

Not as Important

TURKEY DRESSING isn't half as important as DRESSING FOR THE TURKEY and for the festive occasion when that noble bird is the central attraction. Don't pamper your stomach and degrade your back. Don't sit down to your Thanksgiving Dinner in a Shabby Suit of Clothes. Get a GOOD SUIT. Be sure it's all wool, cut well, made well, and that it has a Good Guarantee behind it—that's the kind we sell. And, best of all, it costs you less to buy Good Clothing here than you'll be asked to pay for the clumsy sorts at most of the other store. Our very low prices are made possible by our own workrooms and the conducting of one line of business on so large a scale. New Suits and Overcoats $10 and $12 to $25.

NO CLOTHING FITS LIKE OURS.

WILL SEND $2.50 FREE.

Franklin Miles, D. O., L. L. B., the Eminent Chicago Specialist, Will Send $2.50 Worth of His New Treatment Free.

That Dr. Miles is one of the most successful and reliable of physicians is proven by hundreds of testimonials from well known people. One patient cured after failure of eleven other Rapid physicians, two after having been given up by six or seven Chicago physicians, another after one of the leading doctors in New York City, Philadelphia and Chicago had failed. Thousand of testimonials sent on request.

The late Prof. J. S. Jewell, M. D., editor of the Journal of Nervous and Mental Diseases, published at Chicago, advised Dr. Miles to "by all means publish your surprising results." Prof. J. E. Ross, M. D., President of Rush Medical College, wrote in 1874: "Dr. Miles has taken my course of my private instruction in diseases of the heart and lungs." Col. N. G. Parker, Ex-Treasurer of the South Carolina "I believe Dr. Miles to be an attentive and skillful physician in a field which requires the best qualities of head and heart." Col. A. M. Tucker, late General Manager of N. Y. L. E. & W. R. R., says: "Dr. Miles' success as a physician has been phenomenal." Col. E. E. Spelman, of the 8th Regular, U. S. A., San Diego, Cal., says: "Your Special Treatment has worked wonders when all else failed. I had employed the best medical talent and had spent $2,000."

When an experienced and wealthy physician offers to prescribe free $40.00 worth of treatment for diseases of the heart, nerves, stomach, or dropsy, it is conclusive evidence that he has great faith in his skill. And when hundreds of prominent men and women freely testify to his unusual skill and the superiority of his New Personal Treatment, his liberality is certainly worthy of serious consideration. The Doctor's new system of treatment is thoroughly scientific and immensely superior to ordinary methods.

As all afflicted readers may have $2.50 worth of treatment specially prescribed for each case, free, with full directions, we would advise them to send for a Copy-righted Examination Chart at once. Address Dr. Franklin Miles, 201 to 219, State Street, Chicago, Ill. Mention St. Paul Sunday Globe.

WINONA LOSES TO ST. PAUL CENTRAL

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL ELEVEN PILES UP A DECISIVE SCORE

YELLOW AND BLACK MEN MAKE COSTLY FUMBLER

Visitors Show Strong on the Offensive, but Errors Spoil All This—McGregor's Long Run the Exciting Feature—Pretty Trick-Play Is Spoiled by Referee.

The proud Winona high school football team brought its clean record to St. Paul yesterday afternoon and the St. Paul Central high warriors spread the first blot on the Winona escutcheon. Final score, St. Paul Central, 11; Winona, 0.

Though the local high school won by a decisive score the game was a pretty battle and was hard fought from the kickoff to the final whistle. Winona was defeated, but she was not outclassed. The visitors can blame their own fumbles for the failure to at least tie the score.

Winona went down because she had a strong offense that was spoiled by rank fumbles and a weak defense. True, the yellow and black players braced time and time again and forced the Central team to hand over the ball after it had been carried to within a few feet of the goal line, but this defense was not regular, and the Central worked in their counters between periods.

St. Paul had an offense that was good enough for the irregular defense of the visitors, but the red and black did not have a defense able to stop the Winona players, and here is where the costly fumbles saved St. Paul.

First Half Even.

