

A WASHINGTON, D. C., LADY Makes a Remarkable Statement.

After Years of Sufferings From Acute Nervous Dyspepsia Paine's Celery Compound Effects a Happy Cure.

Dyspepsia, one of humanity's most cruel enemies, is effectually cured by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. This tormenting disease is caused by acute inflammation of the nerves centered about the stomach. In dyspepsia nervous energy is wasted and the entire digestive organism is deranged. The needs of dyspepsia may be summed up as follows: The great nervous system requires strengthening; the blood now charged with impurities must be cleansed, so that it will flow healthily and in abundance; the stomach, weak and unreliable, must be toned up. Paine's Celery Compound in the springtime will accomplish all that is needed for the dyspeptic sufferer, and banish troubles that make daily life unbearable. Mrs. Ada Cochrane, Washington, D. C., says: "I have been for years a sufferer from acute attacks of nervous dyspepsia, and during the past winter I heard so much about your Paine's Celery Compound I decided to try what it would do for me. I used less than two bottles and experienced relief almost from the first dose I took. I did not find it necessary to finish the second bottle. I therefore do not hesitate to add my hearty endorsement to the many thousands of testimonials you already have."

MINNESOTA AND IOWA VICTIMS OF SMALLPOX

Disease Raging Among Students of Stanford University.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., April 20.—Twenty additional cases of typhoid fever have broken out yesterday and today. Thirteen of these are reported from Palo Alto and seven on the University campus. The total number of those stricken by the epidemic since its first appearance now aggregate close to 100. As yet there has been but one death. More fatalities are feared. A majority of the new cases are students in the university. Among those critically ill are: E. E. Miller, of Vinton, Iowa, and R. D. Barrett, of Herman, Minn. There has been much talk about the university closing, but Dr. Jordan states that while conditions are as they are, and while the physicians are of the opinion that the trouble is almost checked, no action in this direction will be taken.

DEATHS OF THE DAY.

ASPEN, Colo., April 20.—A telegram received here today announced the death in South America of H. B. Gillespie, a pioneer mining man of this city. He discovered the State mine No. 1881, a part owner of the Mollie Gibson property. He was prominent in politics and in 1886 defeated Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, but was defeated. He recently retired from active life and started on a tour of the world, accompanied by his wife and two sons.

Tells of a Beautiful Horse.

A pen picture of a beautiful horse is to be found in one of Sewall Ford's stories in "The Horses Nine." Here it is: "In the stalls of Gray Oaks stable were many good horses, but none better than Tip of his splendid yard long tail to his pink tipped muzzle. His coat was as silk as black, his neck as supple as a swan's, and out of his big, bright eyes, looked such intelligence that one half expected him to speak. He had no many long graceful curves, and when he moved his sleek legs one could see the muscles flex under the delicate skin."

Helping Him Along.

"Then there is such a thing as heart failure, is there doctor?" said the handsome young widow. "Certainly, madam," responded the beaming young physician. "The records of the profession are full of it. It's a perfectly unnecessary disease, isn't it, doctor?" "On this I beg to differ," said the doctor.

King was a lieutenant in Porter's rough riders during the Spanish war.

PROCEEDINGS AGAINST HERMAN. Missing Milwaukee Man Causing No End of Litigation.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 20.—Proceedings were started in the federal court here today against Herman, a creditor of the United States district court, a petitioner who had declared an involuntary bankruptcy was heard and granted, and in the circuit court of Milwaukee county proceedings were brought to a halt. The National Bank of the Republic, a creditor of the assigned Plankinton bank, to have Herman removed as assignee of the trust, on the ground that he had misappropriated the funds and left the country. These two actions will undoubtedly be the main ones out of the litigation which Herman has caused. Herman is a resident of Chicago, Ill., and is believed to have left his creditors, by reason of his peculiar methods in assigning duplicate notes and mortgages and other questionable transactions. Judge Seaman appointed Paul G. Lewis receiver of the assets of Herman on petition of three of the creditors and fixed his bond at $5,000. Arguments will be heard tomorrow for the appointment of a successor to Herman as assignee of the Plankinton bank.

Duff fled to a restaurant, followed by his brandishing revolver. The woman of whom Mrs. Duff was jealous is a sister-in-law of the notorious Tom Baker, who was shot to death by officers while resisting arrest at Bryant, Wis., for participating in a knife fight. Mrs. Duff was arrested. She expressed regret that she did not also shoot "that woman, too."

