

FASHIONS FROM VOGUE

Prepared Specially for THE GLOBE.

It seems well determined that the tailor-made gown for afternoon wear shall have the short coat both in bolero and eton effects, and only in the shopping suits does the extreme three-quarter coat appear...

work gun metal, a smaller size used on sleeves. The eton coat is double breasted with slight blouse at back continuing the box plait panel effect on skirt, widening towards shoulders.

Today's illustration shows a calling costume charmingly simple but perfect in every detail. It is of navy blue panne cloth over taffeta in the same shade, and an occasional glimpse of the silk foundation shows a finish of three-narrow accordion plaitings.

A lace blouse of real Bruges in its pale tulle color would be stunning to wear with this, making a lovely contrast. One of the smartest models for a waist of this kind has the front laid in wide triple box plait effect with a frill of accordion platted chiffon from under the edge at the fastening toward left side.

association is out of debt. The president's annual address was delivered by Rev. Florence K. Crooker, of Michigan. She vigorously attacked the policy of giving money to any church.

alone is this collection beautiful, but there are many faces that belonged to historical personages. Rev. says Miss Lena Morton will remain unmarried, she is the daughter and is with her mother a great deal.

Will Devote Herself to One Pupil. Special to The Globe. NORTHFIELD, Minn., Oct. 23.—Miss A. B. Stanford, principal of the high school here, has resigned. Her successor has not been announced as yet.

Already one hears of horse show plans, and there is no reason why this show should not equal the brilliant ones of the past. Dressmakers are advising furs for wear in the garden.

A fashionable woman of middle age advises every young maiden as follows: "Never marry a man until you have seen his upper lip. Man has an advantage over us, because he can read us through our lips. We cannot read him through his mustache, which, no matter how beautiful, is an expressionless adornment."

HOUSEHOLD TALKS. The wondrous, a tropical African food product recently introduced in Asia and South America, is destined, it is said, to take the place of the peanut before long.

Whenever the Marquis de Perigord, daughter of Levi P. Morton, returns to America there is fine entertainment in her honor. The marquis is on the ocean and should arrive on next Saturday. She is the prettiest and most attractive of the Morton girls, and it was really she and her sister, Mrs. William C. Eustis, who brought the Mortons into their greatest social prominence in Paris the former Miss Helen Morton is a great success.

Gradually Mrs. Morton has withdrawn from the social whirl. True, she attends dinners of the Clewises, Pours and Hoffmans, but that is the full extent of her social activity, whereas she used to be a fixture at the ceremonious balls. When Mrs. Morton moved into her new home, at No. 681 Fifth avenue, a called said, "I can't see how you are to do any entertaining. This house is not entirely too homelike. 'I shall not have any entertaining," replied Mrs. Morton.

Universalist Women Meet. WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—The thirty-fourth session of the Woman's Centenary association of the universalist organization of the Universalist church, convened here today. The report of the treasurer showed that the

All food specialists agree that black tea is much preferable to green in its effect on the nervous, but some people think they might just as well give up tea altogether as drink the black va-city. In such cases the taste may be changed by adding a little black tea to a pound of green and increasing the quantity each time tea is purchased. Coppers make a capital disinfectant for a kitchen sink or other place needing a thorough cleansing.

Both vinegar and sugar have cohesive qualities when mixed with black lead. Women who have trouble in getting their stove polish to stay on their stoves find a pinch of ordinary granulated sugar makes it cohere. A dash of vinegar has the same effect.

A woman who is her own laundress folds all flat pieces, like towels, pillowcases and sheets, carefully, then passes them several times through the wringer. The effect is as if they had been mangled, and it saves a deal of ironing.

Kerosene will not only remove the dirt that collects in a sort of rim around the sides of a porcelain bathtub, but it will take off the white blotches that form on the zinc-lined tubs. Apply with a cloth saturated with the fluid and then wrung out. Follow with hot water and soda.

"I think I would rather have my clothes eaten off my back by moths than go around smelling as disagreeably as some people I sit near at night. And in the cars," said a young woman the other day, "the stinks of the streets is quite as effective a moth killer as moth balls or camphor. I use it freely, and I like the consciousness of being pleasantly scented with a clean, aromatic odor, which none is likely to mind."

Tiny squares of buttered toast are delicious served with the cup of afternoon tea. One young woman who serves them regularly to anyone who happens to call, but really they are a little bigger than that. The crust is cut off before they are toasted, and the toasting is applied to both sides. An ordinary slice of bread will make four "postage stamps."

