DRIVING ROD CRACKS ON FAST NORTHERN PACIFIC ENGINE

Crew of Train Discovers Flaw in Time to Prevent Ditching of Cars-Superior Limited Runs in From Hincklev Two Hours Late.

The Superior Limited on the Duluth short line of the Northern Pacific road, tearing its way along the tracks south-ward at the rate of fifty miles an hour, was suddenly halted three miles south of Hinekley yesterday afternoon and the discovery made that another half mile's run would have resulted in the ditching of the train and probably a great loss of life.

Train Is Halted.

The engineer, soon after leaving Hinckley, suspected that something was wrong with the engine, owing to a peculiar rumbling and jarring of the big machine. He brought the train to a stop and investigated. Nearly half an hour was spent in a careful ex-amination, but without any disclos-

While returning to his home at 1 While returning to his home at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, J. Fred Knight was brutally assaulted by a highwayman near the Grand Opera house. He was rendered unconscious by a blow struck with a sandbag and relieved of a gold watch and chain and about $6 in cash.

Knight says he had just passed the opera house door when he was struck from behind. He did not see his assailant, but when he became conscious found that all his valuables had been taken.

The effects stolen are valued at about $75. Knight places the value of the watch at $40 and the chain $30. The holdup men also secured a bunch of keys and a note book. All his pockets were turned inside out, the robbers were turned inside out, the overlooking nothing.

The police do not think that the hold-up was perpetrated by the men who robbed Bammert and Squires late Sat-urday night, as Wilson was under ar-rest when Knight was relieved of his valuables.

Knight lives at 58 Iglehart street and is employed as a clerk in the offices of the Chicago & Great Western

Bammert Robbers Escape.

Two of the men who robbed and Two of the men who robbed and beat Henry Rammert and William O. Squires late Saturday night are still at liberty. The police believe that the men have left the city, as all efforts to run them down yesterday proved futile. More than a score of little children were made supremely happy yesterday afternoon at the auditorium, when Senator Clapp presented the lucky members of the Sunbeam club with prizes, as a reward for work done in gardening during the summer.

About 200 children were present at the exercises. Congressman F. C. Stevens presided and Father Lawler, pastor of the Cathedral delivered a short address. At the close of the exercises Senator Clapp gave the awards to the winners.

Each child who entered the contest had an exhibit of his work at yesterday's meeting. Most of the displays were of flowers but one or two sturdy little boys entered an exhibit of vegetables.

Before presenting the prizes. Senator Clapp delivered a short address complimenting the children on their work and praising them for their industry. The fact that all did not win prizes, he said, was no evidence that their work was not appreciated.

Those who won prizes are: Pauline Kursch, gold watch: Laura Hudek, watch chain; Mable Lovenes, book and picture; Cecilia Sobieski. silver spoon; Katherine Rposch, tollet bottle and picture; Cecilia Sobieski. silver spoon; Katherine Rposch, tollet bottle and picture; Cecilia Sobieski. silver spoon; Katherine Rposch, tollet bottle and picture; Mary Miller, Dicken's Child History of England; Lida Brooks, fancy vase; Elsie Davis, Mound Park picture; Rose Cahn, madona. Boys: Nathan Lofgren, gold watch; Gust Olson, suit of clothes; Benny Anderson, fountain pen; Arthur Pringle, silver watch; Joseph Lally, hat and Dicken's Child History of England.

The meetings of the Sunbeam club have been lelesons in gardening and their work examined weekly by the ladies in charge of the club. Prominent men and women have spoken at the weekly meetings and the little people have been given instructions in etiquette and table manners.

The work was in charge of Mrs. Arthur C. Clark and Mrs. C. El Elititner, Kestertheir whereabouts, although the police gained information which they feel sure will lead to the ultimate arrest of the highwaymen.

Frank Wilson, the man captured by Policeman Frank Bloneck, told Chief O'Connor yesterday that the men are unknown to him. He says he met them in a Jackson street lodging house, where they proposed that he go in the deal.

Wilson confessed to the police that he was implicated in the holdups, but denies that he made a gun play. Chief O'Connor and the department detectives think that Wilson was the tool f the two who escaped.

Although the captured man claims that he does not know his companions, he was able to give an accurate de-scription of them. This tallies with the ones given by Bammert and

Police Have Descriptions.

The men are each about twentyfour years of age, and it is believed that they are desperate characters. So far they have never been apprehended by the police. No Bertillon has ever been taken answering the descriptions; so the police will have to rely on the two victims.

The following descriptions were given out by Chief O'Connor yesterday:

"The men are not more than twentyfour years of age. They are both four years of age. They are both medium built, weighing between 140 and 150 pounds. Both have dark complexions and black hair. One is smooth shaven and the other wears a heavy dark mustache, which he may shave. When last seen the man with the mustache wore a black silk or cotton shirt, with a soft coller attached. The other wore a white shirt, with a red stripe about a quarter of an inch in

J. W. Williams, the brother-in-law of Frank Omlor, the young man who turned down an offer of $5,000 from his father and married the girl of his choice, wants to know what has become of his $70 and his wife. Incidentally Williams has sworn out a warrant for Omlor's arrest, according to a Racine, Wis., dispatch.

