OBJECTS OF THE ADMINISTRATION'S SPITE PREPARE TO RETALIATE IN KIND

CONGRESSMEN COLLECT DATA FOR A TURNOVER

They Say They Have the Proofs of Van Sant's Interference at the Bidding of the President and That Their Drag Net Has Gathered Sufficient Material to Make Governor Sorry He Spoke.

The open exhibition of the administration's hand in the First and Third district congressional races has opened the closet door and a lot of dirty republican linen is about due to be hung out for an airing.

The congressmen who have been the recipients of the administration's spite have compared notes and collected available data until they are in a fine position to tell what they know and they know enough to make it uncomfortable for Mr. Van Sant, governor of Minnesota.

When the governor of Minnesota attacked his valise, strapped up his vice presidential bid and went to Washington he went prepared to undertake a commission or two at the bidding of President Roosevelt. He received the commissions and he is delivering the goods to the best of his ability. Members of the delegation who are not personally interested in the outcome of the fights for nomination are frankly outspoken in the statement that the president asked Van Sant to help him against the insurgents in Minnesota. Almost before the governor got home the effect of that request was felt in the Fifth district.

Blamed for Fletcher's Troubles.

All of the congressmen and their closest friends are unanimous in the statement that Van Sant and his strikers are responsible for the fight in Hennepin, and further charge them with being indirectly responsible for the candidacy of John Lind, who they look upon as definitely settling the fate of Fletcher. In the Third district there was little attempt to conceal the administration's hand. Heatwole helped Van Sant into the gubernatorial seat and as quick as the man from Winona was the real governor of Minnesota he recanted by calling Heatwole a traitor and laying ropes to catch him.

This naturally incensed Heatwole, who made no effort to conceal his resentment and admitted with the Van Sant insurgents. By the time a body of devoted party patriots made up their mind that it was cheaper to let Van Sant die a natural death than take the chances of party disruption, Van Sant and his henchmen had made up their mind that it would be bad for them to have Heatwole quit the congressional game and they laid up for a while. When they were satisfied that Heatwole was out for keeps, they again broke into the Third district to get square in the attempt to defeat Heatwole, and the nomination and to dictate the ticket.

Heatwole Has Proofs.

Heatwole got them with the goods on them and he is a good enough politician to play them several strings in the lead for a while and then land them high and dry. The Third district game was the first of the administration's gambles, but the First district cover was no less a gamble, and it was not so much an administration candidate as the administration attaches are out rooting for him day and night, as they are for Ives in the Third.

The administration people figure that with a field of five, Ives, who would be the favorite, they could get in a field of two or three, may manage to pull together enough votes to top him over the fence and into the running. Then they figure that the impetus given by the state ticket will be sufficient to land him in congress. Not to overlook any bets, though, they are again trying to place the copper by dealing gently with the name of E. A. Whitford, who may yet decide to break in and who may reasonably be expected to land the nomination if he tries for it.

Joel Heatwole officially announces over his signature that he is not and will not be a candidate to succeed him in congress. He is a Republican of the state who was afraid Heatwole would again get into the game he pointed out that there was no positive and definite statement from the Northfield man and that after while he would break in and let them all down. Over a year ago Heatwole had announced that he would not be a candidate, and over a month ago he positively assured The Globe that under no circumstances would he run again. Little things like a congressman's word or pledge are not sufficient for the anxious Republicans, and now they have it in black and white—Heatwole will not run, but there is no crowd of Republicans that will never cease to fear him until he has been quietly carried to his last resting place, duly interred and the job pronounced complete by a member of the clergy.

O. B. Eckman, of Roseau, yesterday filed his certificate of candidacy for Republican nomination to the house from the Sixty-third district.

Representative Peder M. Hennicks yesterday made good the promises of his friends by filing for the Populist nomination to the senate from the Sixty-third district. Mr. Hennicks lives at Robbins, Kittson county. He is an experienced member of the lower house and has a clean legislative record. He is a good vote getter and should prove a formidable candidate.

Henry McColl, the Third ward druggist, is a candidate for the legislature. Mr. McColl filed his certificate of candidacy for the Democratic nomination in the thirty-fourth senatorial district yesterday. He has long been an active worker and is well known in his district, which comprises the Third ward end of the senatorial district.

