

Gold and Porcelain Bridge Work

As is well known, Bridgework (restoration of the teeth without a plate) has been practiced as a leading specialty in my office for many years.

The proper construction of Bridge Work requires a high order of skill. You cannot afford to have this class of work done by an inexperienced operator.

Dons in the best manner you have a perfect replacement of the lost teeth, the functions of sense and taste can be perfectly performed. No clasps or bands to injure other teeth. The teeth crowned cannot afterward decay. When the mouth alters new teeth are not required. These teeth look like your own teeth, feel like your own teeth; and to all intents and purposes are your own teeth.

No Teeth Need be Extracted. Badly decayed teeth restored to their original appearance by the New Porcelain Process. I make no charge for examination.

TOLD TALE OF CRIME

"Billy" Edwards, "Big Mitt" Man, Made Some Startling Statements

GAVE DETAILS OF DEAL

Said the Crooked Work He Was Engaged in "Fleeing Suckers" Was With Full Consent of Mayor and Chief.

All those who were fortunate enough to be present in Judge Harrison's court room yesterday, were regaled with disclosures that even the most pessimistic anti-administration advocates could scarcely expect to listen to, when they had heard that indictments had been turned in against certain police officers of the city.

"Billy" Edwards, the prince of "big mitt" men in the Northwest, was on the stand, and his expositions of the plans that have been pursued, and are pursued in all well regulated fraternities of "big mitters" wherever they may operate, was startling in the extreme.

He told the story of how arrangements had been made whereby all who were in on the deal could be enriched without any pecuniary outlay, at the expense of the "suckers" who could be induced to "bite" on another man's game, and who the victim found that he had been "fleece" and reported the matter to the police department, how easy it was for the conspirators to escape from the clutches of the law, and he allowed to continue his operations, and prey upon the unwary, in a manner that beggars description.

Names the "Steerers." He recounted with extreme satisfaction the names of the "steerers" who had been associated with him in this work, and also the names of public officials whose sworn duty it was to prevent crime, that were in on the "divvy" because of their agreement to remain passive in the prosecution of the law, which they were sworn to support.

Assistant County Attorney A. J. Smith opened the case for the state in an exhaustive address to the jury. He began by saying that the state would show that Irwin A. Gardner was a special police officer of the city of Minneapolis, and that he performed all the duties of a police officer, and that he was a member of the police force.

Edwards on the Stand. The star event of the day was the placing on the stand one of the state's principal witnesses, "Billy" Edwards, who appeared neatly attired, and having every appearance of a substantial business man, instead of criminal, who was now waiting sentence in the county jail for swindling.

they were the "whole thing" at police headquarters, as they had charge of all the "steerers" and the absolute women of the town. The plan entered into was that no citizen would be given any money. Their trade would be chiefly among the unwary and those "suckers" might be induced to "bite" on another man's game, and who the victim found that he had been "fleece" and reported the matter to the police department, how easy it was for the conspirators to escape from the clutches of the law, and he allowed to continue his operations, and prey upon the unwary, in a manner that beggars description.
