MAYOR AMES IS STILL AT LARGE

HIS TRUNKS SAID TO BE IN BOSTON, BUT THE GENIAL DOCTOR IS NOT WITH THEM

THOSE WHO KNOW SAY HE'S ON THE WAY TO MEXICO

Telegrams From New England Locate Him in Several Places in Massachusetts, Including Springfield—Sheriff's Office is Criticized for Permitting the Doctor to Get Away.

A. A. Ames is still at large. He is not likely to be arrested if well-informed Minneapolis men are telling the truth. It is true that certain trunks bearing the reputation of being Ames' trunks, have been seized by the vigilant police of Boston, but there is no surety that Ames is anywhere near the trunks. It is to be borne in mind that the ex-mayor of Minneapolis has been associated with police work for a number of years, and that he is up to a good many tricks of the police.

On the way to Mexico. People here who are on the inside do not make any bones of saying that Ames is headed for neither Boston or Montreal. On the contrary, he is said to be traveling in leisurely fashion on the Mexican rail, all oblivious of the wild excitement his affairs are creating in the staid parlors of effete New England.

Telegrams from Massachusetts points yesterday and last night located Ames in half a dozen different places. It was asserted that he had applied for rooms at an uptown hotel, but that he promptly thereafter pulled out for Springfield. The proprietor of the uptown hotel is looking for advertising.

The latest theory of the police and other official theorists is that Ames is off for Montreal, and that from there he hopes to get abroad. If he is the gentlemen who are stalling for him in Minneapolis have done their work bravely.

Somerville One of the Places. Special to The Globe. BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 10.—The Somerville police were notified today to be on the watch for ex-Mayor A. A. Ames, who is thought to be hiding in that suburban city. Lieut. Carter and Inspector Carlton were detailed by Chief Parkhurst to search for Ames, but no trace of the fugitive has been discovered. The chase, however, will not be given up as it seems very probable that Ames has friends in Somerville. After his baggage was seized last night officers watched at both the Back Bay and Terminal stations but without success. This morn-

SENATOR HANNA CONTINUES THE WORK OF PEACEMAKER

Re-elected Chairman of Industrial Department of Civic Federation.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Chairman Hanna, in closing the discussion at the session of the industrial department of the National Civic federation today, declared himself opposed to the claim that labor unions should be incorporated. Regarding the work of the civic federation he said: "For myself I feel greatly encouraged by the renewed public interest in this great question and by the interest of those who have been present with us here."

He did not expect, he said, any great results, but the committee would continue to work, would increase its personnel and would keep up with or a little ahead of public opinion. He declared himself opposed to compulsory arbitration. The solution of the labor problem, he declared, would result from the conference of employers and employees with the one desire to do what is best for both.

The committee elected the following officers for next year: Senator Marcus Hanna, chairman; Oscar Strauss, director; President Samuel Gompers, second vice president; Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer; Ralph E. Castley, general secretary. It was decided that the committee would hold semi-annual meetings hereafter in May and December instead of annual meetings and that local organizations shall be established in the larger cities for the purpose of carrying on the educational work of the organization. The conference then adjourned.

LINUS II, OREGON'S FREAK HORSE, SAILS FOR LONDON

Has a Tail 19 Feet Long and Mane Measures 13 Feet.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—On board the Atlantic transport from New York, which sailed Saturday from New York, was the last of the Oregon wonder horses, Linus II, bound for London. Linus II is shipped in the name of Bostock to the Bostock syndicate, of London, Glasgow and Paris, for the London hippodrome. Mr. Bostock paid a large sum, said to be $15,000, to Rutherford Bros. & Co., of Wadlington, N. Y., for the animal, and secured the horse for insurance in several companies for a total of $40,000, in charge of his trainer, Silas Beebe.

