Minneapolis	23	13	10	.481
Kansas City	23	12	11	.478
Toledo	23	12	11	.452

Yesterday's Results

St. Paul 4, Toledo 2
Milwaukee 2, Louisville 3
Minneapolis 1, Indianapolis 4
Kansas City 5, Columbus 6

The Saints yesterday and today yesterday afternoon at Lexington Park in a terrific engagement that remotely resembled a baseball game. It wasn't the fault of the Saints that the affair was of the usual order to the superior degree, but there weren't enough ball players on the field to make two teams. Toledo played with about four and the rest of the ossified bunch should be pinched for forgery for sending their names to the baseball contracts. However it was nice and cool in the grand stand and the score was St. Paul 4, Toledo 2.

Under normal conditions St. Paul would have been pushed to get away with yesterday's game as Weing pitched ball that would have been hard to beat had he been fortunate enough to work out as well as himself with some real ball players. The Saints were able to get but six hits and two of these would have been handed in a game between two real teams with one exciting comment, but the web-footed Mud Hens never touched them and they have to be called hits for lack of any other name.

The visitors brought off another of those general alarm plays in the first inning that looks like a cross between a chamber of deputies' riot and a baseball exhibition. For a few moments 'all was excitement.' Alleged players dashed hither and thither, each madly intent on doing the wrong thing and among the successful first name to everybody did the wrong thing at once and then it is all over. It's a game by itself and the participants make a mistake in assuming that it is a game between two real teams with one exciting comment, but the web-footed Mud Hens never touched them and they have to be called hits for lack of any other name.

KRAMER TAKES RACE

New Jersey Cyclist Wins Five Mile Championship

NEW YORK, July 17.—There was a fairly large attendance of spectators at the Manhattan Beach bicycle track where the annual circuit championship meet was held today. In the five-mile championship event Mario Rossini, the Italian champion, and the local color boy, Frank L. Kramer, were the main attraction. Kramer won the race by a wide margin, beating Rossini and the other competitors.

Both of the Californians started from scratch. Kramer, on his new machine, won by a wide margin, beating Rossini and the other competitors. Kramer's time was 11:14.45.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

List of Games in Which Students Participate Is Growing Longer Each Year

BOSTON, Mass., July 17.—The Yale-Harvard baseball game at New York on June 25 marks the close of the intercollegiate athletic season for the academic year of 1903-04. It has been one of the most strenuous athletic seasons on record; but its most distinguishing feature, especially in the East, has been the steadily increasing number of sports which the college athletes have taken up. Less than a decade ago there were just four sports in which an effort was made to decide the question of intercollegiate supremacy, and often, as occasionally happens now, the title was awarded to two or three rival institutions. The four major sports which then used up all the athletic energy of the young men were football, baseball, rowing, and track athletics.

Within the last few years, however, the undergraduates have undertaken to develop the other sports. Basketball is now there is some particular branch of sport for every able bodied student. In the East there are now a dozen or more sports in which the championship title for the past season has been settled by a contest between two or three institutions. Football—Princeton.

Baseball—Princeton. Rowing—Yale. Hockey—Michigan. Lacrosse—Swarthmore. Fencing—West Point. Gymnastics—Yale. Intercollegiate championship in rowing, divided between Syracuse and Yale, which won the Poughkeepsie and New London regatta, respectively, but did not compete against each other.

O'LEARY MAY MOVE

King of the Chicago Gamblers Tired of the Game

CHICAGO, July 17.—Chicago is to lose the one and only Jim O'Leary. The gambler has been once more taken to the curb and his name has been removed from the game in this city and his departure for New York is believed to be the sale of the structure and ground to his brother, Patrick O'Leary.

The property was mortgaged to Greenbaum & Sons, bankers, for $15,000. It is not for a moment considered that the mortgagee will be able to get the property to his hands now, if not in a very few days.

It is supposed to be a millionaire. His gorgeous establishment at 4233 Halsted street, where he laughed at raids by the police, was worth a large percentage of that amount.

Jim O'Leary has announced his retirement from the game before, but he has never shown his good faith until now. Only last January he declared that he was through with Chicago race tracks and that he would go to New York. His brother was in control of all of his interests.

FAIR ENTRIES COME FROM MANY STATES

Horses of National Reputation Will Contest for Big Purses

The announcement from Secretary E. W. Randall, of the Minnesota state fair, that he had received 339 nominations for the state fair race meet, was received with much interest on the part of horsemen and the public, but possibly many people do not quite understand what this actually means.

In the first place it means that the racing at the Minnesota state fair track during the week of August 29 to Sept. 5, will be the great track event of the year. This is not the statement of the officers of the fair, but the general estimation of racing authorities who have seen the list. For instance, W. H. Kenton, secretary of the American Trotting association, has written Secretary Randall congratulating him upon the tremendous entry list, assuring him that the largest entry list of the year, and that he himself, will be on hand to see the races.

The editor of the Horseman, of Chicago, one of the leading horse papers of the country, has also written Mr. Randall that the Minnesota state fair list is by far the largest of the year and similar communications are coming in from all directions.

Of the horses themselves, much of interest might be written. Many well known stables are represented and horses of national reputation will be among the starters. Perhaps the most interesting thing about the list however, is the remarkable geographical distribution of the entries. Nearly half of the states in the Union are represented, from New York on the east to California on the west, and from Arizona and Tennessee on the south to the whole row of northern and southern states. The distribution of the entry by states is shown as follows:
