MINNEAPOLIS BOYS DROWN IN RIVER

Absence of St. Paul's Facilities for Bathing is the Cause.

Twelve boys between the ages of fourteen and twenty have been drowned in Minneapolis since the waters of the lakes and river became warm enough for bathing.

One boy was drowned at Lake Calhoun. The Mississippi river claimed the other eleven.

In St. Paul, where there are free baths in a convenient location, there has not been a small boy drowned for years.

Minneapolis has a public bath house, but it is in such a location that it is impossible for a person to save time by going to St. Paul and enjoy the pleasures of Harriet island instead of patronizing the so-called bathing institution in Minneapolis.

McKEAN'S DEATH A MYSTERY. Police Unable to Locate Any of His Relatives.

The supposed suicide of Leslie McKean, whose body was found in the Mississippi river near South St. Paul, Sunday afternoon, is still shrouded in mystery.

The note found upon the body, giving the address of the late Fourth avenue south, Minneapolis, is the only evidence the police of this city have with which to locate any of McKean's relatives.

So far the search for any information concerning him has been unavailing. His name does not appear in the city directory and reference to the address given in the note found on the body reveals the fact that he moved from that place about six months ago.

EAGLES HONOR DEAD BROTHERS. Memorial Services Are Held at the Bijou Theater.

The annual memorial service of the Fraternal Order of Eagles was held yesterday afternoon at the Bijou theater. The body of the house was well filled with members of the order and their families and friends.

The stage was tastefully decorated with palms and carnations and four large candelabra which Rev. G. L. Morrill used to illustrate a brief memorial ceremony.

The names of the departed brothers were read and with each name one of the burning candles was extinguished.

A most interesting programme including Thayer's "The Lord Is My Shepherd," Lechner's "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and Dana's "Father Almighty," was contributed by Miss Christine McCullum.

OFFER BIG PRIZES. Awards for Displays in National Buttermakers' Convention at Sioux Falls.

Special to The Globe. SIOUX FALLS, S. D., July 12.—The premium list for the annual convention of the National Creamery Buttermakers' association, to be held in Sioux Falls Oct. 13 to 23 next, has been completed.

The sum of $5,000 will be distributed among exhibitors as follows: $2,000 to be divided pro rata among all those scoring over $9, no matter what the amount of profit or not, and $3,000 to be divided pro rata among those who score over $9 and are present at the convention.

The large prizes are offered by the friends of the association to induce buttermakers to attend. For the sum of $50 will be presented to the state delegation which makes the best appearance in the parade, a solid gold medal, and for one of the days the convention will be in session, and $25 to the state delegation making next to the best appearance.

A championship cup valued at $100 will be awarded to the buttermaker whose average score is highest in the six months' educational tests. For the best package of creamery butter in the convention, a solid gold medal, and for the second best package of creamery butter, a silver medal.

The state delegation having the highest average score, a beautiful silk banner, costing not less than $100, will be awarded, provided there are ten or more entries from that state.

To the buttermaker scoring highest from each state having ten or more entries, a silver cup valued at $50, providing that he is not the winner of the first or second prize, and in the event that a buttermaker scores 95 or better.

Only one package will be received from each creamery. Under the rules of the association no side or special premiums are accepted by the association.

Redfield Confers Degree. Special to The Globe. HURON, S. D., July 12.—Redfield college has conferred the degree of doctor of divinity upon Rev. W. H. Thrall, of this city, for several years superintendent of Congregational missions in South Dakota, and one of the leading preachers of the Northwest. This is the first degree of the kind conferred by this college.

HOTEL MEN PUT OFF MEET. Convention at Sioux Falls Not to Be Held Until Fall.

Special to The Globe. SIOUX FALLS, S. D., July 12.—The convention of hotel men of Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Oklahoma, which was to have met in Sioux Falls July 21, 22 and 23, for the purpose of organizing an association, has been postponed to Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 5 and 6, next.

Owing partially to the fact that many of the hotel men in the territory which is proposed to include in the new association are at present taking their summer vacations, and for other reasons, it was decided to hold the convention next January instead of this month.

In January the hotel men will be doing the highest business of the year, enabling members of the association to attend the convention in this city then would be the case if the meeting was to be held as originally contemplated.

