MANY LETTERS SAID TO HAVE BEEN FOUND IN HIS APRON

Accused Was Arrested After Two Test Letters That Had Been Previously Prepared by Inspector H. T. Gregory Were Found in His Working Garment, but He Claims It Was Sometimes Worn by Others.

The trial of Harvey S. Rogers, an employe of the Minneapolis postoffice, charged with rifling the United States mails, was taken up yesterday in the United States circuit before Judge Rogers is charged with having extracted from the mails on Aug. 19 two "test" letters that had been placed in the mails by Inspector H. T. Gregory. These letters, with thirty-seven others, were found in Rogers' apron, carefully concealed in his locker on the day they were placed in the office.

Pleads Ignorance of Letters. After Rogers had finished his work on that day he was taken into the ofof Assistant Postmaster Hughes and there searched. Nothing was found on his person, but his apron containing the letters that had been pre-pared was immediately produced. He identified his apron, but pleaded ignorance of the presence of the letters Room Examined by Jurors.

Before the taking of any evidence yesterday afternoon the jury was or-dered taken down into the postoffice room where Rogers was employed, in order that they might get an idea of the location of the different cases, and have a better understanding of the testimony when it was given.

The government will attempt to show that Rogers' rifling of the mails has been conducted in a carefully planned manner for the past two or three years.

Rogers stoutly denies his guilt, and claims that he cannot account for the letters being found in his apron, and also that there has been occasions when his apron was worn by others in the office.

SUES FOR RETURN OF $62,000 PAID ON OPTION

Itasca County Iron Lands the Cause of Claim Made by George C. Howe.

An important suit growing out of a transaction in Itasca county iron lands was begun in the district court yesterday by George C. Howe, of St. Louis county, who sues to recover $62,500 from Mary O. Coates, John Coates, Clark H. Freeman, Daniel H, Freeman, J. O. McClure and C. P. McClure, of Stearns county; and E. H. and E. C. Holden, of St. Paul. The complaint, which is a document of forty closely written pages of legal cap, sets forth a contract by which the plaintiff acquired an option for the purchase of a valuable tract at the price of $750,000. Of this sum, $50,000 was paid to bind the contract, and the plaintiff claims to have spent $12,000 more in exploration of the land for ore deposits, as agreed in the contract. The defendants guaranteed the title, but plaintiff alleges that when this was shown to be defective, they took no adequate steps to perfect it, aiming, as he claims, to retain the $50,000 earnest money.

This is the reason why the much-decried snap shooters are such persistent and absolutely unsquelchable individuals. This is likewise the reason that, in about 99 cases out of 100, they actually succeed in getting snap shots of the famous "side steppers," no matter how frantically the latter strive, or pretend to strive, against the newspaper cameras.

J. Pierpont Morgan, a gentleman who, since he achieved his vast prominence in the world of finance, has unquestionably become afflicted with that malady politely termed "the delirium of grandeur"-the affliction is described in less complimentary phrases when applied to ordinary individuals-blusteringly announced on the deck of the steamer that hauled him into New York harbor the other day that he wouldn't have his picture taken by a newspaper photographer "for $5,000,-That seemed like a pretty fairish bagatelle for immunity from the besiegements of the score or more of newspaper and magazine photographers who hovered about the extremely gruff boss of the financial puddle, but Mr. Morgan might just as well have made his figure rounder by saying $50,-000,000. I've got one, and I'm going to get some others before he gets celebrity, is simply bound to get the off the boat. As for you, I'd recommend you to fetch that club of yours to a parade rest real quick, or I'll just take you by the slack of your waistcoat and toss you over the side, even if you were the secretary to four Mortheir pictures in the newspapers, and gans and a couple of Ahkounds of Swat besides-that's what I'll do with you,

The important secretary subsided promptly, and Mr. Morgan rushed to the purser's room to get away from the ceeds in snap shooting a celebrity while he himself fails in the attempt his position with his newspaper isn't liable to their lenses as he started on his dogtrot, and, with one leg in the air and his yachting cap pulled down over one ear, the eminent financier in these pictures-which were published the next day-only needed a cutlass between his teeth to resemble a glass-eating and sulphur-burning pirate of the Spanish Main as depicted by Howard

Then they all went down in a body to the purser's room, where Mr. Mor-gan had taken refuge. They found him seated in a corner of the room, which, nevertheless, was in a strong light, and very well adapted for the photographic purposes. The great money man was tilted back in a chair, growling angrily, with a cigar clapped into his countenance at the precise angle affected by Chuck Connors, One-eyed Connolly and others of that tribe-which is a little eccentricity of the eminent financier's. One by one the photographers passed before the door of the purser's room, shooting away at the wrathful looking organizer of everything, and the portraits that they thus secured made Mr. Morgan look for all the world like a sullen mastiff just about to make a final effort to chew his tethering rope. Before Mr. Morgan became aware of what they were doing and kicked the these horrible negatives of him. The notable women who, arriving from Europe during the past fortnight, ineffectually strove to escape the cameras, were rewarded for these efforts by having snap shots of themselves published in the yellows that made them look like composites of washer-women, gypsies and chorus girls. The Vanderbilt party tried to keep news-papers, handkerchiefs, parcels and all sorts of things before their faces as they stood upon the pier upon the morning of their arrival, but the photographers, not to be thwarted, buzzed around them like bumblebees, and all succeeded in snap-shooting the women of the party in the most grotesque and absurd attitudes.

