TRACED BY BLOOD HOUNDS AND ARRESTED

Charles Crandall, of Perry, Iowa, Accused of Being Member of a Party of Bank Robbers That Shot and Wounded Bank President's Son.

PERRY, Iowa, Jan. 17.—Henri M. Patee, son of the president of the National bank of this city, was shot by robbers early today. He was awakened by a noise in the rear of the house, and taking a revolver, slipped out on the back porch. In an instant he was confronted by two men. He grappled with one, and in the struggle the robber wrenched the gun from Patee and shot him in the breast, inflicting a dangerous if not fatal wound. Blood hounds were placed on the track of the man who did the shooting, and took the trail which led to the home of Stephen Crandall. Crandall was placed under arrest, and is being held for investigation.

STONE FOR STATE CAPITOL.

Preparing for New Structure in South Dakota.
Special to The Globe, S. D., Jan. 17.—The first contest of note on the floor of the senate occurred this afternoon in an effort on the part of Senator Smith to amend the bill to employ special counsel to aid state's attorney. The cost from the salary of the attorney, which effort was defeated. An appropriation bill was introduced for $125,000 for the agricultural college, also a bill for a permanent militia camp ground at Lake Kampeska. The principal house introduced were to employ tax ferrets to provide punishment for failure to list property for taxation and to authorize the warden at the penitentiary to get out stone for the state capitol building at any place selected by the people at the election next year.

ESCAPES FROM HER ABDUCTOR.

Kansas School Teacher Refuses to Marry Against Her Will.
LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 17.—Bumbed from cold, almost to the point of freezing, and frightened into a nervous state bordering on prostration, Miss Pearl Smith, a school teacher just across the Kansas line, escaped at Trenton, Neb., from George Franklin, who had kidnapped her and driven twenty miles in a fruitless endeavor to force her to become his bride. Franklin was a rejected suitor. Last night he enticed her into a buggy and then gave the lash to the horse, declaring his intention of taking her where she would be compelled to marry him. The night was cold and Miss Smith suffered severely. Arriving at Trenton, Franklin took her to a hotel, Miss Smith feigned submission, but while he was off his guard she leaped out of a second-story

COAL DEALERS ARE INDICATED IN CHICAGO

No Less Than Forty Voted by the Special Grand Jury—Some of the Accused Stand High in the Business and Social Worlds.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Forty indictments have been voted by the special grand jury which have been investigating the causes for the shortage of coal in Chicago. Not a name was held out, it being declared by State's Attorney Deenah that inasmuch as the indictments had been merely voted and not returned, the names of the accused men would be announced before Monday morning, when the jury will convene. It is said that the men against whom it is intended to return indictments stand high in the business and social world. This fact was given by the state's attorney as one of the reasons why the names of the accused men should not be given out tonight.

The decision to vote the indictments was reached at 11 o'clock tonight. In analyzing the evidence the jurors believe they have found a combination existing between the operators, the jobbers and wholesalers and the retailers, covering the course of the coal supply from the mine to the consumers.

Find a Compact.

They also discovered the understanding existing between the operators of the various states, the Illinois Coal Operators' association and the Northern Illinois Soft Coal association being in collusion with the Illinois Coal Operators' association in an attempt to govern the whole bituminous supply of the two states.

What application the conspiracy act could have to the local dealers and operators in the face of the fact that the combination in general was the hard question for the jurors, but the attorneys explained that as soon as the coal was brought into Illinois the possessor of it in any quantity was liable to be amenable. With this in mind the jury continued the taking of corroborative testimony.

The retail dealer's association of Illinois and Wisconsin was the subject of long examination and consideration. This association consists of the smaller retail dealers from Chicago, and the members denied before the jury that there had been any agreement concerning the maintenance of a schedule. The object of the organization was urged, was to arrange for an equitable supply and to furnish reports of the credit reputation of consumers.

Federal Grand Jury Appealed To.

In the report which the grand jury is to make Monday it is asserted that the federal grand jury is urged to investigate more thoroughly the actions of the coal men in addition to being guilty of conspiracy. It is said that the coal men have also grievously violated the anti-trust laws and the interstate commerce laws.

It is because of the Illinois' men's dealings with the Indiana Coal Operators' association that the federal grand jury may be asked to act, for it is by such dealings that the interstate commerce laws have been violated.

MINE WORKERS' CONVENTION.

Demand of Increased Pay in Bituminous District to Be Made.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 17.—President John Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, is expected to arrive in Indianapolis from Philadelphia tomorrow afternoon. Monday morning President Mitchell will open the miners' convention, Monday night will occur a public demonstration, at which much speaking will be done.

