HIAWATHA ON YELLOW JOURNALS.

"Once again," said Hiawatha, "once again the merrill I tackle; Hearken to the gentle murmur Of my dulcet voice, my dearies, While I sing of yellow journals And of yellow journalism. In the city of Chicago Is a publisher named Willie— Winsome little Willie Brighteyes, Who has also done some damage In New York and San Francisco, Roaming that Milwaukee is the home of merrill journals Better, brighter far than his'n. Recently he sent me a copy of his imaginative saying, 'Get for me a story, Get for me a startling story— One that the merrill papers Never knew of, never dreamt of.' Whereupon the correspondent Circulated in our columns, Shot the bunk for further orders, Hypnotized Big Bill, the sachem, Conned the chief, the mighty David, And faked up a wondrous issue Of the wildest fabrications Bearing on the howling question, 'Splendid!' chuckled Willie Brighteyes, 'You are very wise, my daughter, Handsomely I thank thee— Here is an enlarged picture Of myself— I pritzee take it— It will ornament your boudoir! All of which somehow reminds me Of the first real yellow journal That was ever circulated. Once I had a second cousin In the land of the Chiblainians, Hit-the-Calumet, they called him, Owing to his love of smoking. For a moon or so he published The Bi-Weekly Doperina. First of all the yellow journals Printer's ink was far too somber, Human gore he used, my children, And it made bright crimson headlines Yellow birchbark from the forest. For a while the Doperina Managed to obtain subscribers By inventing spiv stories Bearing on the little foibles Of the frailest Chiblainians; But, alas! one winter morning The Bi-Weekly Doperina, Printed in its social column, Something touching on the antics Of a Mrs. Solar-Plexus, Whereupon Chief Solar-Plexus, In the simple, earnest manner Of the average noble red man, Fled the editor, my children, Hit-the-Calumet resembled Fifty-Finchelton the Hedgehog! Thus did old Chief Solar-Plexus Squelch the first known yellow journal In the land of the Chiblainians!" —William F. Kirk in Milwaukee Sentinel.

Useful Gifts. Mr. and Mrs. John Holt, according to the Kansas City Journal, celebrated their golden wedding at Independence last Monday. The neighbors gathered in and gave Mr. Holt an overcoat and his wife a set of false teeth. And thus we find utilitarianism stalking ahead of sentiment.

The past week in society has been the most so far of the season. Dinners, receptions, luncheons and a large wedding followed each other in quick succession and every day and night was marked, not only by one or two, but several different functions. The brilliancy and elaborateness of every affair were commented upon by every one. The tea given by Mrs. Finch and Miss Finch on Monday was a fitting beginning for a week of gaiety, and nothing which occurred on successive days was more beautiful than the scene presented to view in the Finch home. The coming out of Miss Mary Proal Saunders on Tuesday evening was another very beautiful and lavish affair, and the fact that it was at night and there were many black coats and masculine forms among the elegantly gowned women made the occasion a notable one. An evening reception is doubly pleasant now when they are so rare, and when husbands have so little chance to take part in gaiety of any kind. Perhaps the busiest of all was Wednesday, when Miss Mary Hale Cutler made her bow in the afternoon at one of the largest teas of the season, many of the guests going on later to the Riskey-Holbert wedding at St. John's, which was as lovely as society expected, and later still to the reception at the house, when Miss Winifred Holbert made her debut.

Among the smaller affairs of the week were the card party given Thursday by Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Rogers, and which is spoken of as one of the pleasantest and most informal affairs of the winter. Friday afternoon Miss Emma Timberlake, of Arundel street, gave a small tea at the Country club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Underwood, out-of-town friends of Mrs. Charles P. Noyes. Friday night a dinner was given at the Minnesota club by Mr. George Thompson, at which ex-Gov. Marriam, now of New York, was the guest of honor. About fourteen men were present. One of the most beautiful dinners of the week was given Tuesday night by Mrs. Finch and Miss Nellie Finch in honor of the bride, Mrs. Sewall Andrews, of Minneapolis, at which were present only this season's debutantes. The presence of so many visiting girls who came to the Riskey-Holbert wedding was another reason for much social gaiety. They have been wined, dined and much entertained generally. Mrs. Riskey and Miss Riskey left yesterday for Philadelphia, and Miss Neff, of Chicago, who is the guest over Sunday of Miss Florence Finch, leaves on Tuesday for her home. Her mother, Mrs. McDool, who is Mrs. Burdick's guest, was also much entertained, and left yesterday for Chicago. Mrs. Oscar Taylor entertained Mrs. McDool at luncheon Friday. Last night all the visiting girls and several St. Paul men, including nearly all the Holbert bridal party, went over to Minneapolis to a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Sewall Andrews. Mrs. Andrews will be at home at 1709 Portland avenue on Tuesday afternoon, and not on Thursdays, as erroneously stated in her at home cards. She will be assisted by several St. Paul girls. Dr. and Mrs. Riskey, the bride and groom, are at Lakewood, N. J.

