Indians smashed up the varsity defense more than any other team that has played here. The condition of the field was responsible for many of the gains made by both sides, but the fact remains that the Indians made their distance on downs five times oftener than did Iowa.

They displayed remarkable endurance and vitality for so light a lot of men. They came on Hoy playing smiling and eager to go at it again. On five different occasions when Minnesota was within five yards of the goal the red men pushed and secured the ball. The pushing character of the game was played was their activity. Several times when one of them fumbled the ball another one would get it before a Minnesota man could fall on it.

The Minnesota team played an exceptionally good game considering all the disadvantages of the day. Their interference was hardly so good as that of the Indians, but they bucked and end work was splendid.

Strathern was in the game he put up the real article.

Known as far the better of the punters, he twice the Minnesota players blocked the Indians' attempt to kick and got the ball.

One of the pleasing features of the game was the fine spirit displayed by the visitors. They were the best natured antagonists Minnesota has run against. They took their medicine with the best grace possible. They came out of every play smiling good-naturedly, and quite took the crowd by their sportsmanlike attitude throughout.

The unpleasant feature of the game was the incompetent refereeing. The crowd manifested its displeasure frequently at this feature. The referee had to occasionally consult the rule book. While he gave Minnesota the worst of several things, he more than evened up on the inoffensive Indians.

IS NOT A FULL BLOOD

FATHER OF LEFT END ROGERS CORRECTS AN ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION

ROGERS SR. A GENUINE ROOTER

Attended Yesterday's Game—Says Six More Boys With Keen Name on Ski-U-Mah's Feet.

An interested spectator at yesterday's football game was W. A. Rogers, of Aitkin, Minn., who is the father of Ed Rogers, Minnesota's famous left end.

Mr. Rogers is engaged in the lumber business at Aitkin, and, contrary to the general opinion, he is not an Indian at all, but is a mixture of Scotch, English and Irish.

He is an enthusiastic rooter, however, and was better than his money in what might be termed a reckless manner, that Huskell would not score.

When asked as to how much Indian blood coursed through Ed's veins, he replied that he had a quarter blood, for you can figure out for yourself whether he is a full-blooded Indian or not.

He said: "We have ten children, six boys and four girls—and the boys eventually will all take a course in the University of Minnesota. At the present time I have three boys playing football, two, Charles and Arthur, playing on the Aitkin high school team, and Ed at the university, and for years to come the team that represents Minnesota on the gridiron will have a Rogers in the game, provided he can make good."

"Princeton has had Poes for half a century, and why would not Rogers be a good name to conjure with in the West?"

Mr. Rogers said the baby of the family, a four-year-old tot, is captain of a kindergarten team, and plays the game like a veteran.

This training from infancy should make him a dangerous opponent when he reaches his majority.

FORBES DEFEATS ATTEL

Victor Barely Escaped Defeat in Second, but Rallied.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—Harry Forbes, of Chicago, received the decision tonight after a hotly contested boxing fixture with Attel.

The bout was one of the best seen here in a number of years. Forbes was shifted from one principal to the other throughout, and it was only Forbes' superior strength that finally brought him victory in the closing stages.

Attel had Forbes all but out in the second round, forcing the referee to stop the fight.

MINNESOTA HARD PRESSED.

Things looked dark for Minnesota, and an off-side play by the home team carried the ball ten yards toward the "sacred goal." Bent fumbled, but Huskell retained the ball on Minnesota's twenty-yard line. Minnesota's "stonewall" seemed to be unable to withstand the onslaughts of the sturdy redskins, and inch by inch they worked their way toward their opponents' goal; but time was called, and the first-half of the game was over.

SECOND HALF.

The second half opened with no changes in the line-up of either team. Baine kicked off to Doble, who was downed on the thirty-five-yard line. Knowlton punted to the center of the field. Huskell played a bucking game, but was soon compelled to kick to Doble on Minnesota's twenty-five-yard line. Minnesota left guard the Indians were enabled to plant the ball on Minnesota's forty-yard line.

RESULTS AT LAKESIDE.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Today's racing at Lakeside was of an ordinary character. Kentucky, the even-money favorite in the second race, because of his last performance, when he ran six furlongs in 1:13 3/4, failed to run inside the money today. If you dare taking the race, in warning up for this race, Mango, a 100 to 1 shot, ran away two miles and all bets were ordered returned.