The annual convention will be made up of 1,200 delegates, representing twenty-four states. During the first ten days the regular business will come before the delegates and the wage demands to be made on the operators in the bituminous coal district, which is composed of Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania and Ohio, will be formulated. It is thought that the convention will decide on a demand ranging from 15 to 20 per cent, and that they will get about 10 per cent.

The wage conference between the workers and the operators' arrangement committee for the competitive district will begin in Indianapolis Jan. 30. Besides the advance of 15,000,000 on the security of the assets of the Transvaal.

No Duty Will Be Collected.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 17.—The treasury department received inquiries today as to whether the government proposes to admit coal into the United States free of duty under the act approved Jan. 15, or to collect the duty and then refund it to the importers. In view of the fact that the wording of the act leaves some doubt as to the real purpose of congress, Chairman Payne, of the House ways and means committee, was consulted today and his answer leaves no doubt that it was the intention of congress that no duty be collected. The solicitor of the treasury also gave an opinion which he held that under the act coal must be admitted free in the same way that certain articles on the free list are admitted under the tariff act. The department circular of yesterday saying that no duty be collected on coal will stand.

Coal One Way, Grain Another.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 17.—The coal shortage in Chicago has opened up the opportunity for a new business venture and Samuel Born, of La Fayette, has taken advantage of it. He will ship coal to Chicago in box cars from the cities around the falls of the Ohio and the cars will come back loaded with grain. By making an arrangement with Indiana and Illinois grain dealers he has been enabled to assure the railroads that their cars will be loaded both ways. On this assurance, it is said, two railroad companies have guaranteed to furnish him with the necessary cars.

Leave Only Dust.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jan. 17.—A mob, including over 200 men, women, boys and girls, today seized five cars of soft coal which had just arrived in the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroad yards, consigned to the National Malleable Castings company and local oil men. There was no attempt to stop the raid. Nothing but dust was left in the cars.

Chance to Earn Coal.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Standard Oil company has adopted a plan to go into effect at a plant at Constable Hook, Bayonne, N. J., where 4,000 men are employed, to give to each man who responds to a fire at the Bayonne plant one ton of coal.

Out of the Ice.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Jan. 17.—The being fast in the ice off this harbor for four days. A thousand tons of freight are tied up at this wharve because of the blockade at this port.

FINANCING SOUTH AFRICAN COLONIES

Mr. Chamberlain Makes First Announcement of the Details.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Jan. 17.—A banquet was given here this evening in honor of Secretary Chamberlain. High Commissioner Lord Milner and Gen. Botha were among the 400 guests. Mr. Chamberlain was received with enthusiasm and delivered a speech in which he gave for the first time the details which had been arranged for financing the new colonies. The colonial secretary described the arrangement as "an unprecedented ac-

ROMANCES OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND

Its History Teems With Stories of Love, Hatred and Adventure.

The Bank of England—that rambling ramshackle, loose-jointed structure of new use. In less than half an hour the inkstands had been melted and turned into bullets.

From these windows poured a deadly volley, and when the smoke finally cleared away 205 rioters lay still or writhing in the agony of mortal wounds on the open space now covered by the esplanade of the royal exchange. The attacking army wavered, stopped, broke line and fled, and the Gordon riots were at an end. In the early days of George II it was the custom of all banks to give a receipt in payment of a deposit, the receipts being passed from hand to hand and serving the same purpose as the check of today.

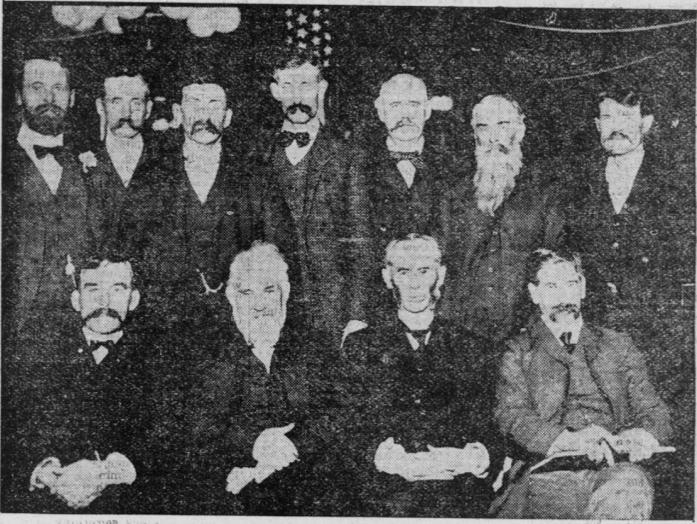

The growing power of Childs, a private bank, which at that time had the backing of half the English nobility, had become a matter of serious alarm to the Bank of England, whose notes were at a discount of 10 per cent. And so little by little, through their agents, the managers of the Bank of England world who can save us—you, our patron, and to you we turn in our need. Without a word the duchess sat down at her writing table and wrote out a check and handed it to the bank's agent. It was an order on the Bank of England for the payment of £700,000 ($3,500,000).