Williams accuses Omlor, who boarded at his house until he took his sudden departure, with the theft. Williams cannot explain his wife's conduct in leaving without notifying him.

When a G I o b e reporter called at 129 West Fourth street last night, where Mr. and Mrs. Omlor and Mrs. Williams have been boarding since arriving in St. Paul, the landlady said that they had left the house early in the evening and had not returned home. Their trunks are still in their rooms. Positive information has been secured by the police of the men's actions for the past few days. They are strangers who arrived in the city Thursday. For three days they remained under cover in their room at a Jackson street lodging house and in a Washington street resort. Mrs. Williams, when seen the day of herbrother's marriage to Miss Gottsacker, said that she came to St. Paul for the purpose of assisting her prospective sister-in-law in making her wedding outfit. It was their intention not to be married until Sept. 9, but upon reaching this city changed their minds and sought out a court official without losing any time.

The men may also have been implicated in the Fred Knight holdup near the Grand opera house early yesterday morning, but the police think that they left the city before that time. Over one thousand people attended the picnic at Harriet Island given yesterday by the Hebrew Ladies' Aid society. Shortly after 2 o'clock the pleasure-seekers commenced to arrive and by 4 o'clock the picnic grounds were thronged, a large number of family parties taking advantage of the beautiful weather to enjoy a pleasant outing. Dancing occupied the greater part of the evening, music being furnished by the Postoffice band. The police are fully convinced that the escaped men are dangerous men. Their work shows that they are not green hands, but professionals of high standing. Both men were heavily armed, and the police are surprised that they did not use the guns on Of-ficer Bloneck when he landed Wil-son. The only explanation that the son. #### TELLS IN A LETTER OF SUICIDAL INTENTION

Supposedly, born to endure trouble and harboring a grudge against the world, some unknown man at Winona writes a letter bidding a fond farewell to all "ins fellow men," and stating that he is about to commit suicide as he "cannot go'it no longer."

The letter is dated Sept. 4, and reads as follows:

The letter is dated Sept. 4, and reads as follows:

"To Whom It May Concern—I am just in the act of bidding my fellow men farewell. I am tired of life. I cannot go it no longer. I believe that I am born to have trouble. You will find my remains at the botom of the Mississippi. Let me sleep there, do not trouble yourself about me. I have a grudge against this world and do not want another man to view my face. It would not do to make my acquaintance, as some of my friends would be greatly grieved. Fatewell."

The letter is written in a cramped hand, and is tear-stained. The spelling is poor and the construction indicates that the man labored under great mental strain.

A dispatch from Winona says that no body has been found in the river, but a man who acted queerly was seen in the city Thursday. He disappeared mysteriously after paying his hotel bill Thursday night. It is thought that he may be the author of the letter.

Chief O'Connor has issued orders to all policemen to arrest anyone found writing on the pavement or pasting "ads" on it. The order will be rigidly enforced.

Since April several firms, principally drug manufacturers, have been using the asphalt pavements as billboards. They have men employed painting and writing "ads" on the street until the practice has become a nuisance.

When Chief O'Connor returned from his vacation Tuesday the first thing that he saw was a large sign painted on the pavement at Fourth and Robert streets. "Use Linkey's Liver Pills; they're good for what ails you." At every crossing to the station this or some other "ad" was written. Chief O'Connor decided that such 'enterprise was overstepping the bounds of legitimate trade, so he ordered the practice stopped.

ROASTS FOR J. P. MORGAN. Rev. Morrison Says Financier Is far From Being Peacemaker.

"J. P. Morgan doesn't belong to that class known as peacemakers," declared Rev. Morrison, of the Plymouth Congregational church while discussing the text of his Sunday morning's sermon.

"Peacemakers must be men of broad minds and have large hearts, able to comprehend not only one side, but both sides of the vital question and believed in by adherents of both. They might belong nominally to the one side or the other; they certainly would not be go-betweens and compromisers, but they must be men with genius for thoroughness; that gift which we discribe as the faculty for 'putting yourself in his place."

"But this is nothing more nor less than the spirit of Christianity which commands us to seek not our own good, but the good of others. There is no escaping the obligation which rests upon the church of being the meeting place of all classes, and of being the agency for permeating all life, corporate as well as private, with the spirt of the Prince of Peace.

There has been an epidemic of smallpox at Bridgetown, and on that day a crowd of 500 persons refused to permit the authorities to remove a smallpox patient for isolation. The police were attacked and stoned and several of them were injured. The riot act was read to the crowd and the police charged it. The people fell back cowed and numerous arrests were made.

The authorities at Bridgetown were so alarmed at the disorders that word was sent to the neighboring island of St. Vincent for a warship. The British cruiser Retribution immediately left Kingston for Bridgetown. All was quiet at the latter port when the La Plata left, but the smallpox there continues to increase at an alarming rate.
