Fresh Action in Coal Strike Believed to Have Been Decided Upon

EXTENDED CONFERENCE

Four Cabinet Members and Commissioner Wright Closed With the President.

NO DETAILS OF THE MEETING ALLOWED TO LEAK OUT

Belief Prevails, However, That It Was Decided to Ask the Coal Miners to Return to Work and Have Congress and the Pennsylvania Legislature In- vestigate the Anthracite Situation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 5.—In an earnest effort to expedite the adjustment of the coal strike problem, another conference over the situation was held at the White house today and adjourned after three hours of deliberation. No statement was given out as to the conclusions reached and every participant refused to discuss the meeting.

The conference was called for today, although it was Sunday, in view of the extraordinary importance to the people of a speedy solution of the question. Besides the president there were present Secretary of War Root, Secretary of the Navy Moody, Attorney General Knox, Postmaster General Payne and Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor. The last named was summoned on account of his expert knowledge of the situation in the anthracite coal fields.

Most of Them Lawyers.

It was notable that only four of the members of the cabinet were present. This, however, was significant only of the fact that three of these four were lawyers and that the issue involved was one which called for the deliberation of trained legal minds. The fourth, Postmaster General Payne, had taken a prominent part in the conferences over the coal situation which led up to the conference of operators and miners' representatives on Friday. Besides, he has taken great interest in matters identified with the present situation. The fact that Mr. Payne has also been one of the closest advisers for many years in the national councils of his party likewise is important in connection with the personnel of the conference. It began shortly after 10 o'clock this morning.

President Talks Earnestly.

The president, in expressing his views, talked earnestly and showed a deep feeling. His voice at times could be heard down stairs. Several times Secretary Cortelyou was summoned and directed to prepare certain matters for the consideration of the president and his advisers. The president indicated that some action was about to be consummated. Every member of the cabinet and Col. Wright, the only outsider who was present, were pledged to the president to secrecy as to what had occurred. Not since the Spanish war has there been such reticence shown at a conference of this character as was shown today. It is almost impossible to do more than draw the most general of conclusions as to the nature of the proceedings based upon what preceded them.

Entitled to Some Return.

He feels that he can hardly expect them to make the sacrifice of all of their contentions to end the strike. It is at least a promise of some return and the question before him is as to his ability to do this. He can pledge himself to appeal to congress to examine into the justice of the miners' complaints and remedy them so far as lies in the power of the legislative branch, backed by the earnest good will of the executive. He can also suggest to Gov. Stone of Pennsylvania, that he cause the Pennsylvania legislature likewise to make an inquiry and perhaps hasten the usual methods by calling an extraordinary session. But these pledges would be given only on condition that the men go at once into the mine and get out with all speed the coal for which the people are suffering.

Messages Probably Sent Out.

So it is believed that today's conference was called by the president with the purpose of putting in exact shape the details of any message to be sent before the departure of President Mitchell last Friday from the mixed conference. The three hours spent in consultation today were none too long to put into form the twin propositions—one to the miners' organization and the other to Gov. Stone—and the fact that Secretary Cortelyou was called on to prepare one or more statements at the direction of the president is taken as an indication that messages were sent out at the end of the conference today and that the reticence of all of the parties is explainable by their desire to avoid the discourtesy of publishing the nature of these before they are received by the persons to whom they are addressed, as well as by a wish to escape the complications furnished by heated public discussion at this stage.

That the parties to the conference

MORMON DESCANTS ON BLOOD ATONEMENT

Says Teachings of His Church Had Nothing to Do With the Murder of Mrs. Pulitzer.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 5.—The seventy-second semi-annual conference of the Church of Latter Day Saints is in session here, and the officials are refuting in the most emphatic language the published statements that impugn the teachings of the church.

The murder is magnified every day in the newspapers. They try to bring the blame for the crime upon the church. They say in flaming headlines that this murder resulted from the doctrines of the Mormon church.

They say the Mormons believe in blood atonement. So do all Christian nations. They believe, or pretend to believe, in the atoning blood of Christ for sin. They say the Mormons believe in another kind of blood atonement. Well, we do to the same extent that every state in the nation believes in it.

Some years ago another man's blood shall have his own blood spilled by the law.

"This we believe and nothing more. We do not believe in executing him in the electric chair, but we believe that 'he who spills man's blood, by man shall his blood be spilled,' and, thank God, there were enough in the constitutional convention of this state who, realizing the meaning of this, gave the murderer the death penalty.

Some years ago another man's blood spilled by shooting, if he had any regard for the teachings of God left in him?"

Mr. Rich read a signed statement, made by the presidency of the church in 1887, in which they denied that any apostles had been killed, or that the church advocated or permitted any such teachings, and in which they denounced murder as the most heinous of all crimes.

Mr. Rich said: "Some years ago the minister of a church in this city murdered two girls, carved them to pieces and burned their bodies in the furnace. Did the Mormons say he was following the doctrines of his church? No. They knew that if he had been following the teachings of his church he would never have done such a thing. And if Hooper Young had been following the teachings of the Mormon church he would have been out in the streets telling the wicked of their sins instead of languishing in jail as he now is."

