ANTIPODEAN TALKS OF RAILROADS

Says American Roads Are Great, but Far From Perfect.

Almeric Compton Shaw, deputy commissioner of railways for New South Wales, is at the West. Mr. Shaw has made an investigation of the railway systems of Great Britain, France and the United States, with the object of applying such methods as may commend themselves to his judgment in the improvement of Australian railway construction.

Most of the railways in Australia are of the narrow gauge pattern and but a few lines is the American type of locomotive interior. The rapid development of the interior in certain parts of the continent demands an increase in railway facilities, and there is a strong prospect that the standard gauge will be generally adopted.

It is a notable fact that the Australian commissioner finds nearly as much to criticize as to commend in the American method of railway construction and administration.

"You have certain elements of excellence in your construction of track for steam railways, but these are negligible in comparison of the undoubted imperfections that exist. It is an excellent and safe practice not to have the rail joints opposite each other, but after consideration of all the merits to be accorded American construction of permanent way, I recognize the immense distances of this continent and the no less immense cost of construction, as well as the inevitability of future conformation to the rules of nature, but at present I find a distinct and more or less appalling menace in the use of the spike instead of screw or bolts to fasten tracks down with. These spikes are constantly working loose and they have to be constantly driven back to their original positions. Every time one of these spikes is driven it is that much less effective as a holder, because the hole in which it is embedded has become enlarged and incapable of binding.

"I very much question whether, taking the cost of maintenance into consideration, the English method is not the cheapest in the long run, as it is certainly the safest. One expensive wreck due to spread rails will pay for the cost of many miles of correct track laying. Of course differences in the price of labor and in cost of material must be taken into account, but from our point of view even the British system is preferable.

"With regard to signaling I think you must admit that your roads are far to the rear. Only about 25,000 miles out of 200,000 in the United States, measuring all your track as single, is at present worked on the block system, and your block working here is not so strictly interpreted as it is in England. Two or three trains are constantly allowed in the same section at the same time. I have frequently ridden on trains when the conductor was handed a train order instructing him to switch to the reverse track and travel on it at a high rate of speed until further orders, regardless of trains in the other direction. This is blind dependence on the mental superiority of one man, the train dispatcher, who may conceivably be out of sorts, unfit for duty, or anything else that may precipitate disaster."

Mr. Shaw has made voluminous notes dealing with the elevated railway systems of New York and Chicago, which he regards as excellent, the overhead electric railway of Berlin, the tuppenny tube of London, and other systems of urban and suburban transport. He leaves for Vancouver tonight and for Japan on April 25.

AMES WILL BE TRIED SOON.

Former Mayor Will Have Hearing During the April Term of Court.

What is expected to be a eventful era in the history of Minneapolis begins this morning with opening of the April term of the district court. While it is claimed in some quarters that popular interest in the municipal corruption cases is on the wane, nevertheless the greatest of all the municipal cases—those against former Mayor A. A. Ames—are bound to attract the widest public attention.

There are nine indictments against Dr. Ames at the present time and it is understood in the office of the county attorney that if a disagreement or an acquittal is the result of the first trial the succeeding indictments will be moved against the mayor in a "never-let-go" fashion.

There are other municipal cases to come up in this term of court, among them the case of J. A. Gardner, who is expected to make admissions for the state in the trial of Dr. Ames.

In addition to those, the criminal calendar is in an unusually congested state and many of the cases are of an important nature. Judge C. B. Elliott will sit in the criminal cases and another judge will come on to assist him, if the Ames cases are prolonged.

SHOE WORKERS WIN BEFORE STATE BOARD

Massachusetts Manufacturers Are Ordered to Grant Wage Increase.

HAVERHILL, Mass., April 5.—For the first time since the union stamp agreement was signed between the shoe manufacturers and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union here arbitration by the state board has been invoked, and has resulted in a victory for the cutters who had asked for an increase in their wages. Nearly 500 cutters in local union stamp factories will be benefited.

The arbitration came about by the demand of the cutters employed by the firm of Chesley & Ruger two months ago that a minimum weekly wage scale of $15 be established for a nine-hour day, or $16.50 for a ten-hour day. The state board recommends a working schedule of fifty-nine hours per week; outside cutters an increase of 50 cents per week, or a weekly scale of $15.50; retreating cutters $12.75 per week, an increase of 75 cents.

