MORE FRICTION IN POLICE STAFF

Sutton Arrest Shows Up the Growing Jealousies—Dismissal Probable.

William Sutton, the Owatonna lad who confessed the murder of H. H. Krier, in company with the two young men Henry and Charles Nelson, will in all probability be brought into a controversy that means little to him but much to the efficiency of the Minneapolis police department.

Sutton was advised by one of the detectives at headquarters, after he had made his confession of the murder by Nelson, to "skin it all back and stand pat."

In a second confession made before Judge Lyttleton, county attorney of Steele county, and Sheriff Mison, Sutton yesterday reiterated all that he had stated previously and added the information that he had personally robbed the body of the murdered man.

Sutton added that he would not have entered a denial of his original confession had it not been for the advice of a Minneapolis detective, who called on him in his cell and advised him to take back everything that he had said if he wanted to save his neck.

Every day evidence is piling up that the older rank and file of the detective department is dead set against the new men, and that the detective force is so busy with its own internal dissensions that good work by the department as a whole is entirely out of the question.

One of the old men, whose name is in the possession of the superintendent of police, is said to have given the advice to Sutton to stand pat. Detective Brown, who made the arrest of the Owatonna murderer, might be robbed of the accruing honor. Brown was a private detective in Minneapolis for years before he secured a position on the city force.

The detective who is suspected of having given damaging advice to Sutton is Nick Smith, an old member of the force and a man who has on occasion done very good work. Smith was sick in bed today and did not report. Supt. Conroy declined to affirm the charges concerning Smith, but he declared that the offending officer would be called on the carpet today and asked to explain what he meant by his behavior. Moreover, the condition of affairs on the force has become so serious that the chief proposes already to take the whole staff down the line with a lecture this morning. There is evidently trouble brewing for several members of the detective force. The men constituting the disturbing element are very likely to be released.

Young Sutton was in a terrible state of mind this morning. He passed as a murderer's night. His descriptions of the dreams he had were sufficiently horrible to excite sympathy for the dreamer. The lad had deep black rings under his eyes and the latter were sunken deep into their sockets. He uttered gasping sobs at intervals and quite evidently has experienced already a considerable extent of the punishment that conscience metes out to assassins. It was considered dangerous to take the men to Owatonna last night. Telephone messages to the sheriff of the county, who was in Minneapolis, made him understand that there would be a lynching or a gun fight when the men were taken into town, and desiring to obviate either possibility, he kept them in the Hennepin jail.

BAD SHOWING FOR COUNSEL CLAIMS FALSE REPORTS OF FINANCES HAVE BEEN MADE.

NEW YORK, April 16.—The complete findings of Eugene A. Philbin, former district attorney of New York county, as counsel for certain stockholders of the Metropolitan Street Railway company, were made public today, says the Evening Post. This paragraph occurs:

"It is clear when the company's own statements are analyzed, that the Metropolitan lease was calculated to provide and has actually provided many millions of dollars in excess of the honest requirements of the Metropolitan company."

The report finds that in 1898, 1899, 1900 and 1901 the Metropolitan company stated in its annual reports to the state railroad commission that it had expended for construction and equipment a sum in cash "exceeding by millions of dollars the actual sum in cash which is proved by the company's general balance sheets to have been so expended."

Mr. Philbin says the company asked for $23,000,000 to pay the unfunded debt incurred in the purchase of stock of the Third Avenue company and to defray the expense of extending the electrical system to upwards of eighty miles still operated by horse cars and upon analysis the report said only $14,781,694 was required for these two purposes. The report says the company proposed to create a refunding mortgage to secure an authorized issue of $25,000,000 of 4 per cent 100-year refunding bonds, of which about $4,000,000 was to be reserved to retire and refund the twenty-seven issues of existing bonds secured by liens on the various parts of the Metropolitan system, including the Third Avenue lines. The total of such issues, Mr. Philbin says, was exactly $48,196,000, and not about $4,000,000.

The company in 1902 asked for $23,000,000, part of which was to be used in paying the unfunded debt incurred in the purchase of the Third Avenue line. "As a matter of fact," Mr. Philbin says, "the company has actually shown by the company's sworn statement that the Metropolitan on that date could not have owed a single dollar of unfunded debt in the purchase of Third Avenue stock."