Francis William Reitz Reaches the United States to Do Some Lecturing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A committee of Boer sympathizers, including representatives of the Irish-American societies, welcomed today Francis William Reitz, formerly secretary of state of the Orange Free State, who arrived with his wife.

GERMAN EMPEROR PLANS FOR TUSKEGEE BOYS

Says Negroes Have Been Successful Teachers in the German Possessions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—So successful has emperor William found the experiment of employing Southern negroes to instruct the natives of the German possessions in Western South Africa in practical methods of cultivating cotton, that he has requested that other graduates from the Tuskegee (Ala.) college be sent at once.

Booker T. Washington is now here to arrange for the transportation of three who will sail early next week in response to the request of the emperor.

All negotiations have been conducted through the German embassy with the Washington officials, by whom the report of the first expedition sent out to Africa by Booker T. Washington has just been received.

This expedition, made up of five students trained in the cultivation of cotton from the actual as well as the theoretical standpoint, left about two years ago, and the result of their work der the delusion that the Sisters of St. Joseph were responsible for her death, he visited their institution yesterday and threatened to murder all the nuns. It was only after a terrific battle with house doctors and nurses that Moran was ejected and prevented from carrying to completion his desperate plan.

For almost an hour after he was ejected from the hospital, the man walked up and down in front of the institution, raving like one mad, and calling down upon the sisters all the curses at his command. Finally the police were notified, and Moran was led away by Officer Maloney. He left under protest, threatening to return and avenge his wife's death.

Her Illness Unnerves Him.

Moran's friends say that the death of his wife has unbalanced his mind. In fact he has not been himself for several weeks, during which time Mrs. Moran had been at the hospital.

Her sickness preyed heavily upon him and for some time past the man has been unable to work. Last Tuesday he was ejected from his home, 64 Broadway, for alleged non-payment of rent. This incident aggravated the nervous disorder from which the man was suffering.

Saturday the crash came. Mrs. Moran, who for eight weeks had been ill at the city hospital, suffering from tubercular peritonitis, expired. Moran was told of her death by a friend.

The news seemed to daze him. Then he cried like a child. For three hours nothing could be done to console the heart-broken man.

Raves of Dead Wife.

Like a flash something seemed to pass before his mind. His tears dried. The expression on his face became as hard as stone. With a cry of distress he shouted that they had murdered his "Mary." Words failed to quiet him. He raved like a maniac. At intervals he would stop and, as if addressing his deceased wife, he would say:

"They have killed you, Mary, and now I have no one to care for me. They have even taken my home from me, and you must be buried like a pauper."

Then the mad spell would again come upon him and his cries, muttered with curses, could be heard for blocks.

Late Saturday night he was arrested and taken to the central police station. He seemed perfectly rational when in the custody of the police and promised to behave himself if allowed his liberty.

August Baumgartner, who occupied the lower flat in the house where Moran formerly lived, took the man to his home.

Yesterday afternoon the madman again came upon him. While Baumgartner was busy with household affairs Moran quietly slipped away from the house. He went directly to St. Joseph's hospital, arriving there shortly before 5 o'clock.

"I want my wife," cried the man as he entered the hospital.

MORGAN FINDS BERNINI'S LONG LOST STATUE

Search for This Work of Art Has Been Continued Many Years.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Another unique work of art is reported from Europe to have passed into the possession of J. Pierpont Morgan. It is the long missing bust of King Charles I., by the famous Neapolitan sculptor, Bernini, and for which Van Dyck painted the well known picture in which the ill-fated king's face is shown in three different positions.

The great sculptor was fascinated by the picture, as thousands have been since. "It is the face of one doomed to direct misfortune," he remarked as he was working on the bust. By the time it was finished King Charles had been put to death and the bust remained in the studio of Bernini, who regarded it as his masterpiece. Then it disappeared.

It has been sought all over Europe, large sums of money being spent, especially by the Roman banker, the late Prince Torlonia, in an endeavor to find it. What the prince failed to accomplish has now been achieved by one of those clever agents whom J. Pierpont Morgan keeps employed all the year round in hunting up art treasures, and it will now go to join his magnificent collection in London, which he would be perfectly ready to bring to this country were it not for the enormous duties he would be called upon to pay here on bringing his collections into the United States.

Unknown Man Who Killed a Railroad Fireman Is Shot by a Cook in a Lumber Camp.

MARINETTE, Wis., Oct. 5.—The insane man who is supposed to have shot and killed John Koucha, a fireman on the St. Paul railroad, who was fatally wounded in his cab last week while the train was speeding along at twenty-five miles an hour, was killed yesterday twenty-five miles west of Wausaukee. Otto Wenzel, a cook in Charles May's lumber camp, shot him as he was coming toward the camp and he died an hour later.

For a week past the entire country around Amberg, Pembine and Dunbar has been in a state of alarm over the presence of the insane man, whose identity is yet unknown, but whose name is supposed to be Raymond. The hunters left the woods, men in lumber camps kept their rifles loaded waiting for him, and on all the trains people were warned not to go on the platforms between Amberg and Pembine.

Saturday morning Wenzel saw the insane man coming toward the camp. He warned him to stop, but the fellow never heeded him. He fired a shot over his head, but he kept right on, and the next shot struck him over the