The game was almost an even thing through the first half. Winona kicked off and Central started to rush the back with straight line bucks. Rader and McGregor, who had been carrying the ball, waited, and Todd after this directed his plays at the Winona line.

It was hard work, and on the 20-yard line Winona strengthened and held the Central. Shepard punted to the middle field.

Winona started to play the offense the Central used, and she sent her men at the Central tackles and ends, and for a time it looked like a march to a touchdown, when one of the fumbles interfered.

Central now had the ball in Winona territory, and the red and black worked harder than ever, but Winona braced again on her 12-yard line and got the ball. She worked back eight yards, when another fumble gave Central her first chance for a score. A quarter-back kick, a trick play, was used and got the ball to the 5-yard line, but Referee Maxwell called the ball back, claiming that two men behind the runner were in motion before the ball was in play. Central, after this, confined her attack to straight line bucks, and a new attack before the first half ended pushed Rader over the line for a touchdown. Rader's kick went wild.

Winona Strong Here.

In the second half Winona showed a wonderful improvement in form and started in to tie the score in a hurry. Luck looked with her, for twice the backs fumbled and twice other Winona players fell on the ball. Snatches at the line brought the oval dangerously close to the Central line, and then Pringle's men braced and got the ball.

For the next ten minutes the teams played even, and the battle was fought in the center of the field. Central was held and was compelled to punt, and he dodged Kramer, who was playing for a good distance. Winona could not gain and kicked to Todd on Central's 10-yard line. He fumbled, but got the ball back.

Central was close to her line, but she tried an end run, and Woods carried the ball out of danger with a long sprint around the left end for 12 yards. Central returned to line bucks and pushed Winona to the center of the field.

McGregor Breaks Through.

Onward and line McGregor was given the ball on what looked like a double pass. The play fooled Winona, and the Central back shot through the line. McGregor, who was playing close to the line, and with Pringle behind him, ran the ball back of the Winona goal posts and the second touchdown. Rader kicked goal. Play ended with the ball in Central's possession on the Winona 40-yard line. The line up:

Central.	Positions.	Winona.
Brill	L. E. Tim Considine
Swartz	L. G. Hermann
Pringle	G. G. Kjelland
Clark	R. G. G. G.
Rader	R. T. Oech
Swenson	R. E. E.
Downing	L. H. Tom Considine
McGregor	R. H. Markle
Shepard	Shepard

Final score: Central high, 11; Winona, 0.

Just before the end of the first half Godbey was injured in a scrimmage, but insisted on staying in the game. He played all through the game, but the field suddenly fell unconscious. The injured player was at once conveyed to a hospital, where physicians found he had suffered a concussion of the brain. Up to 11 o'clock tonight he had not regained consciousness.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The horse show ended tonight after the most successful exhibition in its history. Two exciting incidents occurred during the day. In one, S. W. A coachman was thrown from a runaway, but pluckily retained his hold of the reins and brought his horse to a standstill.

Y. M. C. A. Defeats Stars.

The Y. M. C. A. indoor baseball team defeated the Port Street Stars in an interesting game last night. The Stars played a fast fielding game, but Vervall's poor work in the box gave the Y. M. C. A. the game. The Y. M. C. A. won by a score of 10 to 6.

Websters Win Game.

The Websters defeated the St. Thomas Thirteenth by the score of 12 to 6. Touchdowns were made for the Websters by Kipp and De Batside.

Wrestling Bears.

A center of interest at the New York Zoological garden is the great bear, a one of the most attractive animals in the den in which are kept the enormous Russian bear and a common American brown bear.

These two big brutes are living the most pleasant and sportive of lives. They play with each other constantly and their antics are so strikingly similar to those of clumsy human beings that the spectators cheer them on in their games as they would rival athletes.

Favorite Sport of the Two Bears is wrestling. There hardly is an hour in the day when they are not at it. They usually have their contest on the very edge of their swimming pool, and the great object of each bear is to hurt the other into the water.