The Duchess of Marlborough was in particular the victim of the newspaper cameras. Now, the Duchess of Marlborough is not a pretty woman. She is very far from that, and all of the idealized portraits of her made by French painters and published in the Sunday supplements of the New York yellows will never make her a pretty woman. But she is at least presentable, albeit her figure is slender to the point of emaciation, and her countenance is in no wise interesting. But the snap shots that were taken of the unfortunaate American duchess by the newspaper camera-clickers simply made her out a fright of the most frightful description, and if she saw them she must have wept bitterly over them. The lineaments and figure of her trim mother, Mrs. Belmont, were likewise most wretchedly rendered by the newspaper camera folk, and all because they wriggled about and made such determined efforts—foredoomed to failure—to evade the shap-shooters.

Young Charles Schwab, the president of the big steel outfit, who went to Europe last week to west up after his physical breakdown, apparently profited by these awful examples as he saw them in the yellow newspapers. As he stood on the pier, chatting with some friends while he waited for his steamer to issue the "Ail aboard and all asnore" call, he observed the large flock of men with cameras circling about him. He stepped out into an open space with a

CAPITAL TWO BILLIONS

ONE OF THE BIGGEST OF RAIL-ROAD COMBINATIONS

Pennsylvania and Vanderbilt Interests Said to Have Formed an Alliance-Their Designs Is to Protect Themselves in the Coal Fields-Large Number of Eastern Lines Involved.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 13 .- A local paper prints the following: A financial alliance has been formed by the two great factors in the Eastern railroad field, the Vanderbilt interests and those of the Pennsylvania system.

The new combination grew out of a competitive movement of several months ago. The two big interests were mutually interested in the bituminous coal fields, and in the hard coal fields as well. The Pennsylvania system predominated in the former and the Vanderbilts in the latter. By an understanding the Vanderbilts yielded the soft coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in return for the coal fields to the Pennsylvania in the coal fiel sylvania in return for a similar con-cession on the hard coal from the Pennsylvania.

The Eastern field was threatened by an invasion first by the Goulds and later by the Grand Trunk railroad, and these big financial interests wanted to preserve the territory for themselves, and the ties that had been formed by the coal deal were strengthened in the endeavor to protect the Eastern field. The interests of the two big houses were growing gradually to-gether, and soon resulted in an understanding such as has been now reach-

"fire away-I'll stand up for you. As long as it's bound to be I want to be made to look as human as possible anyhow."

The result was that the snap shots published of Mr. Schwab on the folowing morning did not make him look like a gloomy gorilla or a slouching criminal, but like a cheerful, self-contained man of the world.

Mr. Schwab seemed to have the right end of this photographic business, as the saying goes. The celebrities might just as well stand and deliver to the persons with the cameras. They are inevitably going to be photographed omehow or another, and before long they will unquestionably realize that when they are presented in the picture dailies as freaks, as they have been for a long time, now the joke is on dirt cheap."

Just a little scene that is enacted daily in a little stuffy room of the main entrance of the Milwaukee depot, but to the dozen or more quick-eyed men seated on the rough deal tables that it contains, this harangue of the auc-ioneer means much.

It means that where a year ago every It means that where a year ago every dealer along commission row had to go to Minneapolis to buy his stock of fruit, the lucious, golden products of the West and Northwest are now dumped at his very door and all he has to do is to take his pick, pay his money and the fragrant beauties are rolled directly into his cellar.

City Now a Fruit Center.

St. Paul no longer depends on the Mill City for its fruits. It no longer recognizes Minneapolis as the fruit center of the Northwest, for times have changed and the cars that arrive daily from the West instead of being switched off into the yards of that city now come direct to St. Paul. It is this fact that results in the daily scene just de-scribed and which for nearly a year has been in active operation.

According to J. E. Mulroney, one of the largest dealers in fancy fruits along commission row, nearly 300 cars of California and Western fruit have been auctioned off in the St. Paul railroad yards since the season opened and the yards since the season opened and the number is increasing. The daily sales, he says, never fall below five cars and days that figure is greatly ex-been seen. To consider the vested rights of the two big houses east of Chicago, to say nothing of their property west of that point, gives them a capitalization of over $2,000,000,000 and a mileage of over $3,000.

