FULLERTON WASTRICKED

CLEVERLY OUTWITTED BY SHARP TELEGRAPH OPERATOR.

Owing in part to an accident, and in part to the fact that he had a knowledge of telegraphy, a telegraph operator of this city was enabled to neatly outwit Executive Agent Fullerton, of the state telegrapher had been up the country on shooting trip, and when about to start for home he had a fine bag of game which he desired to bring with him packed in his trunk for that purpose. He checked the trunk for St. Paul, and having nearly a half hour to wait for his train was lounging in the station when his trained ear caught the ticks of a message which the telegraph operator at that point was sending to this city. The message read: "Sam Fullerton, game warden, St. Paul. Examine trunk N. P. train from B.——touleht Check No. train from B—— tonight. Check No $4563." He quickly discovered that the trunk referred to was his own, and with out delay he hit upon a plan to beat the game authorities. Securing a cheap trunk which he filled with rubbish to give it weight, he had that also checked to St. Paul, and then transferred the baggare checks.

When the train arrived at this city the perator had the trunk containing the ame sent to his home without interfernce from any source, and then stood by a safe distance, while Mr. Fullerton eized the dummy trunk and examined a contents.

This is another of the tangible evidences of Brockton's prosperity. A new factory, starting upon an output of 100 dozen shoes per day, would be considered a big addition to the city's list of industries, and it is therefore all the more pleasing to those interested in the city's welfare to know this additional business is to come through a concern with an established reputation and with reason-able surety of being able to keep the heip constantly employed.

These additions will increase the pay

In support of its passage President Boardman and B. H. Schriber, of the Commercial club, spoke at length. Mr. Scriber ably outlined the necessity of competition in the lighting field, on the ground that it was the life of every business. Ald. Knauft raised his voice in protest against the grant on the ground that the ordinance did not exact a heavier consideration for the privilege. He contended that purities could be found who would willingly give $1,000,000 for such a concession. As a minor objection, Ald, Schiffmann said the ordinance did not require the company to go beyond the business and main residence district in case their service was wanted by intending patrons. Dr. Schiffmann and Ald. Knauft, however, were finally appeased by the company through Attorney Michaels agreeing to accept amendments embodying their views. These were to the effect that a greater gross earnings tax shall prevail, if ever exacted of any other company, and that the company shall extend its service as far as St. Anthony hill if requested to do so.

Ald. Dobner spoke at length in favor of the passage, and on his motion the acceptance of all the amendments was approved. BISHOP EDSALL IS INSTALLED AS BISHOP OF MINNE-SOTA

CEREMONY WAS ELABORATE

Distinguished Assemblage of Episcopal Ministers Assists in Services-Eloquent Sermon by Bishop Morrison.

The ceremony of installing Bishop Edzsall into the bishopric of the diocese of Minnesota was celebrated at Christ's church yesterday at 11 o'clock. The ceremony was elaborate and impressive, and was attended by the leading churchmen of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Ne-braska. There has seldom been such a distinguished assemblage of Episcopal ministers even in the Twin Cities. The most imposing part of the entire ceremony was the procession of minis-ters there being pearly lifty ministers. ters, there being nearly fifty ministers in the procession. The assemblage of min-isters, attired in full canonical robes, was a scene that was beautiful, as well as impressive. The choristers entered singing the processional hyma, and were preceded by the crossbearer. The young-er members of the clergy, to the number er members of the clergy, to the number of twenty-four, followed these and formed a double line, extending nearly the entire length of the nave. Between this double line the bishops marched, followed by the other members of the clergy. The younger clergymen then formed in procession and marched to the raised procession and marched to the raised them on either side of the charcel

He is tall and of fine physical build and will make and of fine physical build and will make an imposing appearance in the full ca-nonical robes of a bishop.

The installation ceremony was in itself quite simple, being but an adaptation of

"Yes, I know him," said the friend.

