GOOD ROADS TRAIN

GREAT NORTHERN GIVES ONE TO GOVERNMENT TO USE IN NORTHWEST

TRIP OF ONE HUNDRED DAYS IS ARRANGED FOR

First Demonstration Is to Be Held at State Fair, After Which the Train Will Visit Many Farming Communities to Give Practical Lessons in Road Building.

The "Good Roads Train" is now assured and the members of the Northwest can now prepare to see the most interesting practical "good roads" agitation ever attempted in the West. As told in The Globe several days ago, several government officials have been in St. Paul for a week or more trying to make arrangements for this special train to tour the country. Final arrangements were made yesterday by the Great Northern railway to send out a special "good roads" train, with a full equipment for giving practical instructions in the art of building good roads. The officials of the road have placed at the disposal of Col. B. W. Richardson, the government good roads expert, a train such as he may require, with the privilege of taking it wherever he may see fit, and the company pays all the expenses. It will cost at least $100 a day to operate the train, and it is expected to be out about 100 days, so the Great Northern people have practically contributed $10,000 to the movement, which liberal concession is highly appreciated, as the road derives no special benefit from the train.

FATHER SPOILS GIRL'S INTENTION TO WED

Claims Daughter Was Lured to City by Her Sweetheart, That He Might Marry Her.

Mary Goggin, the pretty fifteen-year-old daughter of a farmer living near De Graff, Minn., was rescued from the sometimes tedious bonds of early matrimony yesterday by her father, Edward Matthews, a young farmer living near Mary's home, was the husband, or prospective, but, according to the declarations of the older Goggin, he will not enjoy that relationship for some time to come. He alleges that Matthews enticed his daughter away by the glitter of city life.

The girl was found at the residence of Mrs. Daniel Mullen, 47 Summit avenue, where she was engaged in domestic duties. It was claimed there that they had employed the girl because they wanted help, and she came and applied for work, saying that she was tired of farm life, and wanted to work up in the world.

But the father of the girl has a different version. He asserts that Matthews sent the girl to the Mullen home, where he knew that she would be properly cared for, Mrs. Mullen being his sister. Later, he asserted, they intended to be married.

The police took the girl into custody yesterday, and later she returned home with her father. At first she strenuously refused to go back to the farm, but when she found that there was little chance of carrying out her intention she submitted meekly to the paternal wishes.

ASSESSOR'S FUN BEGINS

EVERYBODY IS "KICKING" TO CONLEY THESE DAYS

Over One Thousand Protests Received From Those Whose Valuations Were Increased—New Board of Equalization to Meet on Monday—City Has But Three Members.

Next Monday the new board of equalization will meet and it is expected its sessions will be anything but ones of restful bliss. Over 1,000 protests against the valuations made by City Assessor Conley are now on file and the number is increasing daily.

The protests come from those who suffered an increase after their returns had been made and also those who find their improved real estate holdings boosted some 10 per cent over what they were a year ago. Another source of trouble will be the holders of West side leases, though any kick they will make will be preliminary to an appeal to the courts, which is now being prepared.

Will Have to Give Proof.

"The kicks are coming in lively," said Assessor Conley yesterday, "but if the protestants can show where an injustice has been done, it will be remedied. My men were instructed to take a true inventory of every thing they saw and that is what we have on a basis on which to make valuations. This habit of blaming the ownership of the family on someone else other than the head of the house is all right, but whoever is the owner will have to pay for it. The city assessor and his men were instructed to make a note of all pianos, if they don't belong to the person in whose house they were located, then it is their business to inform us. They won't be charged for it, if their statement is sworn to. Something of record will be made, and it is his name we want."

As the city end of the board, as a result of the deal existing between the two councils, is only composed of three members, the entire board will only consist of seven members this time. Mayor Smith, by virtue of his office, will be the chairman.