Stephen J. McDonough, a Second ward saloonist, has filed for Republican nomination to the board of county commissioners.

MECHANIC ARTS FOR TECHNICAL WORK

Movement on Foot to Transfer All Girls in It to Central High School.

Strong arguments in favor of the removal of all female pupils now attending the Mechanic Arts high school to the Central high school were presented before the board of education at its meeting of yesterday by a delegation representing the Commercial club and the builders' exchange.

This delegation appeared before the board to urge the enlargement and in general improvement of the mechanic arts school and the suggestion as to the removal of the girl pupils grew out of the discussion of different plans to afford more room for those who are taking the strictly industrial course.

The spokesman of the party was Oliver Crosby, of the American Hoist & Derrick company, whose familiarity with scientific mechanics has led him to take an active interest in the affairs of the school ever since it was established. Mr. Crosby reviewed the history of the school, reminding the board that six years ago the Mechanic Arts school was practically a dead letter, but since that time the school has grown to be much better than the similar institution in Minneapolis and to afford better facilities for industrial training than the colleges which made claims as technical schools. This school, he said, now had nearly 600 pupils, and the opening of the school year would bring from 150 to 200 more. The accommodations would then be inadequate, and he would urge the board to make some sort of provision for the new pupils. He would be in favor of centralizing the entire manual training department of the schools in the Mechanic Arts school rather than the manual training in the grade schools or in the other high schools.

The discussion brought out the fact that the Mechanic Arts school has 20 rooms and 21 teachers and there are now 420 pupils there, giving an average of 21 pupils to a room or 20 pupils to a teacher, whereas the board has figured to have 100 pupils to a room in high schools and has 27 to a room in the Central school.

President Holman called the attention of Mr. Crosby to the fact that the Central high school will accommodate 300 more pupils and will be equipped for manual training, but to this Mr. Crosby replied that to this Mr. Crosby had no other academic school could have the mechanical atmosphere which pertains at the Mechanic Arts.

Unlicensed Dealers in Grain and Agricultural Produce Who Do Not File Necessary Bonds to Be Put Under the Ban—For Protection of Farmers.

Firms doing business on a commission basis, either in grain or agricultural produce, without a license from the railroad and warehouse commission are in danger of being punished under the law which provides that they must have licenses.

There have been some complaints regarding these dealers, especially against those who style themselves, "wholesalers and jobbers," and therefore evade the law regarding licenses. The commission, however, is determined that the farmers must be protected, and they will take steps to punish these dealers if evidence can be secured against them.

Any testimony that is offered will be gladly received by the commission, and the shippers are asked to aid in the work of weeding out the unlicensed dealers.

ANTI-SALOON MEN ARE DISAPPOINTED AGAIN

Delegates From the Congregational Church Visit Assembly License Committee.

More time was consumed yesterday by the members from the Pacific Congregational church, who have been making a strong effort to head off the application of one Le Claire for a license to conduct a saloon at Acker and Mississippi streets, but they were again compelled to accept defeat. This time the court of inquiry was the assembly committee on licenses, composed of Assemblymen Van Slyke, Rosen and Doran, who after hearing the arguments against, decided that they could not interfere.

The committee, both through Mr. Van Slyke and Mr. Doran, explained to the delegation that it was purely a business street, already it was the home of several saloons and, laying sentiment aside, they would be doing wrong if they attempted to discriminate. The fact that the block in which the church sits is already the home of one saloon, which has been there for nineteen years without the semblance of a protest, had considerable weight with the committee.

Some of the delegates, evidently angered at their ill-success, found occasion to inject into the proceedings personalities which the chairman had some trouble in suppressing. Assemblyman Doran gave an opening for some of it when he attempted to describe a visit to the district and found the new saloon a paradise compared Military Honors Accorded Burial of Late Sergeant Major Blair.

The funeral of the late Sergeant Major Frank E. Blair, of the Fourth infantry, took place from Fort Snelling at 11:30 o'clock yesterday forenoon, with military honors. The entire Twenty-first regiment at the funeral, and the proceeds of the occasion was headed by Col. J. K. Snelling with his staff and the regiment band. The non-commissioned officers acted as bearers, and the remains were conveyed in a gun carriage as far as the bridge, where they were transferred to an ambulance and brought to the union depot.