Every one of the eleven stamp factories in Haverhill is affected by the recommendations.

MICHIGAN TURNS ON COACH YOST

Wolverine Professor Joins President Jordan in Finding Fault.

CHICAGO, April 5.—Charges that Coach Yost has sinned against the spirit of amateur athletics were published by President Jordan of Leland Stanford university. The name of Gregory, Michigan's star center rush, was linked with the accusation against Yost. Yost went so far in his statement as to call the employment of Yost a sin, and he did not hold his own university sinless.

The sensational remarks of the president of Leland Stanford were made before 150 university and high school educators, who were in attendance at the annual meeting of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools at Cobb hall, University of Chicago.

The discussion of a paper by Prof. C. A. Waldo, of Purdue university, on the regulation of athletics in colleges, "What Next?" brought President Jordan to the floor. In the audience which President Jordan addressed were Prof. E. N. Scott, of the University of Michigan.

"I have the permission of the Michigan representative at this meeting to say a word," said President Jordan after some preliminary remarks. "As coach after Walter Camp at Leland Stanford university we had two other Yale men, Cross and Chamberlain, who were good college sportsmen, but they did not win games.

"Then we had Yost. What I want to get at is an illustration. A young fellow came from the mines. He was not prepared in his studies to enter the university, but he showed an interest in his mining subjects, and was admitted as a special student. He could not pass any entrance examination, and did not pass in any of his work after admission, and so on.

"Yost went to Michigan. This young man went to Michigan, and has been the center around which Yost has built up a strong following. He has played through two seasons, fifteen games or so.

"All of us who have ever had Yost, or any Yostlike man about us, are not to be counted as sinless. The faculty has duties to perform. It is impossible to do away with men like Gregory unless we do away with other players.

After the remarks of President Jordan, Prof. Scott, of Michigan, said: "The case of Gregory has not come under my ken. But there is another man on the Michigan team whom I am going to keep off next year, if I can, because he is plainly not eligible as a student. He is in the rhetoric department, and I know of my own knowledge that he has no right to university standing. After Dr. Jordan had finished I intended to speak, but the time for adjournment was near at hand.

"The football interests have carried everything. This meeting is an epoch-making one. It is the first time the part of teachers in the colleges against the domination of athletics. I look for great things to come from it."

CONNIE MACK'S PLAYERS SETTLE THEIR STRIKE

Athletes Will Play Their Ante-Season Games With Phillies.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 5.—The strike of the Athletic baseball players against the Philadelphia Athletics was called off and the games with the Phillies will be played next week, as originally scheduled.

The players have agreed to play the entire series with the Phillies and will not receive any extra money for their services, but they have been promised all the money they are entitled to in the settlement of their contract.

This means that, instead of receiving from $30 to $50 apiece for playing the Philadelphia Athletics, they will receive one hundred dollars apiece, and by this arrangement each party concedes a point in the settlement.

Ward seems to be in the same class with Davis," continued Johnson. "It was Ward who drew up Davis' contract with Comiskey, and Ward conducted the paper held Comiskey for two years absolutely.

PRESIDENT HARPER SPEAKS OF HIGHER LIFE

Head of Chicago University Addresses Y. M. C. A., of Louisville.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 5.—The golden jubilee of the Young Men's Christian association of Louisville, was celebrated here today, the chief speaker being President William R. Harper, of the University of Chicago, who spoke on the "Relation of Religion to the Higher Life."

In the course of his speech, Dr. Harper said: "The higher life is always associated with the individual. It manifests itself in many different forms, yet all are closely related. The fullest vindication of this higher life stands out in the long list of men who have become famous in art, in science, in philosophy, deeper and broader, perhaps, than any other. There is an ethical purpose, or shall we say, moral effort. We are striving toward the pure and beautiful and good or are falling away toward that which is ignorance and evil and darkness. The line between the higher and the lower life is not the same for any two men."

"My position is this: What has religion to do with this higher life? In my use of the word 'religion' I use it in the broadest sense. I am not referring to the church. The church is of a variable character. But religion is eternal.

"Poetry and art may brighten life, but they can never bring the one thing needed. The fact is that religion is of itself and for itself, and it cannot be confounded with art or philosophy."