The roads included in the combination are the New York Central, Penn-

Railroad companies. Every fruit dealer along commission row attends them and when the de-mand is brisk and the offerings few the scene is an interesting and a spirited

Scene a Lively One. With every state in the Union pour-ing in its offerings of garden and or-chard products, commission row along Third street is a busy spot just now. Barrels and crates of every description line its sidewalks and the air is redolent with the odors their contents send Peaches, apples, grapes are now the principal article of commerce with the commission men, that is those whose ousiness is exclusively the handling of fruit. The vegetable man is also in evidence, but he is confining his atto potatoes and garden products in season. The peach naturally heads the list, for this is the time of the year California and Washington begin to turn fornia and Washington begin to turn in their harvest. The fruit is of excellent quality and brings the dealer from $1 to $1.10 a case. Next week St. Paul will be sampling the fruit of the Colorado peach orchards, the finest fruit sold in this section. It is an extremely fine, solid fruit and wholesales about double the price of the California product.

California product.

Lovers of apples will probably rejoice in the announcement that there is a big crop of apples this year, in Canada especially. The price, however, has by especially. The price, however, has by no means slumped, for the North this time must contribute to the South, where the crop in some respects is a failure. In Iowa and Wisconsin the orchards are full of this fruit, and it

Weather Hurts Market.

Weather Hurts Market.

St. Paul at present is enjoying the benefits of an ill wind in a surfeit of watermelons caused by the sudden cold weather. The dealers have several carloads on hand and are selling them for what they can get. Another fruit that is somewhat of a drag because of the bad weather is lemons. More than one commission man is out of pocket because of heavy stocks. The cool summer is responsible.

About the costliest fruit just now is the orange, of which it is said there is not over a carload in the city. They are what are known as Valencias, and sell for from $5 to $5.50 a box. As it will be some weeks before the California, Mexican and Florida oranges arrive, the price is expected to rise.

arrive, the price is expected to rise.

Next to peaches and apples, grapes and pears are the heaviest in point of and pears are the heaviest in point of receipts along commission row. The grapes come from Michigan and neighboring states, while California and Oregon furnish the pears. The crop is fair in size and quality, and has a ready sale. The grapes bring from 14 to 15 cents a basket, while the pears sell at $2.25 a case for the California product and $1.75 for the Oregon and Washington product.

Other fruits which are heavy sellers

Other fruits which are heavy sellers are sweet potatoes and plume. The price is $2.75 a bushel for potatoes and $1.25 a case for plums.

Of bananas this year there is no scarcity. The trust is not permitting a glut, but it is extending some clemency to the dealers by permitting them to buy from the track instead of at the ports of entry, the principal of which is New Orleans. Carloads of the fruit reach St. Paul weekly and are purchased by the dealers. Before purchases had to be made at New Orleans, the buyer paying the freight.

Several Stillwater housewives are several Stillwater housewives are anxiously awaiting the arrival of sets of dishes they ordered through an alleged magazine publishing company some weeks ago, and for which each of them deposited magazine publishing company some weeks ago, and for which each of them deposited $5 in cash. A little more than a month ago two well dressed youn men spent two weeks here soliciting subscriptions for a magazine, the price of which was 15 cents a month. As a premium, however, the subscribers were to receive a set of dishes when $5 had been paid. The solicitors evidently did not get rich enough on the 15-cent plan, and after they had waited two weeks they visited their subscribers and informed them that some of the subscribers were anxious to get their dishes right away and they had arranged to pay $5 down. The solicitors represented that it would be much more convenient for all of their subscribers to do the same so that all of the dishes could be ordered at once. Several of them contributed the required sums and have been waiting patiently ever since for the dishes which have not arrived. They are now confident that they were "worked." The solicitors claimed that their magazine was printed in New York city, but the price of the publication was not given, neither had the magazine been admitted to the mails.

Whose Manhood Is Slipping Away

Your manhood is failing and will soon be lost unless you do something for yourself. There is no time to lose impotency (lost manhood) is never on the standstill. Either you must master it or it will master you and fill your whole future with indescribable woe. Now, right now, is the time to save yourself. Once cured by us, you will never again be bothered with weak organs, prematureness, loss of ambition, nervousness, failing memory, or other similar symptoms, which rob you ambition, nervousness, failing memory, or other similar symptoms, which rob your manhood and absolutely unfit you for study, business, pleasure or marriage. This is the punishment meted out by nature for violating, the laws of health.

HOW TO ESCAPE THIS PUNISHMENT

There is only one sure way in this life. Nature in all such cases is weak and crying out for help. The wasting processes, with losses and leakages, have wrought an injury to those particular organs, causing them to shrink, shrivel and decrease in size, to become overworked and lack proper circulation and nourishment, shattering the nervous system, impairing the memory, dulling the intellect, and preventing free, easy action of the brain, deranging both body and mind, and the crisis sooner or later surely will come. Now, to check this wasting process, stop all losses and leakages, and resupply the lost vitality is to repair the injury that has been done. Nature is then given a chance to recuperate. The circulation is equalized and both body and brain are given a new impetus by merely aiding nature at the right time and in the proper way. A course of the New Treatment will do this. It is for weak men of all ages who are in every way weak. We will restore you to what nature intended you to be -a hale, hearty, happy man, with physical and mental powers complete.
