MOQUITO KILLING.

The war on the mosquito continues and gathers renewed force as it progresses. There are millions of the mosquito, and they are all evidently included in the approaching era of destruction. The world has great cause to rejoice at the recent discoveries regarding the mosquito. Few worse pests have beset the human family. He has been the restless and all-pervading enemy of human life and property alike. In his new character as the chief, if not the only agent, for conveying malarial diseases his fate has overtaken him.

HERING'S PROSPECTS BEIGHT.

Indiana Democrats, always in the forefront of progress political, have done something to cause comment again. Delegates to the congressional convention of the Thirteenth district, reasoning apparently from the Tillman-McLaurin incident in the senate, have placed in nomination a man whose chief claim to distinction seems to be that he was long a successful quarterback in a football team. Mr. Hering—for such is his name, with a plebeian flavor—does not promise to swoop down on Washington with a valise full of burden for the Congressman Record, but he goes there—how could he be defeated—with his brain developed to the "pink of condition," ready to get into the game in the event of an outbreak of the fire-eaters, whether they be from South Carolina or Colorado. Hering will be a legislative novelty, but fish. His ultimate destruction is merely a question of time and intelligence. With the opening of the summer weather the mosquito will again make his appearance. In myriads he will swoop down on the entire animal creation on this continent, and he will maintain his activity until the rivers freeze up. The time to begin the anti-mosquito crusade is now. If the residents of any locality want to rid themselves of this pest they have it in their power to do so with a very small expenditure of either labor or money. Public officials can lend a hand. The least expensive, as well as the slowest, although ultimately the most effective of the remedies, is the stocking of all waters in regions infested by mosquitoes with those species of fish, like the goldfish and the sunfish, and the top-minnows, which consume the larvae of the mosquito. Then the use of the cheaper grades of oil for use on the more or less stagnant pools in which these creatures have their breeding places will be found quite effective, without involving any great expenditure. Drainage, of course, is a measure which will be adopted only in pursuance of more extended purposes; but the other two remedies, intelligently and widely pursued, will in time wipe the mosquito out of general existence.

RECRUITING OVER HERE.

The Globe sincerely hopes it may be conclusively proven that England has not virtually maintained a recruiting station at Chalmette, near New Orleans. At the hours of his most poignant grief ever looked so sad—morning, noon and night, in sunshine and in shadow—as Chauncey M. Depew, post-prandial orator princeps and jolly good fellow extraordinary, through untold years of business and political life. Something, somewhere, somehow has changed the face which typified American good nature to one which resembles nothing so much as a head palibearer at a funeral.

DEPEW IS A MYSTERY.

Napoleon had his Moscow and his Waterloo, Charles I. his Cromwell, Gen. Lee his Appomattox and James J. Corbett his Carson City, but none of these in the hours of his most poignant grief ever looked so sad—morning, noon and night, in sunshine and in shadow—as Chauncey M. Depew, post-prandial orator princeps and jolly good fellow extraordinary, through untold years of business and political life. Something, somewhere, somehow has changed the face which typified American good nature to one which resembles nothing so much as a head palibearer at a funeral.

WHERE THE TAXES WENT.

The Globe reproduces here a very succinct statement regarding Mayor Doran's administration, made by Mr. J. C. McNeal on Friday evening last at the great business men's meeting in support of Mayor Smith's candidacy for re-election. It is as follows:

"Mayor Smith's cardinal policy had been to keep the fire board bipartisan in its make-up. Doran introduced politics there to oust the best chief of St. Paul ever had, and who, thanks to Republicans appointed by Mayor Smith, has been reappointed. He introduced politics in the police department to turn out O'Connor and Clark for Getchell and 'Chippy' Davis, made 'Reddy' Griffin premier and put Nick Pottgiesser on the wool sack. He brought about a condition of lawlessness that made it unsafe for women even in the quiet Seventh ward to be out of doors after night. The people of St. Paul have not drunk so deeply of foreign liquors since the return to their experience of two, four and eight years ago.

ARTISTIC ABSENT-MINDEDNESS.

A certain bishop, remarkable for his precise and dignified bearing, was once sitting in the studio of an eminent artist as a living model for his own portrait. Perfect silence to be maintained in this while the knight of the palette diligently went on with his work. At last the bishop, absent-mindedly, remarked to the dreary model, "How are you getting on?" "Move your head a little that way and shut your mouth."

A POSTAL CURRENCY.

During the last congress a measure was introduced designed to remove the terrible inconvenience which is involved to the business community in the transmission of small amounts through the mail. That body, however, passed away without any action being taken on the subject, notwithstanding that business men in every community united in expressing their anxiety to secure some scheme which would put an end to the evil mentioned. A similar measure has been introduced in both houses during the present session. It probably represents the former measure with some additions made with a view to its perfection. Stated in brief, the measure proposes to dispense with the present postal order system through the issuance of a form of postal currency. It provides that all $1, $2 and $5 bills hereafter issued shall contain blank spaces on the face of them, which may be filled in when it is designed to send them through the mail by inserting the name of the proposed payee, his city and state. A 2-cent stamp is thereupon affixed, and the name of the sender written across the face of the bill. When the bill is received it may be redeemed on presentation to any bank, and it is at once surrendered and another bill of the same denomination issued in its stead. Fractional currency of the same character would, under the provisions of the bill, be also issued for the same purpose.

SPRING.

Snow Goes. No. Trees Bud. (Sneezes) Mud. Di. Vase! Qui. Niggas. Scrub. Scold. Grub. Cold! Floor. Bare. More. Swear. Blue Bird. (Choo) Heard. Br-r-r-r. Ho-o-o! Ker-ker! Choo!

he will be handy as a repressive agency. If there is somebody around who can use recruiting members as a football the recruit might also make himself doubly useful by doing the work of two or three sergeants-at-arms and thus save the nation a lot of money paid men to keep order who do not keep it. Hering has a distinctly blazed future right before him. Will he move straight ahead or dodge?

DEVELOPMENTS.

People and Things

The aftermath of the visit of Prince Henry to this country is quite amusing. All those who met him are now explaining to their less fortunate neighbors that he "wasn't much" while the person who did not meet him are rising up and state that they never did care much for princes. We are intensely democratic in our views, and a title appears over the horizon, then, let us go—a beautiful subject. The prince is gone and the echoes of "hoch der kaiser" are fading away. But one Mrs. Astor, that the poor man will have to return dinners and wine, for the latest news is that all those distinguished persons in New York and other places who entertained him are going over this summer in their yachts to return his visit. We wonder whether the prince would be better at shooting the rapids of Niagara than Dr. Mary Walker.
