State Raises Novel Point in Case of Corrivau, Convicted of Murder

Arguments were heard by the su-preme court yesterday in the appeal of Louis Corrivau from the judgment of the Lake county district court, finding him guilty of murder in the first degree. C. W. Somerby, assistant attorney general, who argued the case for the state, raised the point that Corrivau, who had accepted a commutation of his sentence of hanging to life imprisonment at Stillwater, had waived his right of appeal from the findings of the trial court.

Corrivau's attorney combatted this point and based his appeal on the ground that the evidence had been insufficient to convict, and also on all errors of law occurring in the trial. The point raised by the attorney general has not been passed upon by the courts of Minnesota. The case was taken under advisement by the supreme

Col. J. B. Cook Calls Two Venerable Friends "Boys"

Three men, whose combined ages aggregate 243 years, stood in front of the Ryan hotel desk yesterday and cut pigeon wings, bantered each other to run foot races and the oldest of the trio volunteered to do a song and dance turn just to show that, despite his

Dr. David W. Lamb, of Lawrence, Mass., was a guest at the St. Paul hotel yesterday, and in a conversation with Col. Frederick R. Welz, proprietor of the Ryan, a somewhat animated dispute arose as to which was the older. The Massachusetts doctor presented venerable appearance, but his claims to a superior age over that of Col. Welz were not accepted until the Eastern man had produced a document showing that he is eighty years old. The best that Col. Welz could lay claim to was seventy-seven, and while the hotel man had agreed to pay the penalty of having been born at least hree years too late by an adjournm to the buffet, Col. J. B. Cook, who has an office in the Ryan building, capered nimbly across the lobby. He was called in to give a reckoning of his age. "Why, you boys are mere 'kids' compared to me," declared Col. Cook. "I was quite a lad, Dr. Lamb, when you first looked on the sand dunes of the bleak New England shore, and as for you, Col. Welz, I was quite a help to father when you first saw the light of day across the water. But while I am considerably older than either of you, I am younger in a way. I feel like running a foot race, or I will do a song and dance stunt to show that I am just as young as I ever was. A man is just as old as he feels, they say, and on that theory I am just in my prime.

Col. Cook pleads guilty to being eighty-six, and in spite of his years he is one of the most active business men of St. Paul, being at his office almost every day, driving a fast horse to and from his office, and keeping an eye on a business that is one of the large institutions of the city.

Lewis and his pal were captured shortly after the commission of the crime and returned to Owatonna to stand trial,

CITY ARRANGES FOR NEW FUEL SUPPLY

Contracts for Coal and Wood for Public Schools Are Awarded

The city purchasing committee yes-terday awarded the coal and wood con-tracts for the public schools in equal shares to the Jones-Adams company and the Northwestern Fuel company, and the Northwestern Fuel company, the lower bid of Holmes & McCaughey being ruled out because it failed to comply with the specifications. The bids were for 7,500 tons of soft coal, 500 tons of hard coal, and a small quantity of wood.

For the hard coal the bids were the same, ranging from $8.45 for June to $8.75 for September, but on Youghtogheny soft coal Holmes & McCaughey bid $4.70 a ton straight, while the others asked $4.75 to $4.85 a ton. For other soft coals Holmes & McCaughey underbid the others by about the same per cent.

The specifications under which the bids were submitted required that an arrange of the coal it was analysis be given of the coal it was proposed to furnish, and as Holmes & McCaughey failed to do this their bid was rejected.

WAITRESSES MUST GIVE UP POMPADOURS

Sixth Street Restaurant Owner Declares Against the Popular Rat

"Cut down the pompadours or quit your jobs."

This is the decree of the proprieto of a popular restaurant on Sixth street to his fifty-five pretty waitresses and before the end of the week there years, he was "just as young as he is likely to be a half hundred vacancies in the profession, if the order becomes effective.

There was a conference yesterday at the restaurant and the general manager of the cafe declared to the girls that their pompadours must go.

"No more rats," declared this arbiter of fashion. "All my girls must have their hair combed down flat and parted in the middle. Now this order is final and it's either cut out, the pompadours or quit."

And then the conference ended. Fifty-five girls looked at one another and grinned. Then they left the general assembly room in the base-ment of the restaurant for the cafe proper. It was just before supper time last evening that the manager delivered his important and revolu-tionizing order. When the girls finally realized its import they were so daz-zled that they became indignant. "Well, wouldn't it cause a girl to drop her tray?" asked Josie, one of the prettiest of the many good looking "It's certainly the limit," was the

And of the fifty-five girls all but five or six are looking for new jobs, so loath are they to give up their style of headdress. The patrons of the restaurant, too, are in sympathy with the indignant waitresses and a formal petition may be made to the proprietor of the cafe to allow the girls to continue to dress their hair in any style that best pleases them.