Young Woman Thought to Have Killed Her Child as Well as Herself. Special to The Globe. CROOKSTON, Minn., April 20.—The body of a fully developed child was found in a four-quart tin pail on the river bank near the depot. The child, a Northern baby, was in a good state of preservation and from all appearances had been in the bucket only a few hours. The body was nude. A strange woman who committed suicide in a hotel at Grand Forks last night is believed to have been the mother of the child, and it is thought that shame and perhaps infanticide led her to destroy her life.

The body was found in a thicket a mile from the main road. Johnson leaned against a tree and jammed the stock of the gun on the ground, pressing the trigger with stick. The only cause assigned is the fact that he had great quantities of wheat and flour stored and the falling tendency of prices caused him to grow despondent. He was married and had several children.

Minneapolis FLOUR MILLS TO RESUME TODAY

No Change Yet Made in the Transportation Rates.

The milling of flour has been resumed at the Minneapolis flour mills. Last night all the big companies announced that they would have some of their mills in operation again today. There is no change in the attitude of the railroads as to the transportation rates as far as can be learned, although it is stated that concessions are expected as soon as the necessary arrangements can be effected. In the meantime only as many of the mills will be operated as will be sufficient to enable the millers to fulfill their contracts. Very little information could be obtained from the millers themselves. It is learned, however, that the smaller concerns showed a disposition to go to work first, the reason being that they are less affected by and differential there may be in the rates of wheat and flour transportation to the East, and they felt that the strength that had accrued to the flour market and consequent stiffening of prices that has resulted from the shut-down is sufficient inducement for them to resume. This is not known, but resulted in two of the smaller concerns commencing operations again this morning. All the millers agreed that they were anxious to get their wheels going, but it was not until late yesterday afternoon that any decided information could be obtained of their immediate intentions.

Charles C. Bevy, of the Washburn-Crosby company, said: "We have some contracts on hand which it is necessary we should fill. To enable us to do so we shall start two of our mills today. The change has been taken place in the transportation situation, but I understand a meeting is to be held with the railroad managers, when it is expected amicable and satisfactory arrangements will be made."

Inquiry at the office of the Pillsbury company elicited a message that some of their mills would be started.

H. P. Gallaher, vice president of the Consolidated Milling company, also said that some of their mills would be running today, but there was no change in the railroad situation.

J. S. Bell, president of the Washburn-Crosby company, is reported to have said that the railroads have given their assurances of an encouraging nature.

"They have not," he said, "as yet committed themselves to exact statements as to what they will do, but we feel sure of their sincerity and are confident of fair treatment. So we will begin operating our plants and I trust they will all be permanently, but of course (everything) will depend upon what our rates are to be."

SHE SLIPS JUDGE 25 CENTS.

Bride Hands Judge Harrison a Quarter for Marriage Fee. By the act of a bustling young bride a civic was marked yesterday by Judge Harrison, in his chambers, for 25 cents, an act which elicited the remark that the judge was dealing out "one-cent lies."

The Modest couple appeared in Judge Harrison's chambers and asked him to perform the marriage ceremony. The bride was brought in at once and the knot was tied with dispatch.

"Thank you," said the happy bride, "I am indebted to you for a neatly wrapped package. We want to leave this as a remembrance." Whereupon the newly married pair went out and left the witnesses to the judge to unwrap the numerous layers of papers. When the contents were finally reached it proved to be a 25-cent piece.

Body of R. L. Elder, of Fargo, Discovered in Room at Windsor. R. L. Elder, of Fargo, N. D., was found dead in his bed at the Windsor hotel yesterday morning. And Learned the Scientific Value of Pure Food. Taking notice of little things is a valuable faculty in life and many great discoveries have sprung from a humble source indeed.

"One day," says a lady of Norwich, N. Y., a sister of the County Judge and surrogate of Chenango county. "I noticed on a grocer's shelf the now familiar package of Grape-Nuts. I asked him to let me see it, read what it had to say for itself, paid the 15 cents required by the merchant and became its possessor."

"At this time I had lost my desire for food, having suffered so terribly from indigestion and all of its attendant evils that no food agreed with me or attracted me. Being on the time that I began to eat my first Grape-Nuts. I began to improve, eating it every morning and frequently at noons and nights."

"I very soon found my whole strength coming back to me with an added force. I gained in flesh and also found I could eat what I desired with relish without any ill effects following. In short it has changed my life."