Linus II, eight years old, is a rich chestnut, with an amber mane and tail. His mane on each side is a little more than 19 feet long, while the tail measures 19 feet. It takes two hours to properly groom him. His mane and tail are each tied up in many separate folds, the mane being many times the thickness of that of an ordinary horse. It is expected that he will create a sensation on the other side of the water. The first of this breed of horses was Oregon Beauty, a freak foaled in Oregon. His only progeny was Linus, whose only living descendant is Linus II, out of the Morgan mare, Morgan Jennie. A peculiar fact in regard to these three generations is that in each the length of the mane and tail increased. Oregon Beauty was worked on a farm until thirteen years old before being put on exhibition, and in 1874 he was killed by lightning. Linus, sire of Linus II, died in 1894 at Calais, Me.

KEEPING IT UP.

EMPHATIC TALK BY ST. PAUL CITIZENS.

Every day in the year some resident of St. Paul is telling a friend or neighbor about experiences with Doan's Kidney Pills. No such emphatic endorsement was ever given for any modern medicine. Read what this citizen says: Mrs. John C. Arnet, of 216 Acker street, who says: "Mr. Arnet derived great benefit from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. For considerable length of time he was greatly troubled from the lack of proper action of his kidneys, especially if he caught cold, when the pain and aching became intense. An advertisement in our daily paper led him to go to F. M. Parker's drug store, corner of Wabasha and Fifth streets, and get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. Its use soon relieved him and demonstrated the great value of this preparation."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

To Prove What the Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, Will Do for YOU, Every Reader of the "Globe" May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free by Mail.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work. For, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected, and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly" begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for many kinds of diseases, and if permitted to continue much suffering with fatal results is sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, and you will receive the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours, on an examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in the private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves who have kidney ailments, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy for kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase it from your druggist, or you may have a sample bottle of this wonderful remedy, Swamp-Root, sent absolutely free by mail, also a book telling all about Swamp-Root, and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonials received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the great curative properties of Swamp-Root. WITH THE MOONSHINERS

PECULIAR TRAITS OF THOSE INHABITING WEST VIRGINIA

Suspicious of Strangers, but Hospitable and Warm-Hearted—Remarkably Illiterate and Totally Ignorant of the Outside World—They Guard Their Women Jealously.

The slight touch of my foot released a stone, and, as it clattered down the path, I heard an involuntary "Oh!" and, looking up, saw a typical beauty of the West Virginia mountains. I staid myself and offered an humble apology for intruding upon her, at such an inopportune moment. The grim humor of her countenance never relaxed for an instant as she queried: "What do you uns want?"

I told her that I was merely prospecting. "For what?" "Coal," I replied. "Huh! It's just full on it over there." We stood regarding each other for a moment. I didn't care a snap for coal, or oil, or gas just then; I had stumbled upon a rare flower of the mountain fastnesses and revelled in the exquisite picture she presented, the left hand holding a cloth on the ribs of the washboard, the other half clutched at her side; both arms as superbly modeled as any that ever graced an artist's studio, bared close to the shoulders; the hair, dark brown, towed over a face that almost baffled description owing to the grim humor which held its lineaments so firm, and all offset by a simple work-a-day gown (for that matter, it might have been her Sunday gown) which fitted her strong and resolute figure most charmingly.

"Winchester was Handy. "Dad ain't home," she said, suddenly turning her eyes in a direction which led me to discern a little shack far back among the trees behind her. This was wash-board country, and on wash day. "Sides he don't want no one round yere," and then, with a graceful sweep of her arm, she indicated that the interview was over and plunged her hands into the suds of her tub. The washerwoman, however, sitting down on a rock reposed into silent admiration of the manner in which she washed the "duds," yet I marveled why she took piece after piece and rubbed and twisted and scrubbed them, when, as a matter of fact they should have been out to dry on the bushes long before. The reason was not obvious to me at that moment, though it should not have escaped me, but later I learned that she was on guard for her father and brothers, who were busy back in the hills "running off" their last mash, and if I had attempted to pass the girl at the tub there would have been trouble, for on the other side of the trough which carried the water from the little spring there lay a Winchester of the latest model and fully loaded, and the girl at the tub was a dead-sure shot.