When one of the bears feels like a little fun of this kind he shuffles over to where his friend is resting and lifts him awkwardly on his hind feet. He then steps on the other chap or teases him in some manner.

When the reclining bear accepts the challenge he rises and then the standing upright just like men, advance cautiously toward each other, each trying to get the best hold, exactly like a human wrestler would do.

Finally they close and hug. Then they sway back and forth and pull and push and heave at each other.

Sometimes one will try to trip the other one and so throw him, but the bear wrestlers are shifty and can get around wonderfully well and are not easily thrown. They are not so much as a rule the throw must be accomplished by main strength.

When a bear finally is thrown he goes into the pool with such a splash that the water flies all over the cave. The wrestling matches are always in solemn earnest and each bear evidently tries his level best to get the other one down. But neither animal ever loses his temper, and after one is dumped into the pool he climbs out again as good-natured as ever and is ready to begin over again without a sign of malice.—New York Sun.

What Becomes of Old Shoes.

Old shoes in Europe are not waste from the standpoint of modern industry. After they have done their service they are discarded and the first wearers, a second-hand dealer restores the worn shoes to something like their former appearance, and they are sold again to be worn a little by the poorer classes.

When the shoes are finally discarded by them they are still good for various purposes.

In France such shoes are bought up by quantities by rag dealers and sold to factories where the shoes are first taken apart and submitted to long processes which turn them into paste, from which the material is transformed into an imitation leather, appearing very much like the finest morocco.

Upon this material stylish designs are stamped, and wall papers, trunk coverings, and similar articles are manufactured from it.—Exchange.

SHOT FOOD FROM GUN

SHIPWRECKED SAILOR, STARVING, IS VERY EASILY FED

Life Savers Load a Cannon With Steaks and Such and Shoot the Combination to a Sailor in the Rigging of Wrecked Ship—Tale of a Drummer.

Such a disagreeable storm was raging on Saturday night that no more than a dozen men were found gathered around the stove at the postoffice to wait for the mail from Hinkley. And because a commercial traveler from New York, who was staying over in order to go hunting rabbits next day, was present, and because the woodmen are usually shy in the presence of city strangers, those who had come were unusually quiet. The only semblance of life in the assembly, beyond an occasional remark about the weather, during the first hour or so, was when one of the men reached across the counter, and picking up some crackers from a convenient barrel, said:

"Pears like I can't get enough to eat now in weather like this. I et four plates of fried potatoes for supper, but I'm hungry enough now to eat the coddy course, and answered: The sailor signaled:

"Deed, get me off till the sea goes down. The mast is sound, and I have a good bed in the sail. Just send off some grub, and I'll be right up. Haven't had a bite since last night."

"He's asking for grub," said the keeper, and he took the sailor's fellow, he's going crazy, and won't last long now. But I'll hunt for him."

"Then he signaled to the sailor: "I know you were hungry, but I can't think of any way to send you grub to you. Can you?"

"Sure," answered the sailor. "It's dead easy. Load your gun with beststeaks and fire them against the masthead."

"That's so!" said the keeper, jumping as if he'd been spanked. "I wonder, I didn't think of that before. I'll do it."

So the sailor, who had been long enough to put fire to a fresh cigar, and then continued:

"See, it's a pleasure to tell this story to men of knowledge like yourselves. Important people in the city sometimes think I'm a fool, but you gentlemen, who can pump a Winchester as fast as a deer can jump and aim him every shot, will appreciate what I'm going to tell you. The livesavers brought a platter full of his round steaks, about two thick, with a big chunk of suet on top. They'd bought it for their supper, but they cut it into steaks, and putting a bit of suet in next to the powder, with the steak on top, they aimed the gun carefully and fired charge after charge off to the starving sailor. You see, the name of the powder broiled the steak and the suet melted into gravy. Every place of steak steak and suet, and the sailor caught them all as they re-bounded. The keeper said that he fired at every pound and five ounces—no, it was five pounds and three ounces of steak, I remember now. And the sailor ate every shred of it. You see how it was that I couldn't help thinking about the way when your neighbors here said the storm made him hungry."—New York Times.
