Cure for Pimples

Gently smear the face with CUTICURA OINTMENT, but do not rub. Wash off the ointment in five minutes with CUTICURA SOAP and hot water, and bathe freely for some minutes. Repeat this treatment morning and evening. Use CUTICURA SOAP alone, with hot water, at other times, as often as agreeable.

RAISING A "DEAD MAN" SCARES AWAY POLICE

Doctor They Called to Pronounce Life Extinct Restores Him.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Seven superstitious policemen almost collapsed from fright in the Fifth avenue station, Brooklyn, yesterday, when a "dead" man rose to his feet and began to talk. They fled in terror from the cellar of the building and left the "resurrected one" to the care of an ambulance surgeon. Last night every light was kept burning bright in the cellar and the patrolmen visited the place in couples.

Shortly before daybreak Patrolman Maher found a man apparently intoxicated lying in the street at Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street. He called the patrol wagon and had him removed to the station. Three policemen carried him to the cell and laid him at full length on the plank bed.

Three hours later the doorman found the man on the floor stiff and motionless. He opened the door and after a hasty inspection decided the prisoner was dead. Going up stairs the doorman told the desk sergeant of the "sudden death" and a detachment of curious patrolmen went below and inspected the "corpse."

"Poor fellow, it's his last ante," said Maher, who had come off post.

"Yes, indeed; he's got less troubles than any of us," remarked the desk sergeant.

Beaded by the desk sergeant, the corps of inspection trooped up stairs and a telephone message was sent to the Methodist Episcopal hospital for a physician to declare the man officially dead. In twenty minutes an ambulance drew up outside the door. Dr. R. M. Beach jumped out and walked into the station. The desk sergeant recognized him with a nod.

"There's a dead one down stairs," he said.

With seven policemen, doing reserve duty, Beach went down the narrow stairs and took a peep through the bars of the cell. His casual glance became a studious stare, and then he leaped through the open door.

"Here, you fellows," he shouted, "carry the man out of this."

"What's the use in getting excited, doc?" said one of the patrolmen. "He'll not lift him up, I say," ordered Beach, and the man was carried out of the cell and laid on the stone floor of the hallway. The seven policemen formed in a circle, while the physician began to slap the man vigorously on the face.

"He's coming round all right," said the doctor, in a casual tone.

"What?" came from the seven policemen.

"The 'dead' man moved, sat straight up and a moment later he opened his eyes. The policeman gasped for breath and stood stricken with horror.

"What in blazes do you mean by all this?" asked the "corpse," but the doctor's answer was drowned by the clatter of the policemen's feet as they dashed up stairs.

After coming two of the bluecoats to come back Dr. Beach helped the stranger to the ambulance, and in a short time had him snugly tucked in a hospital cot. Here he gave his name as John Robinson, and was recognized as a former orderly in the hospital. After a few hours' rest he was discharged.

As he walked out of the hospital a patrolman from the Fifth avenue station walked around him, and approaching Dr. Beach he whispered a question.

"Epilepsy," answered the physician, and the policeman, suddenly made wise, turned on his heel and walked off with a brave show of dignity.

Negro Equality.

The most explicit declaration of Abraham Lincoln on the question is this: "I am not nor ever have been, in favor of bringing about, in any way, the social and political equality of the white and black races; I am not, nor ever have been, in favor of making voters or jurors of negroes, nor of qualifying them to hold office or to intermarry with white people; and I will say, in addition to this, that there is a physical difference between the white and black races which I believe, will forever forbid the two races living together on terms of social and political equality." (September, 1855.)

AD INFANTUM.

(Dr. Dempphoff, of Berlin, announces that he has found an aquatic insect which preys upon the anopheles mosquito. He is cultivating the creature artificially, with the expectation of destroying the mosquito and the host of germs which inhabit its body.)

They've found the bug That kills the germ That bites us; They've traced the germ That chews the germ That smites us.

They know the bug That smites the germ That kills the germ That smites us; They've traced the germ That chews the germ That smites us.

They've struck the bug That smites the germ That kills the germ That smites us; They've traced the germ That chews the germ That smites us.

But still these bugs—Microbe thrugs—In spite of thrugs—Combat us; And still these germs—Described in thrugs—Inspiring squirms—Get at us!

WOMEN'S CIVIC LEAGUE CONSIDERS DOMESTIC ECONOMY

Mrs. Neville, of Green Bay, Urges Careful Study of Housekeeping and Cooking and Gives Results of Experiments—Mrs. Virginia C. Meredith Speaks—New Council Elected.