"He is a respectable citizen. I really don't know just how it started. I saw him get on the car and with his usual modest manner he picked a corner near the door. Then I saw a small boy get on and drop a pile of bundles down on that long side seat about three feet from my friend."

"When the car stopped again a man the ceremony for the inscallation of a minister. Bishop Morrison of Duluth, acted as institutor. Rev. George H. Davis, D. D., of Mankato, president of the standing committee, welcomed the new bishop, on behalf of the diocese, as the spiritual ruler and guide of the diocese. Bishop Edsall responded in the words of "When the car stopped again, a man and a woman climbed into it. I say man and woman because the man got on first. The woman sat down on the side seat. She sat near the bundles. There was a plenty of room for the man on the other side of the woman, but he evidently overlooked this vacant space.

"He saw the bundles all right and then he sized up my meek-flocking friend. A word would have explained it all, but the

the ceremonial form.

After the installation Bishop Morrison. of Iowa, delivered an eloquent address. He spoke of the dangers that he before the church in the West. He said that there were fewer Episcopalians in the West in proportion to the population than there were twenty years ago. The cause of this he thought to be a storm of false spiritualism which has swept over the land in the last few years. He urged the clergy present to teach the true spirituality. He thinks that ceremony annot overcome this wave, but that it cannot overcome this wave, but that it will require a great deal of intellectual training. "You cannot deceive modern man," said Bishop Morrison, "He will have the truth."

"I believe that the Episcopal church is less strong today in the West, relative-ly with the population, than it was twenty-five or thirty years ago. To blink this fact is weakness, but to look it squarely in the face is strength."

"You are not going to make men and women believe that heaven and earth are one at the altar by any form or careone at the attar by any lord of ever-monial, and not until they can see an ordained priest go to the altar in ordi-nary dress and still feel the majesty of the office can they have learned the les-son of an intellectual and a spiritual religion, rather than a ceremonial.

200 partook of the hospitality provided. After luncheon was served the visitors again gathered in the church to listen to an able and entertaining address on the subject of "Missions" by the Rev. Williams, bishop coadjutor of Nebraska.

PROMISE OF INTERESTING MEET-ING OF BOARD OF EDU-CATION TONIGHT

FIRST WARD MATTER AGAIN

Intimated That Roard Will Disauprove Action of Prof. Farnsworth in Openly Opposing Its Policies.

A regular meeting of the board of school inspectors will occur this even-ing at 7:30, and it is intimated that there will be interesting developments in connection with the First ward situation, which has insistently demanded at tention from the board in one way or another for some months past.

It is predicted that the board will take steps at this meeting to discipline Prof. S. A. Farnsworth, superintendent of the Cleveland school, for what is considered undue activity on his part in attempted contravention of the purpose of the

The friction, if it may be so termed, between the board and the residents of the First ward, dates back to the pro-posed discontinuance of the high school department of the Cleveland school, some time before the opening of the schools for the fall term. Meetings protesting against the plan announced by the board were held in the First ward at that time and the local feeling ran very high. At one or more of these meetings Prof. Farnsworth spoke in strong objection to the removal of the Cleveland high school and, by inference at least in condemnation of the judgment of the board.
While it was conceded by the board that Prof. Farnsworth could not be blamed for being interested in the matter, some of the members suggested that as an employe of the board his interest should be passive rather than active and demonstrative.

The idea of discontinuing the Cleveland high school was abandoned, but the school board has once more aroused the residents of the First ward to activity by its plans for providing additional ac-commodations, by adding to the Grant and Harrison buildings rather than After the ceremonies of the forenoon were over the visitors were treated to a special meeting a committee from the parish house, and fully First ward called upon the board and urged the erection of a new building.

The dissatisfaction of the First ward residents on this score has been princi-residents on this score has been principally directed towards Inspector Walt, who lives in that portion of the city, and who recommended to the board to build additions to the Grant and Harrison schools rather than a new building. So strong has this feeling become that recently a committee waited upon Mayor Smith to urge that Mr. Wait be not reappointed at the expiration of his term in March next. It is stated that in this movement also Prof. Farnsworth has taken an active, if not prominent, part.

