THEY OBJECT TO THE MAKING OF SHOES BY CONVICTS

Delegation of Boot and Shoe Workers Protest to Governor and Board of Control That the State Prison Output Injures Workers Outside the Prison.

The advisability of doing away with the making of shoes by convict labor in the state prison at Stillwater was strongly presented to Gov. Van Sant yesterday by a delegation representing the various Boot and Shoe Workers' unions of the state.

The conference was held at the capitol, and Gov. Van Sant, Warden Wolf-er, of the state prison, and Charles Leavett, Gould and Martin, of the state board of control listened to the statements made by the delegation representing the several unions.

C. E. James, business agent for the unions and president of the St. Paul Trades and Labor assembly, was the spokesman, and he urged that some action be taken which would do away with the making of shoes by convict labor. The output from the prison was 1,200 pairs of shoes daily, and the effect was detrimental to the workers engaged outside the prison. He suggested that the convicts could be kept busy on varied industries, and it might be well to follow the plan adopted by New York and have all the state printing done in the prison.

Shoes Not Sold in Minnesota.
 Warden Wolf-er said that none of the shoes manufactured in the prison were sold in the state, and only 200 of the convicts were engaged in this line of work. There would be a large output of binding twine this year, and this would require many of the men now engaged in making shoes, to handle the twine.

Mr. James, in reply, declared that the sale of the convict manufactured shoes outside the state brought the union-made goods in competition, as if the purchasers did not buy the prison-made shoes, they would have to purchase the others.

Gov. Van Sant promised the delegation that he would give the matter his attention, and Labor Commissioner O'Donnell is to correspond with the union leaders in regard to securing information as to the various industries in which the convicts are engaged in that state.

REFUSES TO TESTIFY AGAINST HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Flaherty Declines to Prosecute Him for Striking Her With Hatchet.

Michael Flaherty, who lives in the "Hollow," was in police court yesterday to answer a charge of having struck his wife with a hatchet the night last week, but when the case was called Mrs. Flaherty, with her head well bandaged, appeared to the court to allow her husband to go, and when Judge Pinehout refused to do so, the woman became defiant and said she would not appear to testify.

"You'll be here when the case is called tomorrow morning or I'll send an officer for you," said the court. "Oh, you will, will you," said the woman, as she left the court room. Flaherty has been arrested many times for assaulting his wife, but the latter has always refused to prosecute him, and when Flaherty was arrested this time for having struck his wife with a hatchet, City Prosecutor Keller refused to allow the case to be dismissed.

WILL SEEK HIS WIFE IN CHICAGO

Ernest Ludlow, Who Assaulted His Friend, Liberated.

Ernest Ludlow, arrested some time ago for having assaulted S. B. Carter, and later held to the probate court for an examination as to his sanity, is declared by Dr. Paul Cook to be perfectly sane, and yesterday he was brought into police court to receive his sentence.

Judge Pinehout had decided to send him to the workhouse, but Ludlow begged so piteously to be allowed to go, saying he has the means to support himself, and that he would leave for there last night if allowed an opportunity. The court allowed him to go, with the understanding that if he were found in the city today he would be brought into court and sent to the workhouse.

Ludlow recently went to the home of S. B. Carter for the purpose of making inquiries regarding the whereabouts of his wife, who had left him, and when Carter said he knew nothing of her whereabouts Ludlow assaulted him in a vicious manner. Carter has since been confined to the hospital, and Ludlow is said to have worried over the disappearance of his wife.

CHINESE CELEBRATE NEW YEAR WITH GOOD TIME

They Begin Today by Propitiating Their Divinities With Incense and Music and Then Will Follow a Sumptuous Feast—Crackers and Wine Will Be Tomorrow's Diet.

"Chinese New Year" allee samee Melican New Year. Alle samee, melle time. Eat plente, talk plente, walk about plente.

The demure little Celestial who vouchsafed this much of information in regard to the Chinese New Year, which will be celebrated by St. Paul Chinamen and all other Chinamen today and tomorrow, folded his hands in his loose sleeves and refused further confidence.

"Chinaman and Melican man alike poke fun at Chinaman," he said, severely, his little oblique eyes traveling restlessly from the carved andro idol on which his lean, brown hand rested to the door that led into his Oriental curiosity shop.

"Chinaman and Melican man alike poke fun at Chinaman. Both eat, sleep, drink, sabb? Chinaman not a feak."

The final bit of slang was jerked out simply, and the small Chinaman, today and tomorrow, folded his hands in his loose sleeves and refused further confidence.

"John" is Reticent.
 John Chinaman is not communicative in regard to his customs and his celebrations. There are perhaps 200 Chinamen in Chicago, and most of these will unite tomorrow in celebration of the Chinese New Year, but it is doubtful if their nearest neighbors will know that anything out of the ordinary is going on in the laundries and restaurants where the Celestial holds forth.

The religious part of the celebration will take place today. At this time will occur their feast. They will meet in an appointed place in the city and observe the traditional religious ceremonies without which the celebration would be incomplete.

These will consist of the burning of incense to the Chinese divinities in order to invoke their aid. There will be a band present which, with its strange music will propitiate the spirits of departed ancestors.

The religious part of the celebration will be followed by the feast and great preparations have been made for it. The religious part of the celebration will be followed by the feast and great preparations have been made for it.

Madder Tires of Liberty and Asks for New Sentence.

