COAST SYNDICATE WILL CONSTRUCT ALASKAN RAILWAY

Contracts for the Building and Equipment of New Line Are Awarded to a Chicago Company—Road Will Open Country of Unlimited Resources.

The Seward Construction company, of Chicago, has secured the contract for building and equipping 413 miles of the Alaska Central railway, from Resurrection bay north through the Cook Inlet country and up the Susstina valley to the Tanana river, 450 miles above its junction with the Yukon.

The construction company is made up of Illinois, Michigan and Ohio capitalists. Its general manager is John Dowdle, of the contracting firm of Nash & Dowdle.

The company has placed an order for seventy-pound steel rails, which will be shipped via Seattle and Vancouver. Locomotives and cars also have been secured and will be forwarded with the rails. Construction work will be pushed with all possible speed.

Financed by Prominent Men. The new railroad is projected by prominent men of the Pacific coast. The headquarters are at Seattle and the financial office in Chicago. The president is George W. Dickinson, formerly manager of the Northern Pacific. F. August Heintz, the Montana copper mine owner, is also heavily interested in the railway company and is one of its directors. John E. Baine, of Seattle, chairman of the finance committee, has been in charge of the financial arrangements, which are now definitely concluded.

The Central Trust company, of Illinois, trustee for the bond holders. The chief engineer of construction is A. W. Swantz, of Chicago, representing directly some of the financial interests in the project. The chief engineer of construction is A. W. Swantz, of Chicago, representing directly some of the financial interests in the project.

Road to Open Rich Country. The southern harbor of the Alaska Central is open every day in the year. Owing to the influence of the Japan current the water here never falls to zero. The route of the railway, which was surveyed last summer, is through a valley heavily timbered and opens a vast country rich in coal, gold and copper.

Its northern terminus is in the midst of the rich Tanana gold fields, many times more fertile than the Klondike. The road will make interior Alaska accessible every day in the year. The route of the railway, which was surveyed last summer, is through a valley heavily timbered and opens a vast country rich in coal, gold and copper.

Will Tap Farming District. The agriculture department of the United States government has carried on agricultural experiments for the last five years in Southern and Central Alaska and has demonstrated that any vegetation can be grown successfully which can be grown in the Northern states of the Union. The climatic conditions are about the same as in England and Southern Norway. These countries are tempered by the gulf stream similarly as Southern and Central Alaska is tempered by the Japan current.

In addition to the resources of gold, coal and timber, the new railway will penetrate a copper belt, which has been pronounced by government and private mineralogists to be the most extensive and highest grade copper deposits known in the world.

Mr. Dowdle will leave Chicago with his construction equipment next Wednesday, via Seattle en route to Seward, the southern terminus of the Alaska Central. Mr. Baine left for Seattle yesterday.

MAKES NO INCREASE. Eight-Dollar Rate to Chicago Does Not Effect Travel.

The $8 rate to Chicago went into effect yesterday. The sale of tickets was not above the daily average and apparently no new business has been done. There is a widespread impression among the public and railroad men that the rate will remain a permanent one.

This is strengthened by the fact that the lines from Chicago to Missouri river points are not making in a 2-cent-a-mile rate, for if they do not meet the rate the greater portion of the bound business from the Pacific coast to Chicago will go via the Twin Cities.

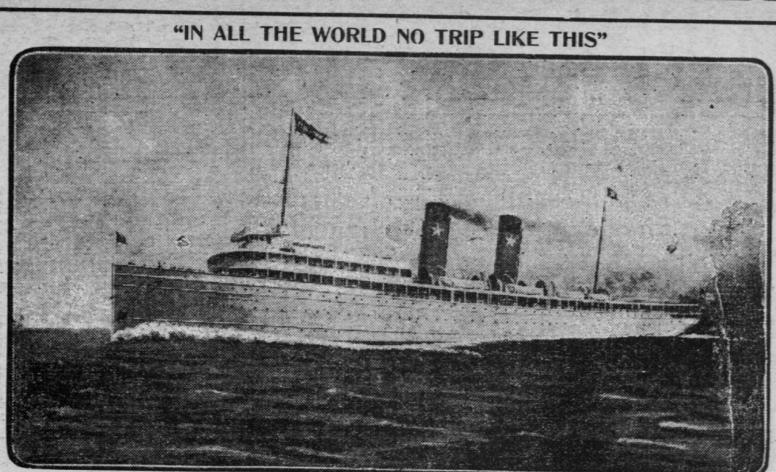

The logical outcome of the low rate is a 2-cent-a-mile rate for all passenger business, and it will be only a question of time until this comes, although there

NEITHER PARENT MAY HAVE THE CHILDREN

Drawn Battle Between Mrs. Rinehart and Her Professional Husband.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 20.—The legal contest which has been going on for years between Mrs. Zela E. Rinehart and her former husband, Henry M. Willis, professor of elocution in the law department of the National university at Washington, D. C., for possession of their daughters, aged seven and five years, ended today. Circuit Judge Fisher denied the custody of the children to either parent and remanded them to the care of the Methodist Orphan's home.

Mrs. Rinehart separated from Willis in Kirkin, Ind., in April, 1899. She returned to the home of her parents in Tennessee, taking the children with her. She was granted a divorce and custody of the children.

Willis claimed he did not know of the divorce until it had been granted. He entered suit to have the divorce set aside and applied for a writ of habeas corpus to get the children. He took the children to St. Louis and placed them in the Methodist home.

Judge Fisher directed that the children be kept in the home for five years, or until the further order of the court.