The hotel men throughout the territory to be covered by the new association are manifesting great interest in the convention, and several hundred are certain to be present. It is expected that in time even the annual meetings of the association in the organization will become members of the association.

The convention to organize the association will be held in the middle of the winter. It is probable that mid-winter will be the best time to hold the annual meetings and that excursions to summer resort points will be a feature of the annual meetings after the organization is perfected.

Special to The Globe. ST. JAMES, Minn., July 12.—Recently, while taking a wedding trip with his bride to the Black Hills, Prof. Charles E. Jones, having in his pocketbook a city, lost his pocketbook, which contained his railroad ticket and over $500 in cash. He lost his surprise he had just received an express package containing the missing pocketbook and its contents, just as he was about to start for home. difficulty in breathing. The doctors returned at 7:30 p. m. and their bulletins gave negative encouragement, simply showing that the favorable conditions of the morning had been maintained.

Throughout the day St. Peter's was surrounded by the usual Sunday worshippers, and a steady line of inquirers visited the Vatican court yard, where the bulletins are issued.

Unusual rigor was adopted to prevent unseemly gatherings. One notable instance of Vatican sternness was the arrest of Capt. Smith, commanding the Swiss guard, for having given information to the press.

WHERE THE POPE LIES ILL. ROME, July 12.—As many fantastic descriptions are in circulation regarding the room where Pope Leo lies, the representative of the Associated Press has taken some pains to secure an exact account from one of the pope's nephews, who sees his uncle daily.

The room is large, bright and airy. The walls are hung with pale green and gold silk damask. Entering it, with the sun pouring through the arched window, is like a taste of spring. A large curtain divides the room and is generally drawn open, showing on the right the modest brass bed covered with a red damask coverlet. Even in his desperate condition, Pope Leo shows great daintiness with regard to his person, performing a full toilet whenever possible and changing daily his fine white batiste nightshirt.

At the head of the bed is a good picture of the Madonna, besides a holy water font, while in the middle of the adjacent wall is an immense crucifix, reaching from floor to ceiling, with an ivory figure of Christ. At the foot of the bed stands a very simple walnut writing desk, at which the pope has written the best of his Italian poems.

On the other side of the curtain stands the now famous armchair, which is most comfortable, a small table, a few shelves with the pope's preferred books and nothing more. The chamber gives the idea of extreme simplicity, luxuries being rigorously banished.

Even in his present condition, Pope Leo has great objection to having people about him unless specially called, so that except in the moments when he is much worse, Dr. Lapponi and his valet, Centra, themselves could not enter unless he rang. Centra, who is most reluctant to leave the room, asked this morning if the pontiff did not think it better to have someone always to keep him company. Pope Leo tranquilly replied: "I am in good company," pointing to the large crucifix.

Now and then the pope suspects that something is being concealed from him, so today, after the visit of the doctor, when a copy of the medical bulletin was brought in, he read it attentively and then rang. When Centra appeared in response to the bell, he said abruptly: "Bring me another copy of the bulletin," and evidently thinking that the first one had been doctored for his benefit, as has been done before. But today Centra was able triumphantly to bring another identical with the first.

One of the greatest difficulties is to prevent the pope from speaking too much. When some one is allowed to visit him, he immediately begins describing the satisfaction he felt on the occasion of the last jubilee, and also at the manifestation of sympathy from all parts of the world during his present illness, which he considers almost providential to strengthen the influence of the Catholic church in the person of its head.

Then either the doctor or one of his nephews steps in and monopolizes the conversation, obliging the pope to be silent, which he does not like at all. It is wonderful what different impressions people receive of the pope's condition, according to their different temperaments. For instance, the Associated Press correspondent was present when Cardinals Ferrata, Segna and Cardinal Peretti, rubbing his hands together, said: "The holy father is almost convalescent. We shall soon see him in the Vatican gardens again."

Cardinal Segna, making the sign of the cross, sighed: "Our beloved pontiff is lost," while Cardinal Peretti, shaking his head in doubt, exclaimed: "Who knows?"

GIBBONS HAS NO CHANCE. Successor of Pope Leo Will Be an Italian.

LONDON, July 12.—The Daily Telegraph correspondent at Rome telegraphs: "I am authorized to state, on the authority of two cardinals, one of whom is himself a candidate, that neither Cardinal Gibbons nor any other foreign member of the sacred college possesses the remotest chance of succeeding Pope Leo."