"In the future women will keep house by tuition instead of intuition," said Mrs. Arthur Courtney Neville, of Green Bay, Wis., in an address delivered before the Women's Civic League at a tea this afternoon for Miss Josephine Dickson, who is to be married next month to John Fowler.

Mrs. Robert Mangler, of Marshall avenue, entertained informally yesterday afternoon for Miss Kuhn and her sister, Mrs. Albert Goetter, of Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Towle, of Dayton avenue, gave a dinner party Thursday evening for State Senator and Mrs. Brower, Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Hanson, Miss Hanson, Mr. and Mrs. U. L. Lamphrey and Miss Lamphrey.

Miss Genevieve Smith, of Avon street, will give a salmagundi party this afternoon.

Mrs. C. A. Dibble, of Summit avenue, will entertain informally this evening at the Commercial club yesterday. Mrs. Neville spoke on "Household Economics" before a representative gathering of St. Paul club women. As a member of the committee on household economics of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the speaker's words carried weight and her audience listened to them with deep attention.

"The situation that confronts us," said Mrs. Neville, "is not how to get sufficient food, but how to get food that will give the needed nourishment. It is folly to believe that a high price paid for food means a high quality of nourishment."

The speaker stated that in her own town, Green Bay, the women had made a number of interesting experiments in order to ascertain at just how little cost a table could be furnished with nourishing and palatable food. Some had been successful in making 25 cents cover the total expenditure for one day's food for one individual. But Mrs. Neville admitted that she had not been one of the successful experimenters in this matter, that frequently her expenditure for each member of her household amounted to a few cents more than that amount.

But she admitted that economists claimed that where the income was $1,500 a year, 25 cents per day for each individual was sufficient to cover the purchase of the raw material. Mrs. Neville said that she had demonstrated to her own satisfaction that 50 cents a day for each individual would set a luxurious table.

"We club women believe," said the speaker, "that plain living and high thinking go together, but unless the plain living gives the needed nourishment there will be no high thinking."

The speaker thought the chemistry of food should be carefully studied and suggested that the school children could not begin too early.

"We often hear," said Mrs. Neville, "of some multi-millionaire offering a million dollars for a good working stomach." She said it was badly prepared food that caused stomachs to wear out early.

Mrs. Virginia C. Meredith, preceptress of the state agricultural school, in her address, which followed Mrs. Neville's, said that this question of household economics was of interest to men as well as women.

The sole object of the home," said Mrs. Meredith, "is to protect and perfect child life. Unless it has this object the home has no place in the economic plan of the universe. Woman has been the corner stone of the former. Whatever the mother does is for the well being of her offspring and the interest that is now being shown in this matter of household economics is but a step in that evolution that is making for the highest development of child life."

At the conclusion of the address questions were put to Mrs. Neville and Mrs. Meredith and the women were given an opportunity to meet both the speakers at the informal reception which followed the meeting.

A business meeting was held before the regular programme was taken up yesterday. Mrs. C. A. Dibble was chairman of the social conditions section, which was in charge of the meeting yesterday, presided. The league decided by vote to adopt the by-law which provides that the council of the league will hereafter elect the president as it does the other officers. A new council was elected as follows: Mrs. H. A. Boardman, Mrs. Alexander Barclay, Mrs. William Ely Bramhall, Mrs. J. H. Bullard, Mrs. Russell R. Dorr, Mrs. J. W. Edgerton, Mrs. Gilette, Mrs. Conde Hamlin, Mrs. George L. Metcalf, Mrs. Archibald McLaren, Mrs. H. J. A. Wheeler, Mrs. George B. Young, Mrs. James Giffman and Mrs. H. C. Sachse. The council will meet within thirty days and will elect all the officers of the league.

Death of Youthful Bride.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 27.—The marriage of Prof. Reynolds, for some time a student in the university at Millerton, and Miss Florence Hamblin, a daughter of a wealthy Millerton farmer, which took place six months ago, was ended in the death of the young wife of typhoid fever at Ithaca. It is said that when the couple were engaged Prof. Reynolds almost insisted that the wedding date be set for some time after he had completed his studies at Cornell, but Miss Hamblin felt that she could help him as his wife and it was arranged that they should be married and she accompanied him to college. Last week she became ill of typhoid fever. Her husband tried his studies in the university to care for her. She died last Tuesday. Prof. Reynolds was then stricken and it is announced that he cannot recover.

German Empress Injured.

BERLIN, March 27.—The empress today slightly fractured her fore arm as the result of a fall from her public carriage, which stumbled while she was riding in the Grunewald forest. The empress, who was accompanied by Prince Adalbert, her third son, and her sister, was assisted to the hunting lodge after her fall and a surgeon was telephoned for, with the result that a physician was sent to the lodge in an ambulance, which was driven at the highest possible speed. The empress fell heavily. Emperor William was among the first to reach her side and assisted her to rise. The imperial party was galloping at the moment when the empress' horse shied and stumbled.

