At the opening session of the American Baptist Missionary union yesterday morning President H. Kirke Porter, of Pennsylvania, made the opening address in which he recalled Minnesota's first appearance as a territory, in 1848 and the marvelous developments that had followed.

"We often hear it asked, what interest has the rest of the Christian world in the fellows in foreign lands? Foreign missions are one of our closest concerns. We see so many foreign nationalities in Minnesota that our missionaries feel very much at home in St. Paul."

"A most hopeful sign for the future is the widespread discussion of missions and their results. The question, 'How may the mission work be made increasingly effective?' is asked. The differences of opinion are only as to method. Such discussions add rather than detract from the interest in the missions, and all such discussion in brotherly kindness will surely do us good. We are in agreement with one another in going what we can."

The speaker touched on a question of international political importance when he said: "In many parts of China the common people are in such a wretched condition that they have done us. This fact makes it a duty of the Christian community to do what they can to help them."

Dr. Henry C. Mabie, home secretary of the executive committee, presented the report of that committee. In his report he reported that the receipts from all sources were $284,000, and that $110,000 in direct donations and nearly $110,000 in indirect donations from the women's societies. The income has been so large that the debt of the church has been reduced from $111,000 to $38,000. Dr. Mabie also said that the output of candidates for mission fields must be mapped out for them. There were twenty candidates awaiting assignments, and it would require $60,000 a year for three years to provide for them. He recommended a special committee of seven to deliberate on this question.

Charles W. Perkins, chairman of the executive committee, made an address, and said in part: "The union rarely has occasion to borrow money. It owns its real estate wherever the law of a foreign country permits it, though in France it is necessary to own through stock companies that purpose. We have lands in Japan, and over 478 missionaries in over 100 stations. We have 226,000 church members in foreign homes. There have been 16,000 baptisms abroad. We have one-seventh of the church membership in foreign lands and we spend our share of the $10,000,000 annually expended for foreign missions. We have 100 theological schools and four colleges in foreign lands. In Rangoon, Burma, we are carrying on the mission."

Pay of Missionary. The salary of a missionary if single is $300, and if married, $380, for the first three years. Then there is a raise of $200, and after seven years more another raise of $200. After twenty years, the salary is $1,500. He has also a house, which we furnish. Traveling expenses are paid both ways. An outfit is furnished, such as a horse, a carriage, and a driver for a single person. While at home, resting allowances are made of indefinite amount, as needed. The wives of children are also cared for if he dies in service.

The Philippine Islands our missionaries have translated the whole of the New Testament into Visayan. We could not get the rights in London. Bible societies to publish it unless we should translate the word 'baptize,' leaving the poor native to puzzle over its meaning, which we would not do.

"We do less industrial work than other societies, but we must do some, because when we lead a thief out of evil, we must show him something to do. We are doing much on the islands of the sea, using boats to go from one to another. The work in the Philippines is in this line. Six thousand of our men have been sent to Boston from that country for enlightenment."

Five committees were named, of which the following were appointed chairmen: Credentials—L. A. Crandall, Illinois. Arrangements—H. F. Stillwell, Minnesota. Nominations—Walter Calley, Massachusetts. Finance—D. G. Garstaut, New Jersey. Place of meeting—J. S. Lyon, Massachusetts.

The afternoon session opened with devotional services led by Rev. D. B. Cheney, of Wisconsin, after which addresses were made by several of the missionaries present. Rev. W. J. Williamson, of Missouri, delivered an address on "Foreign Missions as an Investment," and his remarks were frequently applauded.

Dr. Lemuel Moss, presented a resolution by which it was proposed to have a committee of three appointed to look into the matter of consolidating the American Baptist Missionary union, the American Baptist Publication society, the Baptist National Missionary society, and the American Baptist Home Mission society and their associate societies, which called for considerable opposition on the part of a number of the delegates.

The resolution was presented during the morning session but had been laid over until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and when it was read Dr. Moss in moving its adoption gave his reasons for presenting it. For the next two hours there was general discussion on the advisability of adopting it. Finally, after a hard fight by its advocates, the resolution was passed with an amendment by which the committee is to make its report on Thursday of the first week of the convention in 1903.

The resolution was increased, and came up for consideration before the other societies, was as follows: Providing for Co-ordination. Whereas, 1. It is affirmed that there is widespread unrest among our churches with reference to the advisability of co-operation in the activities of our Baptist National Missionary societies—especially of the American Baptist Missionary society, the American Baptist Publication society, and a lack of proper adjustment of their agencies and methods of operation. 2. It is desirable that Christian fellowship and brotherly love among us may be promoted and the work of God in our land and in all lands may be unhindered; Therefore, 1. That the American Baptist Publication society and the American Baptist Home Mission society are hereby requested to appoint their presiding officers, to constitute, with the presiding officer of the American Baptist Missionary society, a committee of three, for the purpose of naming a committee of fifteen to whom all matters of investigation and inquiry, as above suggested, shall be referred. And the presiding officer of this society, the American Baptist Missionary society, hereby appointed a member of the said special joint committee of three.

This committee of fifteen shall consist of seven ministers, five laymen and three women, and that each of the three societies be represented by one executive officer chosen by itself. That this committee of fifteen shall choose their own secretary and report any vacancies that may occur in their number. They may also, if for any reason they should deem it expedient, elect a number, not to exceed twenty-one in all, serving the conditions of membership indicated in the preceding article. 4. That this committee of fifteen shall serve without compensation. Their necessary expenses, however, shall be borne in equal portions by the three societies represented. 5. That the duties of this committee of fifteen shall be to ascertain all the facts concerning the situation at each of the societies as above suggested; whether there be any lack of proper adjustment and proper co-operation, and if so, what changes are needed or desirable in their forms of organization, in their constitutions, in their agencies and methods of work; and, if changes are needed, recommending what they shall be. The committee shall report their findings and recommendations to the annual conference of each of the three societies, and shall also report to the annual meeting of the American Baptist Missionary society, and shall also report to the annual meeting of the American Baptist Publication society, and shall also report to the annual meeting of the American Baptist Home Mission society, and shall