The body was shipped to the dead sergeant major's former home at Providence, R. I., where it will be interred. The late sergeant major was twenty-five years old and served his country five years. He served with the Fourteenth during the China reef expedition and also in the Philippines.

Know How to Select Food.

A good healthy Canadian takes pleasure in eating about food, and he gets well by using the right kind of food and drink.

He says, "In November, '99, I began to feel bad every day and gradually got worse. I did not lose my appetite. On the contrary after having a good meal I felt better, but after being at work perhaps an hour or so I would have terrible pains all over my body. I lost considerable time from my work, sometimes a few hours and sometimes two or three days.

Finally I went to the Winnipeg hospital for a thorough examination and was told it was 'simply indigestion.' Certainly it was 'simply indigestion,' but I never had anything make me feel worse. I can sympathize with anyone who has 'simply indigestion.'

Well I dragged through the winter in about the same condition and got a little better in the summer, but in October, 1900, the same old pains came back and I concluded I must change my diet if I wished to get any comfort, so I quit drinking tea and worked on Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts Breakfast Food.

I ordered these articles from the grocer and expected to have them delivered, but I never had anything make me feel better, I had felt so bad that day. Of course the grocer was late in delivering them, so I laid on the couch until they came and ate supper about 7 p. m. After supper I did what I had not done for weeks before, I walked into the sitting room, lighted my pipe and read the evening paper and forgot I ever felt bad.

I wondered if the old pain would come back, but it never did, and right from the first I improved. I have since worked constantly and hard and have not laid off once on account of ill health, and have not once suffered from indigestion since the first meal of Grape-Nuts and Postum.

This letter is the straight truth. It may be long, but I don't see how I could tell my experience in less space. Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

A booklet of excellent recipes in each package of Grape-Nuts.

Remarkable Result of an Accident on a Colorado Railway Due to Floods.

FLORENCE, Col., Aug. 6.—A Rio Grande special passenger train from the East, bound to California, and carrying 300 tourists, was drenched just east of Florence, near Swallows. The wreck was caused by the train being struck by a wall of water eight feet high, coming down Peck creek, caused by the heavy rains in the mountains south of here. It was afternoon. The brakeman saw the torrent when it was a short distance from the train. He rushed through the engine coaches and told the passengers to get out. They hurriedly got out on the two rear cars to hurry to the front of the train. Just as the last tourist left the rear car the water struck the cars, and breaking the coupling pins, hurled them into the air and landed them forty feet from the track. The trucks were knocked off the day coach, which, after striking the engine, went into the water and struck the mud. The sleeper was thrown against the farm house of J. George Roberts, which was occupied by himself, wife and three children. The coach formed a wall and turned the water from the house, thus saving the building from going into the river and also the lives of its occupants.

Two Negroes, Both Well-Known Chicago Crooks, Found With Much of the Plunder in Their Possession—Have Been Operating for the Past Ten Days.

Mack Franklin and M. Brown, both crooks, were arrested early yesterday morning by Detectives Frank and Frazer at 49 West Fourth street and were charged with burglary. The men said by the police to be a pair of Chicago crooks that have been working in St. Paul for the past ten days. To them are attributed all the burglaries that have been committed in St. Paul during the past ten days. These were identified later as a pair taken from the Windsor hotel. Although every other portion of his work was carried out by the Ives, these were identified later as a pair taken from the Windsor hotel.

LIVES SAVED BY A TRAIN WRECK

Remarkable Result of an Accident on a Colorado Railway Due to Floods.

FLORENCE, Col., Aug. 6.—A Rio Grande special passenger train from the East, bound to California, and carrying 300 tourists, was drenched just east of Florence, near Swallows. The wreck was caused by the train being struck by a wall of water eight feet high, coming down Peck creek, caused by the heavy rains in the mountains south of here. It was afternoon. The brakeman saw the torrent when it was a short distance from the train. He rushed through the engine coaches and told the passengers to get out. They hurriedly got out on the two rear cars to hurry to the front of the train. Just as the last tourist left the rear car the water struck the cars, and breaking the coupling pins, hurled them into the air and landed them forty feet from the track. The trucks were knocked off the day coach, which, after striking the engine, went into the water and struck the mud. The sleeper was thrown against the farm house of J. George Roberts, which was occupied by himself, wife and three children. The coach formed a wall and turned the water from the house, thus saving the building from going into the river and also the lives of its occupants.