This week promises to be almost as full as the one just past. Today afternoon Miss Margaret Hammond, who has been already much entertained, will make her formal bow to society at a tea given by her sister, Mrs. Burdick, at her Parkington avenue residence. On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Nina Sturgis Dousman gives a coming out tea for her young daughter, Miss Judith Wilcox Dousman, who promises to be one of the belles of the younger set. On Friday at her residence Mrs. Edward L. Hersey will give a large luncheon, and on Friday night several prominent women and girls will go to Minneapolis to the hostesses' ball, the event par excellence of the social season in our town.

The first dance of the Cotillon club will be given Thursday night at Ramaley's hall. This is an organization of girls, mostly debutantes and members of the younger set. They give three or four parties each winter and invite the young men who have been courteous to them during the year. The members of this winter are: Miss Judson, who is the secretary; Miss Marvin, Miss Rachael Hill, Miss Katherine and Miss Lorena Abbott, Miss Conradine Schurman, Miss Gertrude Clark, Miss Violet and Miss Judith Dousman, Miss Jean Stickney, Miss Helen Dean, Miss Katherine Wheaton, Miss Miriam Holman, Miss Winifred and Miss Helen Holbert, Miss Haynie, Miss Sloan, Miss Mary Hale Cutler, Miss Margaret Hammond, Miss Carrie Fogg, Miss Kopper, Miss Nellie Finch, Miss Cornelia, Miss Caroline and Miss Mary Saunders, Miss Adele Lanpher, Miss Florence Finch, Miss Mary and Miss Abbey Livingston, Miss Millard and Miss De Coster. The young women who belong to the club set up the parties, manage them entirely and lead the German. On Thursday night the first half will be led by Miss Helen Dean and Miss Katherine Wheaton, and the second half by Miss Jean Stickney and Miss Adele Lanpher.

The flower show was a success socially, as it was in every other way, and it is almost certain that it will become a permanent institution. The combination of gorgeous flowers and pretty girls is irresistible, and the consequence was that the show was extensively patronized by the sterner sex. Its success is entirely due to women, as but one or two men had the honor to be present. It would be invidious to say which was the prettiest night, and, indeed, almost impossible, as on every evening there was in attendance a heavy of St. Paul's most charming young women. It has almost become a maxim in this city to say that to insure the success of any affair it should be put in feminine hands.

There seems to be no prospect of a surcease in social gaiety during the week following this one, although Thanksgiving day will be the occasion of family reunions and quiet dinners, rather than of formal gatherings. On Tuesday evening of next week the notable one of the season will be held at St. John's church, and on the same evening will be given a concert under the auspices of the Choral club, at which Miss Gordon is going to sing, which latter fact insures generous patronage on the part of society. On the same day Miss Elsie Kopper will make her debut at a large tea given by her mother at their Holly avenue home. The next night, Thanksgiving eve, the German club gives its first dance, an event which always makes a stir among the debutantes.

Mrs. H. J. Horn and Mrs. J. W. Adams have gone to California, where they will be guests of Mrs. Joseph Manning for the winter. Mrs. Alice Fraught, of Laurel avenue, has returned from a sojourn of eight months in the East, and will remain in St. Paul this winter. Mrs. C. A. Severance, of the Aberdeen, will spend part of the winter in the South. Mrs. T. L. Blood, of Summit avenue, has returned from Chicago. Maj. and Mrs. E. P. Andrus left on Friday for Fort Apache, Ariz.

The bride of next week, Miss Roxana Willard Smith, is to be much entertained during the next few days. Tonight Mrs. Howard James, of the Aberdeen, will give a supper in her honor; tomorrow a luncheon by Mrs. L. D. Wilkes, of the Aberdeen; luncheons for her will also be given on Tuesday by Mrs. F. P. Wright; on Wednesday by Miss Judson, and Thursday by Miss Rossum. The bridal supper, the night before the wedding, will be given by Miss Cecelia Kalman, sister of the groom.

Society is more or less interested in the musical and musical evening at the residence of Mrs. John Hubbard, on Dayton avenue. The programme is a very fine one, and the appearance of Carl Fisher, who probably be his last before leaving for the West. It is given for the benefit of St. Margaret's Guild of St. John's Church.

The marriage of Miss Ella Nisonger to Edwin E. Cunningham, of St. Paul, took place at the residence of the bride's mother, 2929 Stevens avenue, Minneapolis, on Thursday evening. Rev. George M. Morrison, of Plymouth Congregational church officiating. After refreshments Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham left for Indianapolis on Friday. The wedding party, which they will return to St. Paul to reside.

Darling, of New York. The presentations in behalf of the friends were made by Mrs. W. Drummond, of East Washington, most delightfully sung at dancing and cards. Mrs. L. Lueders and Mrs. W. Riley presided in the dining room.

One of the prettiest receptions of the past week was given at St. John's academy by the members of the two senior classes of that institution. The affair was given in the large parlors of the academy and the guests were the teachers and members of the junior classes. The room was very prettily decorated with palms and flowers. Miss Agnes Gallagher presided in the dining room, and the younger girls, and Miss Onetta Eldridge obtained the prize in the evening contest.

Mrs. George Freibert, of the Buckingham, is going to Kewanee, Ill., to attend the wedding of her cousin, Miss Louise Valentine, after which she will go to New York to spend the winter.