But the proprietor seems determined. When seen last night he said: "It's just this way. The girls must cut down their pompadours or I'll be required to raise the ceilings. I have seen the pompadour, gradually grow higher, until it has finally become a disgraceful freak.

"My stand is this. A waitress is a servant. She should be dressed neat and plain. I don't care what my girls do when not working, nor do I care what they wear or how they dress their hair, but when in my restaurant they must conduct themselves as servants should.

Mont. The first set of bids was lately rejected as too high. Great disparity appeared between the proposals opened yesterday. The Miles City Lumber company offered to erect the two stables for $21,140, or for $10,570 each; Newman & Hoy, St, Paul, would build them for $16,833 each, and George J. Board of Commissioners Must Know-Cost Before Letting

Contracts

County Attorney Kane probably saved the county several thousand dollars yesterday when he dissuaded the county commissioners from entering into a contract with a White Bear company by declaring he would not draw such a contract as the one proposed by the company, which some of the commissioners wanted to accept.

The contract was one for furnishing power to pump a well which was sunk by the county to secure a water supply for White Bear lake. The White Bear Electric company had submitted a bid to furnish ten horsepower at a cost to the county of $200 per month. When the matter was brought to the attention of the board yesterday, Commissioner Wright thought it should be accepted, but there was considerable opposition from other members. commissioners have understood that the company would agree to pump the well at its capacity for this sum, and were not willing to limit the power to ten horse. Above this amount of power the company wanted $15 per and County Attorney Kane said the county had no right to make such a contract, not knowing what the service

Company Refuses to Compromise The White Bear Electric company refused to compromise the matter, and when the members of the board suggested that the contract might go elsewhere it was made plain to them that no one else could furnish the power, since the county board, at a previous meeting, had given this com-pany a monopoly on the contract by insisting that nothing but electric power be used. Then, to help matters along, Mr. Johnson, who was awarded the contract for equipping the well with motor and other necessary appliances, said the motor had been ordered, and that it was of such a make that only the White Bear Electric company could furnish power to run it.

Some of the members began asking what sort of a hole the board had got itself into, and there was considerable dissatisfaction expressed at the predicament in which the commissioners found themselves. It was finally agreed that the well should be tested, in order that the well should be tested, in order that it may be determined just how much power is needed to pump the well, it being understood that the coun-ty pay half the cost of the expense.

Bids for Improvements Opened Bids were opened for the permanent aprovement of Arcade street and the St. Paul and Bald Eagle road, which is to be made one of the best in the state. Three firms bid on the work, all of the figures being considered high by the commissioners. The lowest bid for the job was $19,200 for macadam and $10,400 for gravel. The highest was $21,000 for macadam and $14,000 for gravel. The road is a two and a quarter miles in length. The bids were finally ordered sent to the county sur-ants should.

"Many of the girls now dress their hair as if they were going to a ball. This must cease. I have told the girls in a nice way that the pompadour must be cut out, and I think that they will comply with the rule. If they don't, I know where I can get waitresses who will."

The board went to White Bear in the afternoon with representatives of the street railway company, where they looked over the ground of the proposed right of way for the company's new line from White Bear village to connect with the Stillwater line, a franchise for which the company is now seeking at the hands of the board. No action was taken regarding the No action was taken regarding the franchise, and it is not expected that any will be in the near future as the company is in no particular hurry to

GIVES UNIQUE DINNER TO SWEDISH EDITOR

. N. Goldberg, of Stockholm, Entertained by Vice Consul E. H. Hobe

A unique dinner was given Saturday vening by Engelbreth H. Hobe, vice consul for Sweden and Norway at St. Paul, at his residence at Bald Eagle lake in honor of A. N. Goldberg, the eminent Stockholm, Sweden, editor, who is representing the Swedish government as commissioner to the St.

Louis fair. The dinner was served after a custom in the higher class Swedish homes, the first course being served from a small table and the guests partaking of bread, butter and cheese standing. Later the company of fifteen repaired to the Hobe dining room, where an elaborate dinner was given and where toasts to America and the Scandinavian countries were proposed.

Editor Goldberg, who is a warm per-sonal friend of the king and crown prince of Sweden and Norway, paid an eloquent tribute to the advancement and prosperity of his countrymen who have settled in America. Among the guests present who responded to toasts were C. A. Smith, the Minneapolis lumberman, and P. E. Hanson, secretary of state.