Women's Council Elect Officers.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 27.—Officers were elected and the next place of meeting selected by the National Council of Women in Louisiana today. The council voted to go to Indianapolis in 1904. The meeting will be held in February. These officers were chosen: President, Mrs. Mary Wood Swift, of San Francisco; vice president, Mrs. Kate Walter Barrett, of Washington, D. C.; recording secretary, Mrs. Francis Burton, of Detroit; corresponding, Mrs. Flo Jamison Miller, of Wilmington, Ill.; treasurer, Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, of Detroit.

Mrs. Mary Wood Swift, will be delegate to the international council in Dresden next January. The executive meeting of the council will be held in St. Louis next year.

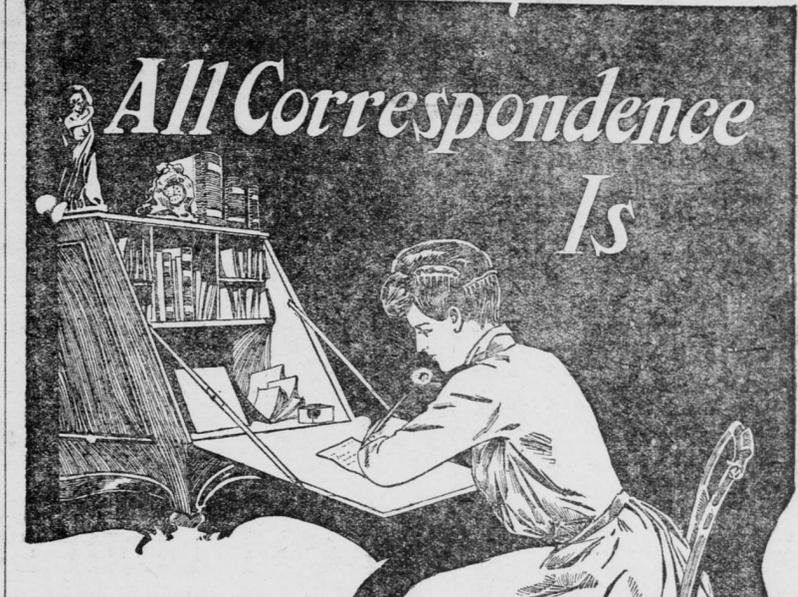

Will Run Their Own Paper.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Plans are almost completed here for the launching of a daily newspaper, to be owned and operated exclusively by women, and which shall "dare to print everything and anything exactly as it really is," which at Miss Gould's request will be a company named after her, Mrs. Alice Blount at its head. Considerable advertising has been arranged for. It is said, and the completion of the project is a question of but a few weeks.

Miss Gould Promotes Social Study.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Miss Helen Gould's plan for social study, broached by her to the American Institute of Social Service, was outlined today in a statement issued by the institute, which at Miss Gould's request will send abroad Dr. W. H. Tolman, the social economist, to make a study of industrial and social conditions in Europe.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO WOMEN.

All Correspondence Is Sacredly Confidential

This is a very important consideration in a woman's correspondence with Mrs. Pinkham. It is a great satisfaction to feel that one woman can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only,—a woman full of sympathy for her sick sisters, and with a knowledge of woman's ills greater than that possessed by any other person.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence thus entrusted to her, and although she publishes thousands of testimonials from women who have been benefited by her advice and medicine, never in all her experience has she published such a letter without the full consent, and often by special request of the writer.

The reason Mrs. Pinkham is so amply qualified to give advice in cases of female ills is for the reason that over one hundred thousand cases come before her each year,—some personally, others by mail, and this has been going on for twenty years, day after day, and day after day. Twenty years of constant success,—think of the knowledge thus gained. Surely, women are wise in seeking advice from a woman of such experience, especially when it is absolutely free.

As an illustration of the good coming from such advice we herewith publish two letters and portraits of Miss Hattie DeGroat, the reading of which should give every sick woman confidence in which Mrs. Pinkham's advice is so freely given. This is only one of thousands of the same kind of letters which Mrs. Pinkham has on file.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have read with interest your advice to others so much that I thought I would write to you, for I have been suffering for a long time. I have such bearing down pains, and such shooting pains go through me. I have headache, backache, and feel tired. Menstruation is very painful, sometimes have to stop work and lie down. My stomach bloats terribly, and I am troubled with whites. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,
July 24th, 1900.
MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasunna, N. J."