A paint brush makes a good swab for butter cake tins. Of course, the bristles that is applied must be first moistened. Lace will not thicken if washed in naphtha. Immerse in the fluid and let the lace remain for an hour or two.

"My children will never have consumption," said an English mother with confidence, as she spooned out liquid bacon fat onto bread and handed it around to her eight children. English people understand better than Americans the dietetic value of bacon. For one thing, their bacon is better than ours; for another, the taste for bacon is a national one.

Cucumber spirals are a pretty novelty to serve with fish. After peeling the cucumbers and tossing them into ice water, cut the cucumber round and round with a fine, very sharp knife, as if it were an apple you were paring. The result should be a long, slender ring, the center of the ring a thin slice of cucumber. The rings are served with the pretty sprigs.

A basket of flowers and trailing vines formed a hanging centerpiece that was greatly admired at a recent luncheon. The basket is suspended from the center chandelier. If there is one, and from the ceiling if there isn't. It hangs to within a few inches of the table, and from it depend vines and sprays, or sometimes ribbons. The idea is capable of innumerable possibilities.

With those who live out of town there is ever the question of finding a gown that will be suitable to wear in the trams or boats and still dressy enough for when they attend a function they may wish to attend.

The costume shown in today's illustration is one that fully meets these requirements and will be welcome accordingly. The material is a mouse gray French broadcloth combined with chiffon velvet in the same color. The skirt is seamed at center front and at full habit back and is box plaited with very small plaits in gradient, and effect. The hem is four inches deep and stitched at top. The coat is extremely stylish and quite out of the ordinary.

The vest front and military collar correspond to cuffs and chiffon folds edge the neck. The fastening is on left shoulder and not visible. With this a picture hat of velvet in the same shade is trimmed with smoke gray ostrich plumes and has a soft draped crown and a long cut steel buckle in flange design holds the drapery in folds across back on brim. Under the brim at left shaded velvet roses in burnt orange tints nestle against the hair.

Open the "Window of the Sole" and see the honest, oak-tanned leather—you can't see the sole leather in any other shoe—the others are all black and shiny with paint, and 90 per cent. of all paint-bottom shoes have hemlock soles.

FOR and ABOUT WOMEN

PUPILS CAN'T SPELL MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

Mrs. J. M. Robinson, of Fuller street, entertained at euchre last night. The Good Luck Social club will give a progressive euchre party this evening at Bowly hall, Sixth and Robert streets. The committee in charge is Mrs. W. A. Boink and Miss Marion Murray.

The reception given yesterday afternoon and evening by the Art Workers' guild in honor of Miss Alice Austin, of Boston, was a very pretty affair. It was held in the hall of the Loomis school on Holly avenue, and the room was decorated with the art photographs made by Miss Austin. The ladies who received with Miss Austin were Miss Constans, Miss Eleanor Wheelock, Mrs. T. C. Stohr, Mrs. Conde Hamlin and Miss Colter.

There are persons who are natural spellers and have small need of study in this particular line; there are others who are especially weak in spelling, and they should make a study of it. A few years ago it was discovered in the high school of this town that boys and girls were up in psychology and cosmology could not spell cat. This alarmed the superintendent of the school, and he ordered that a thorough course in spelling be given to the juniors and seniors. Since then things have improved a little, but it cannot be honestly said that their compositions are literary gems.

No one can complain of the introduction of cooking and sewing into the schools—although it is a question whether they belong there—but if more attention could be paid to the old-fashioned three R's, and less time to subjects not so vital, much would be gained. The original idea of public schools was to give all children a common school education. High schools, languages, manual training, cooking and sewing were not any of them included. Whether or not it is wise to teach a multitude of things at the expense of the public is a question.

However, no matter how many new ideas are included and novel methods used, the primary and elementary studies should not be neglected, and the scholar who can botanize and yet is not able to write a well composed and decently spelled letter is but differently educated. Cooking and sewing, and even manual training in the way of wood carving, are matters that will be found more useful to the ordinary pupil than botany and the arts. To give a boy a common school education—which can be done in the grades without the high school course—and fit him to earn his living with a trade, is all that is necessary or desirable. If he wants more he will find a way to get it.

Marie Funny objection to "Chidlow" bread. Woman said: "They eat too much of it." She forgot that when people like their bread, its economical, healthful living. If you don't like any bread of ours, your grocer returns your money. Ward-Corby Co.
