ENDEAVORERS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE STATE GATHER IN ST. PAUL

16TH ANNUAL CONVENTION OPENS AUSPICIOUSLY

Assemblage at Central Presbyterian Church is Signaled by Exhibitions of Good Fellowship and Enthusiasm

PROGRAMME FOR TODAY.

- 8:00-9:00-Quiet hour. 10:00-11:00-Christian Endeavor and Home Missions. 11:00-12:00-Address "Power Our Need."

The sixteenth annual state convention of the Minnesota Christian Endeavor union opened last evening with devotional exercises at the Central Presbyterian church.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. H. O. Judd, of Ceylon, Minn. The quartette, composed of Messrs. Jaeger, McCallery, Netherland and Goddess, sang several hymns, among which were the "Lord's Prayer" and "Oh, Saving Victor."

Delegates Are Welcomed.

"I am very glad to have this early opportunity of meeting the Christian Endeavor members of the state, to have the pleasure of welcoming you to this church for your convention and of speaking a brief message to you tonight."

"If my memory serves me right, the Christian Endeavor society is just of age, twenty-one years old last February. Twenty-one years ago this society was launched in the extreme northeastern corner of our land, and the whole country was waiting for it."

"On the human side there are two principles at work in Christian endeavor, and they are enthusiasm and consecration. They are both good, but there is a difference, and one is better than the other."

Russia Trying to Get Possession of the Dardanelles Through Revival of an Old Treaty.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—In a dispatch from Bucharest, Roumania, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says he has just returned from Constantinople.

This treaty, which really placed Turkey in the position of a subject state of Russia, lasted eight years; but on account of the opposition of the Western powers it was not renewed.

The Turkish court and government were thrown into consternation, fearing that the Russian intention to enforce her wishes.

COULD THEY HAVE LIVED

THEY WOULD HAVE TRADED

But Both Died as They Were Getting Close to It.

"It happened to be in a Vermont town for four or five days three years ago," said the stove agent, "and on the evening of my arrival two of the old settlers who were hanging out at the tavern."

"'Silas,' one would say, 'I ain't claimin' that this is the best watch in Vermont, but what I want you to understand is that it hasn't lost a minute in thirty years.'"

"'That may be, Joel,' the other would reply, 'but mine beats it for historical interest. You know a sort of Gen. Putnam used to carry this watch.'"

"'Gen. Putnam was a mighty brave man,'"

"'And so was his son.'"

"'But that's got nothin' to do with watches. I might trade with you for $2 to boot Silas, seein' it's you, but I couldn't trade with you for your watch.'"

"'I'm ainkin' $3 the other way, Joel, and so I don't see how we can possibly trade.'"

"'That's the way they were talking when I left town,' continued the drummer, 'and two months ago, when I happened to be in the same town again, it occurred to me to ask the landlady if she had ever been effected.'"

"'No, they never traded,' he replied. 'Couldn't come to terms, eh?'"

"'But not of the same disease?' I asked."

"'I think it was. Leastwise, both was found dead in their beds with their old watches in their hands, and the doctors said they had talked themselves to death. I think they ought to have stopped talkin' for a while and played a few games of checkers to get their breathin'.'—Detroit Free Press.

MUST STOP SMOKING

OHAGE WINS HIS FIGHT AGAINST REPEAL OF SMOKE ORDINANCE

OPPOSITION LOSES BEFORE THE ASSEMBLY

Arnold's Attempt to Repeal the Anti-Smoke Law Is Defeated in One House of the Council—Health Commissioner Gets Personal in Some Remarks.

Assembly Arnold's attempt to repeal the smoke ordinance met with signal defeat at the meeting of the assembly last evening.

For the purpose of influencing the appeal a large number of apartment house and business block owners were in attendance, but the pleas made by those selected as spokesmen unexpectedly had the reverse effect.

"I see," said Dr. Ohage in opening the discussion, "that three of the members of the committee on streets gave their indorsement to the proposed repeal, and I can readily understand how it came about. Mr. Doran favored it because he was sincere in the matter, Mr. Rosen because he is a chronic offender, and Mr. Arnold for the reason that he is a speculator."

There is no good reason for this repeal to former conditions, and I think under the terms of this body, as a rule, agree with me."

Following this little fling at two of his avowed enemies, Dr. Ohage showed how a great injustice would be done to the masses by the repeal, and that at a time of such a crisis as this, when the city is in a state of financial straits, it would be a crime to repeal the law.

