SUCCOTH CARPENTER HAS WORK ONLY ONE WEEK

He is Employed in Ghetto by Jews

During Feast of Tabernacle. The oddest industry in the metropolis is that of a succoth carpenter, who finds employment one week of the year in the Ghetto among the orthodox Jews. His rk is done in the fort-night which precedes the feast of tabsernacles and consists in building odd solitle booths known as succoths in the back yards of the tenement houses. The feast of the tabernacles is supposed to commemorate the time during which the children of Israel wandered in the wilderness, and probably also their sojourn in the land of Egypt. During this period they lived more or less in the open, which fact is symbolized by the booth having no roof or else a covering of evergreens and bulrushes. According to another school the booths represent the time when the Israelites came in such numbers that they were unable to get into the temple and so built temporary shelters around the sacred edifice.

The succoth should be boxlike in shape, not less than six feet in height, six feet long and four feet wide. It should be made of the cheapest and flimsiest building material to indicate what it represents. Some of the builders take a pride in making the structures a, amshackle as possible. Others use the poorest materials, but saw and fit them with so much skill that the finished succoth is neat and attractive. There is but little commer-cial element in the industry. The em-ployer supplies the wood for the work of setting it up his price is nearly always 50 cents. Charitable Hebrews Private WIRES.

ways 50 cents. Charitable Hebrews will often employ two or three builders and pay each the same as the rest.

Here during the festival week the family takes its meals and assembles every day for prayer. It is not at all unpleasant in fair weather, but when, as often happens, it rains, the situa-tion is decidedly uncomfortable. On a rainy day symbolism vanishes, as rain is practically unknown in the stony desert where the Israelites wandered ages ago.

Still more suggestive is the way in which the prayers are said. Instead of kneeling or of clasping the hands, the one who prays holds a fruit, usually a pomegranate, in one hand and a bulrush or water-reed in the other. At the end of the prayer each of these is shaken twice and then handed over to the next member of the family. The water reeds are supposed to commem-orate the finding of Moses in the bulrushes, and the fruit the promise of the Lord to give them a land flowing with milk and honey.-New York Even

THE OLD, OLD WAY.

The first one loved her dearly And read from all the books, And tried in every way to let His heart show in his looks He showed her every kindness

He showed her every kindness,
And planned some joy each day
And tried to smooth out every ill
That sprang up in her way.
His only wish was for her good,
His one thought but to please;
His every effort all day long
To give her greater ease.

She said although she liked him—Knew he was good and kind,
To be his wife she could not Determine in her mind.
And so she'd say good-by to him,
But bade him not forget—
She knew a splendid husband
He'd make for some maid yet.

The next one very seldom

Took pains to make a call,
And had the air of wishing
He had not come at all.
He gazed upon her coldly,
With hateur in his eyes,
As if her mere existence
Was cause of deep surprise.

He never gave a single thing,
He never read a line;
He never paid a compliment.
Nor took her out to dine.
He never said a single word,
Nor called a loving name;
Nor said if she refused him
Life wouldn't be the same.

But she said there existed

A feeling true and strong;
And she knew it was deep enough
To last their whole life long.
And she had found within his heart,
The first time in her life.
Enough to really make her
Desire to be his wife.
—Wilbertine Worden.

His Lawyer Sent Him.

A joint committee of the recent session of the Louisiana legislature visited the state penal farms at Angola and Hope for the purpose of reporting on the work done by the board of control. The members of the committee spent some time talking with the negro convicts, and presently one of the negroes recognized a member of the committee, who is a rising young lawyer, not 1,000 miles from New Ibera. You know Mr. B---?" inquired one of the gentlemen.

"Yaas, sah, I knows Mr. B— well.