KING AWAITS SUMMONS. Expects to Be Recalled to Rome at Any Moment.

ROME, July 12.—King Victor Emmanuel has given orders to keep the quirinal palace in readiness, as he may come to Rome at any time from his summer villa near Turin, on account of the best of his health, and in case of his death. In any event the king and queen will return to Rome July 29.

In addition to Dr. Rossini, five newspaper correspondents were admitted to those stricken with fever. The latter have been taken to the hospital. Telegrams of inquiry continue to come from foreign governments, messages from Bolivia, Argentina and Peru arriving today.

PARIS FEELS RELIEVED. Anxiety as Expressed in Number of Inquiries Decreases.

PARIS, July 12.—The reassuring news received this morning regarding the pope has sensibly reduced the number of callers at the nunciature, where this afternoon a telegram from Cardinal Rampolla was posted, stating that the slight improvement in the condition of his holiness continued. Foreign Minister Delcasse was among the earliest callers.

The Habit of Not Feeling Well. Few people realize that their ailments are largely self-induced, says O. S. Marcolini in "The Habit of Not Feeling Well." If they get up in the morning with a slight headache or some trifling ailment, instead of trying to rise above this condition, they take a positive pleasure in ex-patulating upon their feelings to any one who will listen. Instead of combating the tendency to illness by filling the lungs with pure, fresh air, they dose themselves with "headache tablets" or some other patent specific warranted to cure whatever ill they think they are suffering from. They begin to pity themselves and try to attract pity and sympathy from others. Unconsciously, by detailing and dwelling upon their symptoms, they reinforce the first simple suggestions of illness by a whole army of thoughts and fears and imagines of disease until they are unable to do a day's work in their homes or offices.

There is greater danger that young girls who are delicate while growing up and lounge around the house and let down whenever they feel the least bit out of sorts will form a habit of invalidism when they reach maturity.

How often do we see such girls "brace up" at once when anything happens which interests or excites them. An invitation to a reception or a ball or any other pleasant social function acts like a tonic. For the time being they are vigorous and full of spirit, but when the excitement is over, they are as well as anybody until after the entertainment.

Indigent mothers are frequently to blame for this physical and mental lassitude—for it is nothing more—on the part of their daughters. A lounge or sofa is a positive curse in many a home, because it is such a temptation to lie down and succumb to trifling suggestions of illness or the least indisposition. A habit of giving in whenever you "don't feel like it" is not such maturity.

Free discipline, self-poise and nobility and dignity of bearing.

Gives Away His Weight in Gold. The Maharajah of Travancore is an East Indian prince, who dresses in silks and muslins and covers himself with ropes of pearls and ornaments of diamonds. He has lakes of rupees and stores of pearls and ornaments of diamonds and palaces and numerous villages. One year the Maharajah becomes generous, and in a stately and traditional way, following the custom which has been handed down to him by his ancestors from time immemorial, the Maharajah has just celebrated his annual charity with unusual splendor. Months before the money his government bought great quantities of gold, the greater part of which was converted into coin. On the auspicious day the price went in great state to the temple of the goddess, with solemn Hindoo rites, presented an elephant to the priests of Brahma. In the temple a great number of animals had been set up, and into one of the scales the Maharajah stepped. His sword and shield were not generous in the amount of gold and the priests standing about chanting Vedic hymns. As the weight of gold proclaimed the generosity of the Maharajah and he rose gradually from the floor the artillery stationed outside fired a salute, proclaiming to the world the greatness of the measure of his highness' philanthropy was full. Then, with elaborate ceremony, the Maharajah was escorted back to his palace and the gold was distributed among 15,000 Brahmins previously selected.

Philanthropy will now take another twelve months' sleep in Travancore.

Shows Interest in Affairs. Hearing that the cardinal had not yet moved there, Pope Leo said: "You must settle yourself before leaving for the country," as though the conclave was a most remote possibility. He thanked Cardinal Casali for the warm interest he had taken in his illness and gave all the cardinals his hand to shake. As the king of Spain had telegraphed to inquire about the pope's health and had asked for the papal benediction, his holiness directed Cardinal Rampolla to telegraph back granting the request.

Later, the pontiff took a short nap and slept tranquilly enough, although he seemed to have somewhat more
