The state expects to prove that "Reddy" Cohen, under instructions from the chief, later informed the women that they must pay tribute to him at his jewelry store on Washington ave nue; that the money was paid in num-bered envelopes, no names appearing, and that three or four times this money was paid by the state's witness under those same circumstances. Addie Mills, named in the indictment, was the first important witness. Her story was a detailed account of the call made by Supt. Ames; of his order not to pay any more money to Gardner; of the coming of Cohen, who said he was under orders from the chief, and of the arrangements made for the payment of tribute. On cross-examination the Mills woman surprised the attorneys for the defense, who attempted to se-cure an admission that she had paid the money under no promise of pro-tection, by stating that Chief Ames personally had promised her such protection when she visited him in his of-Jessie Harris, 251 Hennepin avenue,

Advice, and Ames Gets No Pay.

The city council, at its meeting last evening, by a vote of 20 to 3, decided that Mayor Ames should not draw salary for the month of September. This was in face of the statement of City Attorney Healy, to the effect that A. A. Ames was de jure mayor of the city, and could collect the money in the courts. The three negative votes were cast by Ald. Foell, Mumm and Adams, one Democrat and two Republicans.

Acting Mayor Jones voted in favor of "docking" his honor the $166.66 to which he is entitled under the law. Ald. Schoonmaker was the man who proposed to cut the mayor off the pay roll. Ald. S. E. Adams asked for information, and when informed that the mayor had a legal claim against the city, moved to pay the mayor his salary.

Ald. Flolmes, President Jones' colleague from the Flith ward, gave notice that at the next meeting of the council he would move to reconsider the vote, so there is a possibility that the mayor may receive the money.

General Shortage of the Crop, So We Must Seek Them Elsewhere- Apples Are Plentiful Crop.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. — The Irish potato famine of last year threatens to be almost repeated this winter, and the product will have to be imported again from Europe to satisfy the demand. of a mile—the deepest bore made—the temperature had increased by 80 degrees Fahrenheit. It is known, too, that the surface layer, to about 100 feet deep, is subject to changes due to whether the sun is striking upon it or not, but that at the depth of 100 feet the temperature is constant at 52 degrees Fahrenheit, and is constantly flowing off from the interior.

on Recent Seismic Outbreaks.

Since the eruption of May 8 in Martinique volcanoes in many parts of the world have been showing marked activity, and earthquakes Zave been numerous. The list given herewith suffices to show the widespread nature of the vibrations and disturbances. From Alaska to South America. From Europe to New Zealand, where the great Waimangu geyser has burst into activity and thrown 800 feet high its column of blackish water, and far away to the ever boiling pit of the Mauna Loa, in the center of the Pacific, this awesome and often death dealing activity has passed as by some subterranean sympathy.

The insistence of the reports, according to the Sphere, of London, brings the question of a possible connection into vivid prominence, and emphasizes the fact that it is necessary for us to know more of the interior of the globe if we would guard ourselves as a race from these seismic and eruptive menades. At present our knowledge is not by any-means absolute.

It is known from actual experiments in deep boring that the temperature of the garth increases 1 degree Fahrenheit, and the depth of 100 feet the temperature is constant at 52 degrees Fahrenheit, and the center from the earth increase Fahrenheit, and the depth of 200 feet the temperature is constant at 52 degrees Fahrenheit, and the center in the semilations, and the depth of a mile the temperature is constantly flowing off from the insertive. But beyond the depth of a mile the temperature of the interior is uncertain. From astronomical calculations it is evident that, the earth acts as a solid body, or at least as a rigid body. The temperature at the center must, from the superimposed pressure, be sufficient to not only melt, but vaporize, under ordinary conditions, any known substance, but matter at the center of the earth is not under surface conditions, and it also appears that the melting point of rock is raised under great pressure, so that for all the great heat the rock need not for this reason be in a fluid condition, and the fact t