CITY COUNCIL CONDEMNED

SUPREME COURT UPHOLDS RIGHT OF EMINENT DOMAIN UNDER CITY CHARTER

WABASHA STREET BRIDGE ASSESSMENT IS VALID

Court Also Decides Two Minneapolis Cases, One Against Mayor Ames, in His Fight With City Council, and One Against Police Officer Burke O'Brien.

Three decisions, all relating to the municipal affairs of the Twin Cities, were handed down by the supreme court yesterday, and in each instance the action of the lower court is affirmed.

In one of these decisions, in which the opinion is written by Justice Lovely, the court affirms the condemnation of property for the purpose of the approach to the Wabasha street bridge and the assessment levied against certain abutting property for the purpose of paying for the improvement, thus affirming the order of Judge Kelley, of the Ramsey county district court, in the proceedings to set aside the assessment. This action was brought by M. P. Ryan, the St. Paul Homestead company, W. A. Scott, the Villaume company and Lumber company, Emma J. Sperry, Alfred Villaume and Constantine Bailey, all West side property owners, to set aside an assessment of $35 per lot for the purpose of paying for the property condemned for the new approach to the bridge at the time it was widened. On behalf of the objectors it was argued that the charter commission had not power to authorize the city government to exercise the power of eminent domain or to prescribe methods for the exercise of that power or to prescribe to the courts in the charter.

Guilty of Contempt.

The court upholds the action of the Minneapolis municipal court in fining Police Officer Burke O'Brien $25 for contempt of court, and in this case the circumstances of the case in the action of the lower court were somewhat peculiar. It was charged against O'Brien that having learned, in his capacity as a member of the Minneapolis police department, that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of one Charles L. Loomis, keeper of a gambling house, he warned Loomis of that fact in time to enable him to destroy the evidence upon which the authorities were relying to secure a conviction. The evidence tended to show that O'Brien was present when the warrant was issued and was present when the warrant was issued for the arrest of Loomis, but that he was excused from duty at his own request soon afterward, and when the police officer arrived at Loomis' place to execute the warrant he found O'Brien at the door talking to someone on the inside. When the officer was admitted to the room he found that the evidence for which he had been sent, consisting of gambling tools and appliances, had been either removed or destroyed.

O'Brien refused to testify, and the court holds that under the circumstances he is not entitled to the same presumption of innocence ordinarily accorded to persons accused of crime who refuse to testify on their own behalf. In this case the court holds that the refusal of the officer to testify is a suspicious conduct authorizing the inference to be drawn in favor of the court, in the conclusion it must draw from his silence.

The other decision the court deals with is the case of the Attorney General, upholding the Hennepin county district court in the judgment that the mayor must abide by the appropriation of $1,000, as made by the city council, and that he must attend proceedings against the council to compel an increase of the amount to $5,000, under chapter 53, Laws of 1885, will not lie.

Mayor Ames Turned Down.

In the appointment of the Minneapolis law for the year 1902, Mayor Ames demanded $5,000 as his contingent fund, basing that demand on the law of 1885, allowing that sum to the mayor. The council, however, sufficient to permit the appropriation of more than $1,000 for the purpose named, and as the council had voted to reduce the amount according to its judgment, the council from $1,000 to $2,500, the usual custom followed.

The syllabi in all three of the cases mentioned are as follows:

Assessment Is Valid.

State of Minnesota ex rel. M. P. Ryan et al., petitioners, vs. District Court of Ramsey County, Minnesota, and William Louis Kelly, a Justice of the Peace, respondents.

The citizens' charter of St. Paul, adopted May 1, 1900, lawfully conferred upon the common council of that city the power to take property for public use upon just compensation therefor, made or secured and is not in violation of the honor clause of the constitution of 1888, section 36, which provides that the right to exercise the power of eminent domain by opening and improving streets is an essential and incidental element of the sovereignty of the state in the home rule amendment of the constitution of 1888, and that the legislature in the enabling act of 1888, chapter 351, in re Getchell vs. O'Connell, 21 Minn., 73, approved.