Michael Madder, released from the workhouse yesterday morning, where he had served thirty days for vagrancy, walked into police court yesterday afternoon and asked that he be given the limit, as he liked the place.

"I'm a vag, judge, and want to be sent to the workhouse," said Madder, when he was permitted to address the court.

"Didn't you just get out of the workhouse?" asked Judge Pinehout. "Yes; but I have no place to live, and want to go back. Send me for as long as you can."

MUST MAINTAIN RESERVE FUND

Commissioner Dearth Says It's Only Salvation of Fraternal Companies.

Insurance Commissioner Dearth says he has no desire or disposition to force any legislation through which would result the destruction of any of the fraternal insurance companies doing business in the state, but he is strongly in favor of legislation which will place the societies on a firm financial basis.

"There has been considerable talk," said Mr. Dearth, "about my being opposed to fraternal insurance in favor of the old line. Such talk is the very kind of hush. Every member of a fraternal insurance company should be anxious to have the organization to which he belongs placed on a firm financial basis. It is the sentiment of the officers in all such companies to get the members to agree to a system which will make a reserve fund."

The plan which allows the members to retain a reserve fund in their pockets is impracticable and would result in the financial dissolution of such societies. "There have been nearly 200 assessment insurance companies, non-fraternal, which have conducted their business on that plan, and less than ten of them are now in existence. This should be sufficient evidence to convince any far-sighted man who has the interests of the policy holders at heart that a reserve must be maintained."

DR. RYPINS LECTURES BEFORE COMMONS

Says the Ideal Is Essential to the Best Development.

"The elements strive for mastery in the mind of every human being; one holds him down to the earth, allowing him to see nothing but the things about him; the other opens his eyes to the impalpable regions of fancy and permits him to see the world through the medium of the imagination," said Dr. Rypins last evening, in a lecture on "Idealism and Realism," at the St. Paul Commons.

"The ideal is imbedded in the soul of every one of us, and is the power which lifts us above the actual. Realism, on the other hand, binds our mind to the low level of the actual dry monotony of the world.

"We must strive to reconcile these two extremes; we must realize that it is, and see truth plainly, and we must also soar aloft on the wings of fancy for higher things. We must not give up our ideals in our struggle for existence.

"Realism, in its lowest degrees, is mere animal life, but idealism comes in as a part of the mind, and is the human being. Have you ever seen a person who did not cherish some ideal? If you have I advise you to keep away from that person. You must surround yourselves with persons who are constantly looking upward, and they will direct you along the path that leads up the mountain of life to the beautiful, grand, sublime and serene summit of spiritual perfection."

In addition to the lecture of Dr. Rypins, there was a program in which the Orpheus quartette, Miss Grace Prince, Mrs. A. D. Bishop and Miss Lantine, took part.

RAILROAD REPORTS ARE TO BE INSPECTED

General Office Men Will Be Protected From Germs.

A pair of rubber gloves, a set of tongs and a disinfecting plant will soon be a part of the necessary equipment in every general railroad office of St. Paul. It has been found that the papers daily dumped into the departments of these buildings carry small-pox germs, and, in consequence, they are handled rather cautiously.

So far four cases, with railroad officials as the victims, have been located through the agency of the local department and their diagnosis of the cause is that the reports daily handed in by traveling agents, conductors and other employees located along the several lines are responsible.

SAYS PEST HOUSE IS A DIRTY HOLE

Mother, Whose Babe Is a Victim of Smallpox, Protests Against Removal.

Crying bitterly and alternating her sobs with bitter invectives against the health officials who invaded her home, Mrs. John Lavelle, 595 Rice street, her nine months old babe and a two-year-old boy, were bundled into an ambulance yesterday afternoon and hustled out to the pest house.

Smothered and stifled while residing near White Bear, had invaded the home, and when the officers made the discovery, the disease, decidedly malignant, had settled on the nine months old babe. The mother was necessary for its nourishment, and as the boy also gave evidence of the disease it was thought best to place all three in the pest house.

When the officers arrived the mother was for denying them entrance, but succumbing when authority was shown. Added to this, the two-year-old boy clung tenaciously to her skirts, and between the indignant exclamations of the mother and the crying of the other, the officers' task was anything but a pleasant one.

"The pest house is a dirty hole," she vehemently declared, "and I will have none of it."
 It was only by threatening to take the child away from her that she was induced to get into the wagon.

The family, prior to the residence in St. Paul, lived near White Bear, and it was found that while there the mother had the disease. This was communicated to her babe, and now the boy will probably catch it. The house was thoroughly fumigated and posted by the officers.

Saturday night A. D. Schandel, 21 College avenue, was discovered suffering with the disease and taken out to the pest house. Investigation in his case developed the fact that he had been employed in one of the local railroad offices, and that three cases taken from that person. You must surround yourselves with persons who are constantly looking upward, and they will direct you along the path that leads up the mountain of life to the beautiful, grand, sublime and serene summit of spiritual perfection."

In addition to the lecture of Dr. Rypins, there was a program in which the Orpheus quartette, Miss Grace Prince, Mrs. A. D. Bishop and Miss Lantine, took part.

present the Minnesota guard is furnished with Springfield rifles, with the exception that each company has five Krag-Jorgensen guns, which were purchased about a year ago by Gen. Libbey in order that the men might be used to the arm.