During 1898, 1900 and 1901, the report says, the company reported expenditures for construction and equipment $33,413,421, while the actual expenditure, according to the balance sheets, was $25,355,572.

On the subject of excessive valuation of investments, Mr. Philbin's report says: "The total value of investments set out in the general balance sheet for the year 1901 was $21,682,428.36, and a year later $22,555,471.76. These values are represented by more than $12,000,000 of Metropolitan stock owned by the company, the requirement of a part of the stock and bonds held at present as investments, and by cash and proceeds of other shares of stock devoted to the purchase of such investments."

"The total of such stock issued is about $29,000,000 face, with a book value which the company is paying 7 per cent dividends, or at the rate of $1,400,000 a year. But the company's income from these investments is only about $300,000 a year. In other words, the company is paying out annually $1,400,000 to receive in return $300,000."

"No one could possibly doubt, after consideration of the these and other pertinent facts bearing upon the subject, that the company's statement of account has been manipulated to the advantage of some person or persons, for it is clear that if the company is losing over $1,000,000 annually through these investments, some one is necessarily profiting to an equal extent."

Mr. Philbin contends that entries in the company's reports of $500,000 in 1900 and $2,025,000 in 1901 "paid by lesser companies are pretended. He says none of the companies which are obliged to pay the Metropolitan any sum of cash on account of additions and estimates "clearly indicate that the Metropolitan company has received for 1902 an expenditure of cash for damage of motive power, exceeding by more than $6,000,000 the true cost thereof."

SAYS JAMES HOWARD KILLED GOEBEL.

Startling Testimony From Youtsey, Who Accuses Ex-Gov. Taylor.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 16.—Henry E. Youtsey today for the first time told on the witness stand his story of the killing of the late Gov. Goebel. He named James Howard, the defendant, as the man who fired the shot. Youtsey said he took Howard into the office of Caleb Powers, then secretary of state, which had been especially arranged for the shooting. He showed Howard the Martin rifle, the bullet and the window from which the shooting was to be done. Howard asked what he was to get for doing the shooting, and Youtsey said he was to have $10,000, and Howard said he wanted a pardon for killing George Baker.

I told him he could have that and more, too," said Youtsey. "About that time Goebel came in the gate and I pointed him out to Howard and then ran from the room. As I disappeared down the stairs to the basement I heard the crack of Howard's rifle."

"Gov. Taylor," said Youtsey, "directed everything he did. He persuaded him as our leader and he was morally responsible for all we did. We knew we had the governor and the pardoning power behind us and we were not afraid of punishment for killing Goebel."

BAD REPUBLICAN BLOOD SHOWN War in New York Senate, With Platt as Storm Center.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 16.—Not since the memorable days of the McKinley-Platt insurrection has the state senate been the scene of more bitter personalities or of a more sensational political battle than that of today when Gov. Odell's nomination of Railroad Commissioner Frank Baker to succeed himself was rejected by the coalition of Senators Brackett, E. R. Brown and Elsbeger—the three so-called "Insurgent Republicans"—with the Democrats, and an intensely personal conflict was precipitated between Senator Brackett and Senator Raines, the Republican president pro tem.

It is not unlikely that the battle will be renewed tomorrow, when it is expected that the judiciary committee will report the nomination of George Wilson Morgan to take the place of John McCullagh as superintendent of elections, sent in by Gov. Odell today.

The rejection came as a climax to a series of political sensations which began with the trio of Republican independents voting against the re-election of United States Senator Platt and the action this afternoon is considered of the greatest political significance. In explaining his vote against Mr. Baker's confirmation, Senator Brackett said:

"Mr. Baker is simply a pawn on the chessboard. I vote against this nomination in protest of the sewage and filth that is being poured upon the head of our worthy governor through the agents of the man who inspired this nomination. And I vote against this nomination to emphasize my disapproval of the actions of the man who causes the seal of party approval to be placed on any measure when certain attorneys are engaged in favor of bills. And I vote against this for the same reason I refused to vote for his re-election, as the senior senator who organized this senate before it had met and then when it did meet