"A few weeks since I visited a niece in Pennsylvania whose stomach refused to care for any food put into it. Rice, whole wheat bread and other foods had to be pumped out ten hours after eating. I suggested Grape-Nuts and she ate it and when the contents of her stomach were syphoned out there was no trace of Grape-Nuts to be found; it had digested and been assimilated. She made great gains in strength and flesh while I was there and made the six-mile ride to Scranton three times, something that had not been able to do for three months previous. HE WANTED TO KNOW.

Puzzled Over a Clash Between Ancient Mythology and Modern Fact. "It's just a trifling question I would like to ask," he remarked.

"Glad to give you any information in my power, returned the obliging salesman. "This is very simple," explained the man. "I'm sure it will show you no trouble at all. I note that you have made a question to me—a very simple question that you are advertising extensively. We usually have something that we are anxious to sell."

"This is a minor detail of feminine harness," he said. "Harnesse! You mean apparel, don't you?" "Possibly. I confess that I don't know much about it, but it seems to me that harness was the better word. You call it, please."

"Ah, yes; an excellent question. Do you want one?" "Back away!" exclaimed the stranger. "I'm not married, and I'm not foolish enough to think that it would make any woman do with you. I have been the name that attracted me. It was an attractive name, isn't it?"

"It is the article itself is the most comfortable and sensible thing in the line on the market. Let me show you." "Wouldn't do a bit of good," hastily interjected the stranger. "The modern girl, but I have made a study of it. I've been to the store where you sell her and any number of statues and statuettes and somehow this seemed to suggest to me something very different. As I have explained, and one that you can readily answer, but it has worried me."

The salesman, secure in his superior knowledge of feminine affairs, looked at the stranger with obliging condescension, and suggested that he was ready for the question. "The question is, what is it to him, impressively as it did to you?" "What in thunder would Venus do with a harness supporter? I have done it. It is appropriately named, like everything else of its kind, but I really can't think what it would do with you. RESTING ON NOTHING.

Faculty of Poising Possessed by Some of the Largest Birds. "While I never have seen it explained in print," said one of the ornithological sharps of the Bronx Zoo, "it is a wonder to me persons should express amazement at the ability of certain birds to hang poised in the air without wing motion."

"It is a favorite trick of the great condor. Away in the air, far beyond the mountain tops, these birds hang poised as motionless as if perched on a branch. True, their wings are outstretched, but even though the slightest motion is perceptible. They remain in this position for many minutes, sometimes an hour, making a careful scrutiny of everything below. These birds are not content with hanging, but with a slight tilting of the wings, they flap slowly away, or, having found what they were seeking, dart like a bullet toward it. The eagle, hawk and other species have this same faculty of poising, apparently on nothing."

"These birds do not move about until they meet an uprising current of air. It may come from immediately beneath them, from wind deflected by striking a cliff along the sea, or may come from a great distance, where a rushing wind strikes the side of a mountain, and is turned upward. Being on the wing most of the time in search for prey, they have learned to utilize these up-rushing air currents for their own purposes. Coming to one of these, and poising to the wind, they fix their pinions at an angle which will permit them to rest there and scrutinize some thing that has taken their attention, perhaps, on the plain below. Thus, while they seem poised on nothing, the air current rushing upward buoyants them."

"You see the same thing done in midocean when ships are followed by flocks of gulls, in some rare cases clear across the ocean. When the ships start out the gulls fly here and there, sometimes away on high, and again skimming the surface of the water in search of food. As the hours and days pass they tire, and then you will see them poise for rest on the air current rising from the stern of the ship. The ornithologist who has observed this so swiftly rising air current in its wake. This curdles over like a wave and rushes into the vacuum made by the steamer, and on it the gulls are carried along without effort, and at the same speed at which the ship is traveling."—New York Press.

WHALE IN THE THAMES.

Britains Are Wondering What Dread Catastrophe Is to Befall Now. The English papers are asking what portent the appearance of a whale in the Thames signifies. In former times such an appearance was considered ominous. One was caught off Greenwich three months prior to the death of Oliver Cromwell, and the common opinion was expressed by Heath in his "Fulgurium." "It pleased God," he remarks, "to usher in his reign with a great whale some three months before June 2, that came up as far as Greenwich, and there was killed." Evelyn, in his "Diary" under the date of June 3, 1658, mentions that a whale was killed off Greenwich, and that it drew English Manners. An English newspaper was found in bed one morning with its pages badly cut. "Why did you do it?" he asked. His reply: "For amusement, I had nothing else to do." This chimed in curiously with an old French epigram on English manners and customs: Here He Sir John Plum pudding of the name. Who hung himself one morning for a change.
