

WILL GO AFTER AMES

W. H. JOHNSON, ONE OF MAYOR'S BONDSMEN, ANNOUNCES HIS INTENTION TO DO SO

HIS BONDS HAVE BEEN DECLARED FORFEITED

Reported From West Baden, Ind., That Dr. Ames Is a Very Sick Man, Fainted Away When He Heard the News of His Brother Fred's Conviction.

Dr. A. A. Ames will have to return to Minneapolis and take his medicine. The failure of the famous executive to return has resulted in a forfeiture of his bonds of $10,000, and the bondsmen are Thomas Lowry, William Boutell, Fred Schick and William H. Johnson, are in a state of anxiety.

W. H. Johnson, one of the bondsmen, is superintendent of the poor. He has written to Dr. Ames, according to all accounts, that if he doesn't return when he is called for next time, he Johnson will go after him. At all events, it is a settled fact that the bonds will not be reinstated unless Dr. Ames makes his appearance in court.

He says the doctor is a very sick man, and the indications are that he will never recover from his present ailment. He saw the doctor almost every day while he was there, and he is confident that he is not shamming sickness in St. Paul. He has just returned from West Baden, Ind., where he has been for some time repairing the roof of the West Baden hospital, of which Dr. Ames is the medical director.

Mr. Roberts says he is unable to travel.

SHOWS FEAT OF EATING.

Margaret Ryan Feats the Dyspepsia by Fasting Nineteen Days.

The starvation diet promises to be as popular as any of the innumerable fads that are making their way into the filing cabinets with new magazines.

Yesterday Margaret Ryan, of South Omaha, a young girl of twenty, who has for five years been a dyspeptic, and who, on her arrival here three weeks ago, had been unable to eat a morsel of food, completed a nineteen-day fast, and left for her home accompanied by her mother. The case has been looked after by the same Minneapolis doctor whose advocacy of fasting as a cure for most of his patients has attracted much attention recently.

"I was horribly ill when I came here," said Miss Ryan yesterday at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Ellen Rooney, 229 Plymouth street, "and I was not allowed to drink anything but water, and hot water, too, for five days. After that they let me eat without restriction, but really I believe one might become accustomed to doing without food entirely, for I have not felt any ill effects."

Timothy D. Sullivan, who is known throughout the country as the famous statesman of the Bowery, expects to have a walk-over in his race for congress as Democratic nominee in the English New York district. It is the wealthiest district in the country, embracing as it does Wall street and the whole downtown business section of New York. Tim promises to make them "get a move on" when he goes to Washington.

It seems to me that I have now a morbid appetite, because a little milk I have been drinking for the last two days has satisfied it, and the doctors at the end of my nineteen-day fast I had lost sixteen pounds, and I was so weak that I could walk and I am glad to be without it.

"So far as starving to death is concerned, I believe any healthy person could fast a month without suffering permanent damage. After the first few days one feels a positive delight in being released from the thrall of three meals a day."

TO FORM INDEPENDENT BOARD.

Anti-Chamber of Commerce Brokers Will Meet Today for That Purpose.

A meeting will be held this afternoon at the offices of the Independent Elevator company, of this city, to perfect preliminary steps to the establishment of an independent board of trade in Minneapolis.

It is understood that about thirty of the Northwest elevator companies are to be present, and that final action will be taken at the meeting to secure a building in Minneapolis and be ready for business under new auspices on Jan. 1.

The Minneapolis brokers who are affiliated with the regular chamber of commerce seat at the meeting of the independent board of trade can be a success, and insist that the whole scheme is a bluff on the part of the chamber of commerce in Minneapolis, backed by the agents of that firm in various parts of the state and North Dakota, as well as the Canadian Northwest.

George J. Hammond, of the Coo Commission company, insists that he is not the prime mover in the new organization, but that he has merely acted as a secretary and will continue to do so. Moreover, he is confident that it will be a success, as the committee of the independent board is sufficient to carry the plan to a finish.

The Coo commission people have a most intricate system of leased wires, threading the entire Canadian Northwest, Washington and the Western states generally. These wires will form the nucleus of the new board's service, which is to be made by extension of lines.

The man had disposed of $40 in this way when he was taken in hand by a friend, who compelled the miner to desist by throwing him to the ground and tying his hands behind him with a large red bandanna.

John Crouth, who had charge of Waldemar, said that the latter had been hit on the head with a slip in one of the mines eight weeks ago, and that he had since been somewhat deranged and occasionally violent. WOMEN DRIVEN FROM HOME.

Looses Child in the Woods and Has a Dreadful Experience.

Special to The Globe. WISCONSIN, Oct. 23.—Sunday night C. P. Larson, residing eight miles north of this village, is said to have threatened the lives of his family, according to his wife's story, he procured his rifle and a club, driving his wife, who is a most estimable lady, at the point of his gun out into the darkness and rain. There was no nearer neighbor than six miles distant. It was necessary for her to make her way through the forests, and the intense darkness and rain caused her to become lost and for several hours she wandered about in the woods and was at the point of sinking to the cold wet ground when the howling of the timber wolves not far distant caused her to seek the home of her friends shortly after midnight. She was wet and chilled through. She received the best nursing from her friends and with difficulty recovered sufficiently from her exhausted condition to tell her story. Her baby she had been compelled to abandon in her flight, but she was afraid that if she returned for the little one, her husband would exterminate the entire family.

The following day the neighbors looked after the care of the remainder of the children. Today the woman was brought to this village, suffering from nervous prostration. The frightful visions caused by her husband's threats, together with the awful experience of that fearful night in the forest, was a severe shock to the woman's nerves and she is in a critical condition. It is her intention to begin an action for divorce.

BUTTERMAKERS PROPOSE AN ASSURMENT ON EVERY POUND PRODUCED

PROCEEDS TO BE USED TO PROTECT DAIRY INTERESTS

H. J. Nietert, of Walker, Iowa, Elected President of the Organization—Senator Spooner Bids Up and Gives the Delegates a Fine Bit of Jolly.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 23.—United States Senator John C. Spooner was given a rousing reception at the buttermakers' convention today. The senator was introduced by ex-Gov. W. D. Hoard, president of the National Dairy union, which held a session to consider matters pertaining to legislation. Mr. Spooner made a few remarks, thanking the buttermakers for their greeting. He said that in the matter of oleomargarine legislation he did what he could for the American cow. He was convinced of the greatness and importance of the dairy industry, and it seemed to him that the time had come for national legislation in behalf of that great interest, in guarding against the sale of the product of the hog as well as that of the cow. The buttermakers were proud of the result of that legislation and he was glad of it.

W. D. Hoard was re-elected president of the National Dairy union. The creamery convention was resumed this afternoon, when addresses were made by F. C. Butter, of Iowa, on "Preparing the Output Packages Against Mold" and by J. S. Moore, of Albion, Wis., on "Are the Wages of Buttermakers on Keeping With Like Kind of Service and Responsibilities?"