"Take this check to the Bank of England. Tell them that if they hesitate for one single instant in paying it I'll proclaim them as defaulters. But you will see they won't refuse. The £300,000 may be useful as a margin in case of necessity." The hour of noon saw the Bank of England's agent at Childs' counter, blandly presenting the big bagful of receipts and deftly suggesting immediate payment. But even at that moment Childs' clerk was in Threadneedle street receiving cash on the duchess' check.

Childs' cashiers displayed all the preliminary symptoms of blindness for it took them fully a half hour to scrutinize even the first batch of the receipts, and they were at the end of the first hundred when their messenger returned. Then they suddenly recovered their eyesight, and within ten minutes the Bank of England had been paid literally in its own coin. The net result of the whole transaction was that Childs' bank was many thousand pounds richer, since which time the Bank of England has not looked for a fight.—London Correspondent New York World.

tion on the part of the imperial government," and one which is satisfactory to the representative associations which met in Johannesburg today. The proposal, he said, was, first, that the government undertake to submit to the imperial parliament a bill to guarantee a loan of $15,000,000 on the security of the assets of the Transvaal.

A number of South African financiers had undertaken to subscribe the $15,000,000 without receiving preferential security. Up to a few hours before the banquet he had not received the authority of the home government to deal finally with the matter of the war contributions, and he declared that the reports hitherto published which purported to give details of the financial arrangement were premature, unauthorized and for the most part incorrect.

gray stone, blackened by centuries of London smoke, London grime and London soot, and forming an almost complete square from Threadneedle street in the south to Coleman street in the north does not at first sight seem a likely place for romance, and yet its history teems with stories of love, hatred, ambition, rascality and adventure.

William Paterson, who at one time of his life had controlled every private that ran the Spanish main, was the founder of his fortune in the buying and selling of slaves and the clearing of £100,000 as his share of the gold found on the sunken Spanish galleon. It was with this £100,000 and the profit derived from his buccannering expedition that Paterson, banished to Holland by James II, and the implacable enemy of the Stuarts, found part of the money for the Prince of Orange's expedition across the Boyne.

A National Bank.

Concurrently with the advent of William III on the throne of England the first plans for the foundation of a national bank were made, and those who know of the inside history of those times doubt not that William III was, indeed, the moving spirit of the scheme and that Paterson was his official tool and mouthpiece at the weekly meetings or famous gatherings of financiers known as the Wednesday club.

Blood red in the annals of the bank lives the story of Charles Walter Godfrey, partner of Paterson. Crossing the channel in the teeth of a fierce storm and laden with £50,000 ($300,000) in drafts for the aid of King William, at that time besieging Namur against the forces of Fourteenth Louis, Godfrey insisted on his right to deliver the warrant for the money into the hands of the king, who was then in the trenches under a hot fire. And as, with humble obedience, he handed the paper to his taciturn majesty, saying in response to the king's gruff remonstrance, "Am I then more exposed to danger than you, sir?" a cannon ball swept his head away.

Over the massive fireplace in the directors' room stood some years ago three rusty spears and one old Brown Bess, together with a number of roughly shaped bullets. In these relics is embodied a picture of that dreadful night in the November of 1780, when that mob of Gordon rioters marched down from Newgate, setting fire to every Catholic chapel on the line of march and advancing with a force of 5,000 upon the bank.

Bullets From Inkstands. Then was it that the clerks, armed with muskets, remembered that they were unprovided with shot. Before they lay rows of leaden inkstands, mutely suggesting the possibilities of a Salt of the Earth.

The press cables report that Dr. Koupape, of St. Petersburg removed the heart from a child who had died twenty-four hours before and the use of a certain salt solution had it beat with normal regularity for one hour. The statement is couched in terms of great interest. The use of massage, needle punctures or stimulation by electricity or alcohol has started hearts that had ceased to beat and prolonged life for some hours, and within ten minutes the crisis to the crisis to safety, but this achievement is a step in advance. Salt seems to be connected with very vital processes. It has been urged that its over-use causes cancer, and evidence appears to favor the contention. Not long since it was reported that by means of a salt solution in which chloride of sodium figured prominently, but this is certainly a matter for congratulation that the distribution of salt on the earth is not such as to lend itself kindly to the grasp of a monopoly, so that, when salt becomes the property of a few, the forces, in the future we may appreciate why three-fourths of the earth's surface is occupied by salt water.—American Medical Journal.