The amendment to the state constitution, section 1, article 3, so far as it applies to making assessments for local improvements and the manner in which the same are to be levied, is not in violation of the home rule amendment of 1888, and held in favor of the city council.

A charter adopted under the constitutional amendment of 1888, prescribing the manner in which the power of eminent domain may be exercised under that amendment, is not in violation of the home rule amendment of 1888, and held in favor of the city council.

No Relief for O'Brien.

State of Minnesota, respondent, vs. Burke O'Brien, appellant.

1. Evidence considered and held that it was sufficient to justify the conviction of an officer of a court of law for contempt of court, and that the record for contempt proceedings, in giving information derived by him while acting as a member of the police department, was not in violation of the honor clause of the constitution of 1888, and that the failure of the officer to testify in giving information of the issuance of a criminal warrant if he refuses to explain suspicious acts cannot claim the benefit of the absolute presumption of innocence accorded to persons accused of crime who decline to testify in their own behalf under section 565, General Laws 1894.

In contempt proceedings by a court against one of its officers for using information obtained therein to convey notice to a party accused of crime to prevent the service of a warrant, the failure of the party so accused to explain such conduct upon the hearing is not an inference against him which may be taken into consideration by the court in the conclusion it must draw from his silence. Judgment affirmed.

JURY GIVEN FRED BROWN BIG VERDICT

Is Awarded $6,000 Against Mussers-Sauntry Company for Serious Injuries.

The jury in the United States court, in the case of Fred Brown against the Mussers-Sauntry Logging company, yesterday returned a verdict awarding the plaintiff damages in the extent of $6,000. The plaintiff is a logger, and the defendant company in logging operations. Among his other specified duties he was required to break the logging chains which hold the logs on the sledges. This is said to be a dangerous occupation at best. The chains are broken or knocked apart by the use of a long-handled ax. Brown claimed that he was given a short-handled ax to do this with, and protested that it was dangerous, and was provided a regulation sized ax, which is about six feet long. He claims that he asked for the long pike several times, and was promised it, but never received it. In breaking the chain with a short-handled ax, the logs fell before he could get away, and although he started to run, he was rolled upon and over him, and he was terrified by the noise of the logs, and the doctors say he will be a cripple to the end of his days, and a complete physical wreck.

DR. WHITCOMB'S MAN WAS NOT PRESENTED

City Clerk Failed to Announce His Election by the Board to the Assembly.

Some of the members of the board of aldermen have entered a protest against the failure of City Clerk Matt Jensen to present for consideration at the last meeting of the assembly their selection of Dr. Whitcomb's man for a place on the board of equalization.

As a selection must have the indorsement of both bodies, they contend that their action should have been at least presented for consideration, even if defeat was anticipated.

Assistant City Clerk McCrea says the failure to present Mr. Whitcomb's name was for the reason that it was given at the board meeting in the shape of a motion, and that there was nothing of record to be indorsed by the assembly. Had his election been by resolution, he says, it would have been different.

PARK BOARD IS TO HAVE A HEARING

Charter Commission Agrees to Listen to Its Request for Amendments.

The members of the charter commission have announced their willingness to accord the park board a hearing on its proposition to amend the charter and will call a meeting to that end in a few days.

The park board desires the charter amended so that their revenue for maintenance will accrue from a one-mill tax, and they are allowed to use their revenues and also retain their unexpended balances at the close of each fiscal year.

Now that the park board is to be accorded a hearing, other departments of the city government have evidenced a desire to be heard, and as a result the requests for amendments promise to be numerous.

RED WING LEADS IN CLAY MANUFACTURE

Has More Than Half of the State's Industry in This Department—Government Figures.

According to the government census report on clay products and manufacture, Red Wing enjoys the distinction of producing five-eighths of the output of the state of Minnesota. The fact isn't stated in these words, but the census report states there are no more than double the known figures of Red Wing.

