

St. Paul Social Circles

Society in New York and other places, following the fashion set in London and Paris, is learning to cakewalk. In New York they have been patronizing a colored actress, who is an expert in the cakewalk, and when the Easter season begins it is said that no dance will be complete without a cakewalk at the close. Of course society girls are fully alive to the fact that a pretty girl going through the figures of this dance—or some of them at least—is a very attractive sight, and hence its popularity among women. It is a little more difficult to convince a man that he looks well in anything out of the ordinary, and it is freely predicted that some of the feminine cakewalkers will have to have other women for their partners or else go partnerless. It is not that men think more of their appearance, but they do dislike to make themselves conspicuous in this way; that is, of course, except they be Harry Lehrs or society men who make social functions a profession.

A few years ago it was the style to wear low-necked gowns to every evening affair and often at the theater and particularly at the opera here in St. Paul, one would see many women in décolleté dress. Then fashion went to the other extreme, and for the last five years it has been rare to see even at the opera a woman in a low gown. Modistes have vied with each other in designing elegant high-necked costumes, and these have been worn to everything except balls. Indeed, sometimes these toilettes have been handsomer than any designed for evening wear. In England particularly, these high-necked dresses for evening wear have never been worn to any extent by the smart set; they have appeared as always in very low gowns, so now it has come to the English women with a shock to learn that the queen has barred full dress for the theater. Anyone who knows anything about it can realize what a transformation this will make in the appearance of the British theaters, where evening dress was not only customary, but insisted upon for the women just as it is for men. But the queen has set the fashion of wearing high gowns, and this means that it is only a question of time when every woman who wishes to be considered of the smart world will follow suit. There is one bright bit, apropos of this, which is reported to be part of the dialogue in a new English play, called "A Queen of Society." The heroine of the piece says: "When I go to the theater I am afraid to look at what is going on for fear of what is coming off. We are underdressed and overdressed at luncheon, and overfed and underdressed at dinner."

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Merriman and Miss Merriman, of St. Paul, who have been living in Washington for the last five years, are about moving to New York, where they will reside in the future. They have taken a very charming house at 33 West Seventy-seventh street. Miss Mabel Merriman has been in Chicago, visiting Mrs. Hobart Chatfield Chatfield-Taylor.

Among the small affairs of the past week was a very pretty dinner given on Monday night by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Cathcart, of Goodrich avenue, in honor of Mrs. E. J. Sibley, of Helena, who was their guest. Besides the guest of honor, those present were Miss Pope, Mr. J. B. Hewitt and Mr. W. W. Price. Friday afternoon Mrs. Gustave Schurmeier, of Summit avenue, gave an informal tea in honor of Mrs. Tracy, of Salt Lake City, who was her guest for a few days.

Mrs. Job Wright, who has been at the Hotel Ryan all winter, has come to New York to visit her daughter, who is in school at Capital City. When she returns the Wright family will occupy the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Squires, of Summit avenue, for the summer months. Mr. and Mrs. Squires will probably spend the summer at White Bear, as usual. Mr. and Mrs.

A BEAUTIFIER OF THE TEETH.

WHAT IS SAID BY TWO WELL KNOWN AUTHORITIES:

S. H. Guilford, D. D. S., Ph. D., says: "When appearance is of prime importance, as in the majority of cavities in the anterior teeth, porcelain possesses advantages that are not even approached by any other filling material at present known."

Madame D'Arcy in her beauty talk, "How the Cupid Bow Is Made to Order," says:

"One of the newest of things is the subject of enamel restoration. This is practiced in various ways, but the whole aim and object of the entire performance is to treat the teeth to a filling of enamel which shall match the teeth exactly and be used in place of gold."

"A woman with two big gold fillings in her front teeth went to a society dentist in affright: 'My teeth look decayed at night,' sobbed she, 'and I am heart-broken.'"

Getting a Cupid Bow. The dentist looked at the two large gold fillings, which resembled big yellow polka dots, and agreed to replace them with white enamel fillings, with the result that the woman went forth smiling and happy.

These results are and have been obtainable in St. Paul for the past fourteen years, through the process known to the profession as "Porcelain Inlay Work." Introduced into this city and practiced as a specialty by Dr. E. C. Cornwall, Dentist, Chamber of Commerce building, corner Robert and Sixth streets.

Robert Kirk, of Goodrich avenue, are removing to Cleveland, Ohio, where Mr. Kirk will go into business, and where they will live in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Driscoll, of Dayton avenue, will take the Kirk house on Goodrich avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Wilkes, of the Aberdeen, have gone to spend a month at the Springs. Mrs. F. A. Seymour and Miss Alice Seymour, of the Aberdeen, will leave this week for Chicago, where they will remain indefinitely. Mrs. Cavanaugh and the Misses Cavanaugh, who have been at the Aberdeen for a few weeks, have returned to Europe. Mrs. Mary Perin McGuffey, of New York, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. N. Stryker, of Iglehart street. Mrs. Charles L. Spencer, of Summit avenue, has gone to New York to visit her father, Mr. W. P. Clough; Miss Clough is already in New York. Mrs. T. C. Field, of Dayton avenue, left Thursday night for Summers, N. Y., where she will remain until September. Miss Allaire, of New York, is the guest of Mrs. C. S. Melton, of Summit avenue. Mrs. A. B. Sibley, who has been in St. Paul ten days and is now the guest of Mrs. E. J. Abbott, will leave tomorrow night for Haleswete, and for the Looker-On.