It is reported that resolutions express ing disapproval on the part of the board as to the attitude of Prof. Farnsworth in these matters have been prepared and will be introduced at the meeting of this

MINNESOTA IS HICHEST

SHOWS GREATEST PERCENTAGE OF INCREASE OF WAGES.

According to statistics prepared by the department of agriculture, there is a greater number of persons engaged in some form of farm work than in any other branch of labor. In 1899, out of 22,735,661 persons, ten years of age or over, having gainful occupations in the United States, 8,335,634, or 36.9 per cent, were engaged in agriculture, and of these 3,004,061 were agricultural laborers.

The main object of the statistics is a consideration of the wages paid this class of labor. It is shown that those who work for hire on the farm are a decreasing element, as compared with the entire farm labor of the United States. Doubtless this is due largely to improved agricultural machinery and its wider introduction.

Farm wages a month by the year or agricultural machinery and its wider introduction.

Farm wages a month by the year or season, without board and with board, were higher in 1899 than in 1893. Tae smallest changes in the rate of wages from 1898 to 1899 were in Georgia, Texas and New Mexico, each less than 1 per cent. The highest gain was in Minnesota, 10 per cent; Washington and Michigan, each 9 per cent; North Dakota, 8.5 per cent; South Dakota, 7.5 per cent, and Wyoming, 7 per cent.

There has been a gradual increase in the rate of farm wages in the United States since 1879, when it reached the minimum. As the demand for such labor, especially in the harvest season, is st.h good, and the supply has decreased fully one-third, the tendency of wages would, naturally, be upward.

The uncertain character of farm work, largely dependent as it is on the promise of crops, and varying from a pressing demand for help in summer to practically no demand at all in winter, makes it difficult to determine just how many laborers gain a livelihood entrely from agriculture. The figures given represent the number employed during the year, but it is well known that a great many more work on the farms in summer than in winter. These statistics do not follow the summer surplus in the period between harvests.

LICENSES ARE REFUSED

ALDERMEN DENY APPLICATIONS FOR SALOON LICENSES.

Peter Schneider several days ago filed an application for a license to conduct a saloon in the building at the northwest corner of Maryland and Rice streets, but his request was refused by the committee on license of the board of aldersen yesterday.

The action of the aldermen was due to a heavily signed protest, claiming that the neighborhood was already plentifully supplied with saloons. John Welch made two unsuccessful attempts to start a saloon in the same building, and it is claimed that Schneider's application was simply a cloak to cover up the real owner of the place.

For some unexplained reason the committee held up the request of Elia Weinbelger for a license to conduct a saloon

The application of James Hogan for a license to conduct a saloon at 408 Minnesota street, which has been field up since Sept. 16, was granted. Hogan's license expired the early part of last October. The committee considered the proposition to reimburse hotel runners who have licenses outstanding, but as there is talk of an appeal from the ordinance legislating them out of business, it was decided to lay the matter over for a few weeks. One of the members remarked that he had come in on the train yesterday, and the number of runners at the depot seemed to him about as numerous as ever.

UNDER WRONG ORDINANCE. Goldstein Should Have Been Arrested on Another Charge. J. Goldstein, a peddler, who was arrested by Officer Galvin at Seventh and Broadway streets last week on the charge of disorderly conduct, was before Judge Orr in the police court yesterday. The officer claimed that Goldstein used abusive language toward him when he asked him if he had a license. Judge Orr discharged the defendant on the ground that disorderly conduct did not cover the use of abusive language. The court said there was an ordinance covering the case and its violation should have been charged.

Thirty Days Straight. John Mahon was before Judge Orr in the police court yesterday on the charge of disorderly conduct, and was given thirty days in the workhouse without the option of a fine, Mahon, who had been employed by Paper, Calmenson & Co. rag merchants, was discharged and sought to revenge himself by throwing rocks from the Sixth street bridge down on a car which the employes of the firm were loading.
