SANDALS NOT POPULAR WITH ST. PAUL WOMEN

They Have Not Yet Begun to Wear the New-Fangled Footwear—What the Shoe Dealers Say.

The sandal finds no favor with the St. Paul woman. At least that is what the St. Paul shoe men say and certainly they are in a position to know. It is not that the St. Paul woman has frowned decidedly upon this custom which Eastern women have made fashionable. To a certain extent she admires the sandal. For bedroom slippers she says, they are very appropriate and quite comfortable, but for the drawing room, the street and the office, she is a devotee of the shoe. The St. Paul shoe men have sold sandals not for bed room wear, but for wear at any time and all times. If one's foot is small and the sandal looks very well in a sandal. A foot or even a slipper covers a multitude of defects. Therefore, you may be sure that when a young woman increases her feet in sandals it is proof positive that those feet are above reproach.

"Many of our women customarily wear sandals to wear around the house, for they claim that they are excellent for sensitive feet, curing corns, bunions and all the other ailments that sensitive feet are heir to. Others, on the contrary, though they admire them, claim that they make the feet appear larger. After the sandal has been worn for sometime and the wearer returns to shoes, it is found that a larger sized shoe has to be purchased.

"No," said another salesman, "the custom of wearing sandals is not very popular in St. Paul. In time it may become fashionable. The fashion was recently introduced in the East and extreme fashions always make way slowly. By next summer the majority of St. Paul women will be wearing sandals. However, we have sold a number of sandals for children's wear."

Certainly the sandals exhibited by the St. Paul shoe merchants are pretty and dainty enough to please any woman. They are hand made with soft-leather soles. The feet and leather straps are ornamented with steel and sometimes silver buckles, which fasten directly over the in-step.

ITS HANDS ARE TIED

CHARTER COMMISSION CAN AC-COMPLISH NOTHING, SAYS
AMBROSE TIGHE

RESIGNS BECAUSE HE THINKS EFFORTS FUTILE

With Conditions Imposed Charter Represents a Fiscal System Which He Deems Intolerable—No Remedy Can Be Found Until Legislature Acts.

Ambrose Tighe, a member of the St. Paul charter commission since its inception and one of the principal franchisees of the instrument under which the city is now operating, yesterday rendered his resignation to the judges of the district court. No one has been selected in his place, but it was rumored about the court house yesterday that Franklin Griggs, late first assistant corporation attorney, would be nominated. Tighe, who assisted in framing the present charter, Mr. Tighe was perhaps the most active, and the accompanying letter of resignation is of more than usual importance.

Reasons for Resigning.
"I take this course for several reasons, some of which it would be impractical to specify, but one of which is of the most important nature. The "duties of the position are quite onerous, and in the past have required the expenditure of much time and the exercise of considerable painstaking effort on the part of each of the commission's members, and promise to require still more time and effort in the future. This is only to be expected, and any citizen who accepts the appointment will, as a matter of course, gladly give to the work the energy and attention it demands, provided a feeling of responsibility on the part of the public good can thereby be secured.

"But, in my judgment, it is not possible, under existing legislation, for the commission to accomplish much of value in the direction of amending the charter. There are many defects and omissions in the instrument. This is the case in most of the cities of the state. The commission's members have sights in its original drafting, and because of changes in the local situation since its adoption. These defects and omissions are in many or less in all its chapters, but appear especially conspicuous to me in the chapters having to do with the fiscal affairs of the city. It is my belief that to these I have given chief attention.

More Money Needed.
"There are urgent demands from many departments of the city for increased appropriations, and it is not possible to question the propriety and justice of these demands. The fire board, for example, is confronted with a task which cannot be performed when it tries to protect the city and pay its employees living wages on a $15-000 a year. And in general the scheme of fixing maximum expenditures in the face of varying conditions is entirely impracticable."

"But, even if admitted that under the vague and incomplete provisions of the enabling act on the subject of amendments, any amendments can yet be made, it is certain that the increased appropriation can be had only at the expense of increased taxation. As the law now stands, we are forced to pay in cash the debts incurred by a past generation for public improvements, and evidenced by maturing bonds, and at the same time to pay in cash for the public improvements which we are making, and the benefit of which will be enjoyed for a half century or longer.

"The result is that we have the alternatives of a tax rate which would paralyze our local industries and the foregoing of important public improvements essential to our progress and development as a city.

System is Wrong.
"This condition is intolerable, and yet the charter commission is powerless to help it, because its hands are tied by the provisions of the act of the legislature to which it owes its existence. This compels a system of government which is in war with all sound scientific principles, and is impractical in the highest degree. Subject always to the question as to operative value of the sections having to do with amendments, the commission can, perhaps, make some feather-duster changes in the charter which will, in an inefficient and temporary manner, relieve the situation, and at the same time not further increase the tax burdens on real property until the legislature radically amends the enabling act. I think that the theory of representatives, intelligent and desirable, and that it was fortunate that city took advantage of the law, as it did, in my opinion, that the theory will have to be arrested, except to the extent suggested, until after we get some remedial legislation from the capital. Until that direction as quite futile in any broad sense."

In the late attempts to amend the charter for the benefit of a number of the city departments, Mr. Tighe was probably the most strenuous in his argument against it. He admitted that the present charter was a tampering accident, but he pointed out the good points of the charter inoperative.

The Rev. Patrick J. Hart, a Catholic clergyman, formerly of St. Paul, now military chaplain at Fort Meade, S. D., is on a visit to his old home.

Father Hart spent two years and a half as chaplain in the United States forces in the Philippines.

In answer to questions put to him last night, Father Hart said, regarding the Philippines:

"Yes, I was an army chaplain in the Philippine islands. I arrived in Manila in the month of March, 1899, with the Third Regiment, United States Infantry. I accompanied my regiment in their campaigns from Manila to Malolos, and later I was with Gen. Lawton in his campaign from Caloocan through the northern provinces of Luzon to San Miguel and San Isidro.

"Obliged through ill health to return to the States in May, 1900, I went back to the Philippines in March, 1901, and was appointed to the Eighth Regiment, United States infantry, then stationed at the province of Laguna, Luzon. I left definitely the Philippines in October, 1901.

"During my several peripatations through the islands of Luzon, I had many opportunities of observing the manners, habits and customs of the