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can hardly find words to thank you for your advice and wonderful Vegetable Compound. I was in a terrible state, every part of my body ached, was very nervous, had hysterical spells. I think I would have become insane had it not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Your letter told me just what to do, and your medicine cured me, and I cannot express my thanks.
March 8th, 1901.
MISS HATTIE DEGROAT, Succasunna, N. J."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unequalled endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles or such hosts of grateful friends. Do not be persuaded that any other medicine is just as good. Any dealer who suggests something else has no interest in your case. He is seeking a larger profit. Follow the record of this medicine, and remember that the thousands of cures of women whose letters are constantly printed in this paper were not brought about by "something else," but by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

have the emblem of his nation sandwiched between Francois I. screens and Russian bronze figures. In more ways than in regard to the harps do Mrs. Oelrichs and Mrs. Vanderbilt have similar ideas. Their footmen are clad identically. Both women prefer dull gold for interior furnishings. Mrs. Oelrichs' jewels practically have been reproduced by her younger sister, and even in the choice of carriages the similarity is sustained.

Polish Girls Strike.

PASSAIC, N. J., March 27.—Two hundred Polish girls in the handkerchief factory of Heller & Long went on strike today. They refused to give a reason for their action. It is said that the girls organized a union and are soon as the officers were elected they called a strike, but without any cause known to their employers. Four hundred girls who refused to join the union remain in the factory.

Women in Artists' Competition.

PARIS, March 27.—The jury's announcement of the names of the artists who will be admitted to compete for the Prix de Rome includes Mile. Rond-enay. She is the first woman to be admitted under the recent decision of the minister of fine arts allowing both sexes to take part in this important competition.

Novelty in Fruits.

Liliputian oranges, eaten like grapes, skin and all, are a novelty in fruits. It will be the next thing to bring all the varieties within this miniature scope, if merely to please the table decorator. Size no longer appeals to the fruit lover, and even two bites at a cherry will then be deemed gross.

Royal Infant Made a Knight.

The Princess of the Asturias' second baby, born about three weeks ago, was invested with the dignity of a Knight of the Golden Fleece and of the Order of Charles III. before he was dressed in his first suit of clothes. They lose no time in Spain when babies are direct heirs to the throne, for this infant, who makes King Alfonso uncle for the second time, may yet wear a crown. It is true he has a little brother one year his senior, but there is no use in taking chances in that family; therefore, baby Carlos was hustled into his knighthood before donning his first bib. As the sex of royal infants doesn't so much matter in Spain, the capricious stock had been nicer to have brought one of the girls of whom he has a liberal supply, judging by some other royal families.

Lilies for Easter.

Although the Bermuda lily holds sway as the saint among flowers for Easter, the old-fashioned calla lily is still much in favor. In the West and Middle West, where the Bermuda blossoms cannot readily reach, its vogue is indisputable. Southern California is as famous for the culture of this variety as Bermuda is for the other type.

It is possible in the near future that the laurels of lily growing may be snatched away from the Bermuda generally, for late years, along the coast of the Carolinas and in certain sections of Florida, the government has been quietly experimenting with lily culture against the possibility of growing them in this country.

No small measure of success has attended these efforts. The proper soil and a favorable climate have been found in many localities, and if the department of agriculture succeeds in making their plants ripen simultaneously or ahead of the over-sea product, Bermuda monopoly will be a thing of the past.

WOMEN AT HOME AND ABROAD.

Miss Smith Rossie, who is an associate of the Royal Institute of Public Health, has started with the sanction of the home office and the local authorities a novel and interesting experiment in Portsmouth prison, England. This takes the shape of lectures on hygiene, nursing, sanitation and the care of children. They are delivered to the women of the prison, and as only the best have been allowed to attend they are an incentive to good conduct.

One of the latest additions to the many societies formed of women is that "For Promoting Man Interference." Each member must be over seventeen, be proof against the charms of man, and must abhor marriage. Any signs of departure from the right attitude toward man to be observed by members of this club will be met, first, by a warning. Should this fail of effect and should the member be expelled, the president's office will be no sinecure in this club, which is in Guildford, England.

"Ever since Saul proved the inconsistency of man by rushing off to consult the Witch of Endor after taking severe measures to exterminate witchcraft, there has been a universal craving to pierce the veil that hides from us the good and evil of the future," says a writer in "The Ladies' Field."

"The craving for the knowledge of what the future holds is turned to account by thousands of persons in every generation, who claim supernatural powers of vision and prophecy. Astrology is perhaps the most impressive form of so-called 'divination'—possibly there is something inspiring in the thought of one's destiny being guided by a star. But there is nothing subtle about a grassy pack of cards in the stuffy parlor of a house in a dingy street, which is the environment of the modern sibyl. Yet every day