"Let the chimneys smoke; it shows prosperity, was the burden of Maj. Espey's remarks in appearing in behalf of the repeal. 'Why Cleveland and Pittsburg are the smokiest cities in the United States,' said the major in explanation, 'and they are among the richest and most prosperous. We've got to use bituminous fuel and show the anthracite people we can get along without them, and we can't do it without making some smoke.'"

Arguments Are Lost. A representative of the Cathcart Renting agency took the plea for the repeal, but found his road a hard one to travel when Dr. Ohage pointed out to him that he was appearing in behalf of the repeal.

He was chief clerk for five years for Warden Glennon, of the penitentiary, and in the penitentiary he became a master of the Spanish language.

THIEF AT DULUTH CAPTURES DIAMONDS

Wife of a Lumberman Lays Them on the Counter of a Bank and Away They Go.

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 16.—Seven thousand dollars worth of diamonds and precious stones were stolen from the counter in the First National bank building late this afternoon.

The diamonds were in the possession of Mrs. Merrill, a prominent society woman and wife of the senior member of the firm of Merrill & Kling, lumbermen.

Mrs. Merrill had just come from the safety deposit vaults, where she drew out the jewels, and lay them down, then leaving the building. Discovering her loss, she hastened back, but the jewels had disappeared. The police say there is no clue to the thief.

The letter found in the man's possession was read by the coroner. It described the writer's lapses into intemperance and consequent sojourns in jail.

"As far as I am concerned, in no other place can I evolve thoughts of this kind out in 'air' (i. e., prison). I am writing this letter in a public house in South Lambert road, but if you put $21 on this table I am staying at the style of thought would not come to me now, but I can compose them like lightning, only I have to commit them to memory."

"The still, small voice. Amidst the ceaseless swirl of worlds untold, Through the wide expanse which knows no end, Across the stretch which void is void is void, God's scepters sway when all in all death denied."

Seven other verses followed. The jury returned a verdict of accidental poisoning.—London Mail, Sept. 13.

HOW HEROIC BLANEY PRODUCES A BATTLE

Two Supers With Horsewhips and Coconuts Provided; Noise for the Trouble.

"Soak it, Si!" "Ain't I hittin' it right?" "Wallop it in the middle, the boss is looking."

"I've always heard money was easy in the big cities, but I never dreamed I'd see the day when I'd get paid 25 cents for slugging a buggy seat with the butt end of a whalebone whip."

"They are upon us! The Filipinos! Must defend the blockhouse with our lives boys! Hurray for the star-spangled banner!"

"A little stronger on the musketry there."

"Musketry, Si—that's us. Knock the cover clean off from the blooming thing."

This colloquy, with slight interpolations from the lines of the play, took place last evening between two "supers" at the Grand opera house.

They were seated on the floor behind the wings of the first entrance and they were doing their best to be a whole infantry regiment.

They were country boys and the manufacture of noise by means of a leather pad and a whip was just like taking candy from children for them. Truly, they were to the "manner" born.

If the volume of noise produced in a show were its criterion the offering of Harry Clay Blaney at the Grand opera house would get all the china sets.

There's a hero and a heroine and a funny Irish soldier and all kinds of "avaunt villain" stuff. The real nice man and the regular devil of a fellow get together in due fashion, and the subreprete gets in front of things at opportune moments.

The closing scene, however, is the limit. The setting is that of the interior of a blockhouse. The opera bouffe Allegretto and the audience as Filipinos are going to do things. That's as far as the spectator sets.

Suddenly there is a rattle—two ruralities with buggy seats—and a roar—a box full of electricity worked from a switch. A third actor enters. Back on the other side of an abbreviated "flat" and throws coconuts loaded with powder into the mix-up and everything is started.

Of course, "Our Hero," Mr. Blaney, has to fire off two pistols, and it wouldn't be natural if the Irish comedian didn't twist the handle of a Gatling gun and raise the racket in anybody else.

There is a deafening roar of charged coconuts, electric bombs and blank cartridges and the audience is quite sure that Harry Clay Blaney is a perfectly lovely hero. It takes nine men to shovel the smoke out.

Hammer's BEER

GUSTAV A. RENZ, M.D. LOWNY BUILDING ST. PAUL, MINN. St. Paul, Minn. Sept 25, 1902

I desire to state that at of our request I made a thorough examination of local beers sold in this market, among them yours, and have no hesitation in saying that I found your beer to be an absolutely pure, well matured and healthful product.

In fact, of the samples examined by me, yours was, particularly with reference to purity and age, above the others.

I would further say that these examinations were made by me without in formation to indicate the or manufacturers of the respective brands until after the completion of the analysis.

Respectfully Yours,