An unsatisfactory condition is shown in working, not only in Minnesota, but throughout the United States, and the output being several per cent less than in the year 1890, but this, the census report explains, is due to the hard times of 1893 which closed the brick yards. The brick industry, according to the census report, is the last to feel the effect of hard times and the last to recover.

But Red Wing has not been affected by the general decline. While the remainder of the state has been backward, Red Wing has more than doubled its clay manufactures, a fact which is indicated in the figures of the report.

The big falling off in clay working in ten years has been in the manufacture of common brick, which has decreased from a value of $1,083,468 in 1890 to $725,319 in 1900. The manufacture of pressed and fancy brick shows increase in quantity, though a decrease in value. The bulletin partially explains the reason for this, the manufacture of brick by the fact that the use of structural iron has done away with a large part of the demand for common brick. The manufacture of sewer pipe has come up from practically nothing in 1890 to nearly $200,000 in 1900, and there is where Red Wing holds the lead, at least in keeping up its reputation among the clay producers.

The increase in the amount of business of the state has not been shown, but the product for 1900 is given at $206,300. The number of men employed in all clay industries in the state in 1900 is 1,276 in 1900, and 238 in 1890. The falling off is explained as largely due to the introduction of machinery.

Minnesota stands thirteenth in the list of states in the clay product. One-half the manufacture for the country is done in four states, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Illinois.

MAJ. BURKE ARRIVES WITH FUND OF STORIES

Col. Cody's Right Hand Man Drops in on Old Friends to Tell About the "Exhibition."

Maj. John M. Burke, "Arizona John," known everywhere as "Buffalo Bill's" right hand man, and who is in charge of the "department of publicity" of the great scout's famous exhibition, arrived in St. Paul last night, where he was at once rushed into a corner by many friends and "held up" for his latest stories and information. Col. Burke is known everywhere for a fine gentleman and a "jolly good fellow." He has had a wide and varied experience, has traveled all over the civilized world, and has literally dined with the kings and emperors of the world.

They tell a great many stories on Maj. Burke, most of them true.

When he first went to London in advance of the "Exhibition," he was well known in West, in 1887, it was known that he had been in London, and he could get anything he wanted into the very conservative daily papers of the English capital, not excepting the Times, and his with an editor-in-chief was never returned with a "Not-at-home" message.

They still tell a great many good stories about how Burke in London, England, Italian, Spanish and other nobility, never weakened his stalwart Americanism, and he believes today, as always, that this is the very best country on earth. One evening he was going to his hotel, in company with several English friends, when he was knesed and held up by a man, the statue of George III. "What upon earth are you about?" demanded one of his companions. "Paying my little tribute to the king," was the reply. "But," was explained, "that is not your George, but our George." "I know it," was the response, "but I was just thanking the good Lord that you, George, gave our George his opportunity." "Most extraordinary!" was the comment of his English friends.

On another occasion the major's patriotic impulse threatened to have serious results. He strolled one evening into the Alhambra, where a ballet of the Italian was in progress. Squads of girls, clad in appropriate national costumes of different countries, and each got a round of applause. German, French, Italian, Spanish and other banners were displayed in turn by the dancers, and then appeared a bevy of damsels in red, white and blue, waving the Stars and Stripes. The sight was too much for the major's equanimity, and he let out an Indian yell that made the chandeliers jingle. Everybody turned to look at his striking figure in the wide promenade at the back of the balcony, and in a trice he was grasped by half a dozen attendants of the theater. "Gentlemen," he said, "I am not a native. I didn't mean to break up the show, but I've been here in London a month, and this is the first time I have seen my country's flag. Can you blame me if I couldn't help holding it? It was released at once, and the ballet proceeded.

The major speaks in terms of high praise and admiration of King Edward, whom he says is as finely equipped for kingship as any man who ever wore a crown.

Maj. Burke has but one touchy point. He cannot abide to hear the Buffalo Bill performance spoken of as a "show." He insists on calling it an "exhibition." It is to be here on the 25th, and the major is to be in advance to let the public know just how splendid this "exhibition" of his good and great friend, Col. Cody, is going to be.