I was in the heart of the moonshine district, far back among the mountains of St. Nicholas county, where the people adhered to only one sentiment, "Maintain competency in the education; say Latin's no use to a guy because it's a dead language." "Well, it is a dead one, ain't it?" "Harvard Hasben—Sure, and so would I have been a dead one, once or twice, if I hadn't been able to translate "Cave Canem!"—Philadelphia Press.

Beware of the Dog. Harvard Hasben—Some capitalists, I see, are opposed to a college education; say Latin's no use to a guy because it's a dead language. "Well, it is a dead one, ain't it?" "Harvard Hasben—Sure, and so would I have been a dead one, once or twice, if I hadn't been able to translate "Cave Canem!"—Philadelphia Press.

Another Northfield. The notice in yesterday's Globe of the Northfield training school referred to an institution at the Massachusetts, not the Minnesota, town of that name.

Why They Grinned. One bitterly cold day last winter a young woman left Lewiston on her way to Berlin. The rings of ice on the engine froze in mid air and lay like big white-frosted doughnuts in the circumference of the wheels. The windows were fogged with ice and when the girl reached the main line, the cars on a Grand Trunk train were as cold as a barn without clapboards. The windows were frosted over an inch thick, and despite the fact that the workman could not raise the temperature.

Silvering and shaking, the girl looked at the other passengers, searching for a nose which looked redder than hers felt. It was her gaze ricocheted down the car. It met that of a traveling man, who grinned openly.

When she again looked up at the man the cheerful grin lingered about his mouth. She transferred her gaze to the man across the aisle. Lo, he too, smiled broadly and with a puzzling significance.

The girl was bewildered. She covertly examined her gloves, and mentally reviewed her wardrobe to see what could cause the smile. Then she happened another look. A third man caught her eye this time and his grin was broadcast of all.

The girl's dander began to rise so thoroughly that she grew uncomfortably warm. Squaring herself with a firm slam, she tried to look out through the window, but the glare of the sun in large script in the rime, she read: IF YOU LOVE ME, —Lewiston (Maine) Journal.

Speaking of education, the mountaineers except those who live within a few miles of the belt, are not literate. They cannot read, and it would be useless for anyone to tell them of the wonderful things to be found in the world outside their diatribe den. They will simply stare at you, not in amazement, but stupidity.

Stuart's farmhouse, and to do with the glories of New York, her wonderful thoroughfares, massive white skyscrapers, beautiful theaters and all the other things which make life worth living in a great city, when Old Bill and the women are as skilled as the men in the use of the revolver. For days the women are on some secret mission the women are merely having to say that I had stopped at Bill Stuart's house for a week.

Many of the women are as skilled with the gun as the men. They have been trained to it from the time they could handle a twenty-two-caliber rifle. The women are as skilled as the men in the use of the revolver. For days the women are on some secret mission the women are merely having to say that I had stopped at Bill Stuart's house for a week.

And this little incident brings me up to a potent matter, namely, the morality of the mountaineers. They are far better than many of the residents of towns and cities. They have a code of honor among themselves which is as simple as their lives. Their only fault is a total disregard of their obligations to Uncle Sam. They believe it is right to raise coal, and to do with the product as they please. They insist that they will not trouble the outside world if they can get away with it without trouble. If there should be a conflict, then there will be trouble.

They guard their women jealously, and the women, as a rule, are as expert as many of their sisters in large communities. The reigning social vice of the city is unknown. A girl grows up in ignorance of such things, and there is no mirror in her room to send the thrill of vanity and passion into the soul as her budding charms are unfolding. Should some wayfarer tempt her into an indiscretion and the moment arrives when she realizes her condition, he had better remain far away and never cross her path, else her early training with the gun would prove his destruction.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