UNION MEN IN ARMS

ALLEGED THAT COAL COMPANIES ARE HAVING WORK DONE BY NON-UNION LABOR

DECIDE TO ASK COMPANIES TO DISCHARGE CONTRACTS

Claim Companies Gave Hauling Contract to James Forrestal, Who Afterwards Employed Non-Union Men—Committee Appointed to Protest and Fight if Necessary.

The committee appointed by the Team Owners' union Wednesday night, to take action against the three coal yards in St. Paul that have employed non-union labor to haul their coal this season, met at Federation hall last night and discussed plans for waging a war against these concerns if they did not break a contract with the union labor. John Geary is chairman of the committee and George H. Shaw secretary. According to Secretary Shaw, of the committee, the Pioneer Fuel company, the Y. & L. Fuel company and the Ohio Fuel company entered into a contract with the James Forrestal company for the hauling of their coal this season. Mr. Shaw claims that when the matter first came up, Mr. Forrestal's partner was a member of the union, and the union allowed him to go up to his agreement with the union, broke faith with it, and bought only employ about twelve of his teams and would employ the rest of the teams from other members of the union. Now they claim that as soon as the contract was made Mr. Forrestal, instead of living up to his agreement with the union, broke faith with it, and bought fifty teams with the intention of doing the entire hauling himself. Shortly after this his partner served notice on the union and said that he had sold all of his teams to Forrestal and withdrew from the union.

Will Make Firm Demand.

A committee was accordingly appointed, and they met last night for the first time. The committee instructed the business agent of the union, John Geary, to wait on the "matinee" except the afternoon contract with the Forrestal company immediately, the union will take such action as may be necessary to bring the company to its senses.

The members of the union contend that allowing the non-union men to do the hauling means that fifty union men driven by union teamsters and owned by union team owners, will be out of employment this winter. They also advance the argument that the work should be given to them because they are all taxpayers. The members of the committee last night stated that they would fight the matter to a finish in order to gain their point against non-union labor.

STATISTICS OF WAGES AND HOURS OF LABOR

Government Report Shows That Union Laborers Work Fewer Hours and Earn More Money.

"I know of no better argument in favor of unionism than the report of the United States Commissioner of Labor Carroll Wright, showing the actual statistics compiled by the bureau of labor statistics of wages of union and non-union men." said Labor Commissioner O'Donnell yesterday.

According to these official figures, union bakers for instance, average 70.5 hours a week and average $2.05 daily wages, while the non-union men average 69.4 hours a week and $1.79 daily wages. The bakers' union fees are 59 cents a month, but the non-union men pay $3 a year paid to the union before they receive their wages, and works 115 hours less. "Take the case of bricklayers," the statistics show that the union bricklayers, working 51 hours a week and $3.30 a day in wages, while the non-union bricklayers, working 57.4 hours a week and $2.17 a day in wages. The union bricklayer receives in wages $129 a year more than the non-union bricklayer. The statistics show that the union bricklayer works 312 hours a year more than the non-union bricklayer and receives $129 a year more than the non-union bricklayer. These figures compiled by a government bureau working without restriction reveal the cold, hard truth of actual conditions.

Local rivermen and lumbermen will be interested in the annual report of Major Townsend in charge of river and harbor improvements on the Mississippi river between the mouth of the Missouri river and St. Paul, just made public. The year has been a busy one on the stretch of the river over which Maj. Townsend has jurisdiction. The work of removing obstructions in the river from St. Paul to the mouth of the Missouri has extended so far that only one snag boat is now necessary. On the Mississippi between St. Paul and Winona four wing dams and one closing dam were built during the year, and one wing dam was lengthened. From Winona to the Wisconsin river dam work was done on the east side of Barron's island opposite La Crosse. Considerable work was done in the harbor at La Crosse, including the removal of about $4,000 cubic yards of sand.
