FRENCH HIS HENCE

Veteran Expressman Departs for Soldiers' Home

"Frenchy," the expressman, will be found no more on the Cedar street stand, having decided to retire from business in preference to obeying the mandate of the city council and change locations. He had gone to the Wisconsin state soldiers' home with the avowed purpose of spending the remainder of his days there.

Styvestre Montour is "Frenchy's" name, but he is seldom so addressed. To his associates, to his customers and to the public he was known as "Frenchy," round, jolly and a hustler for business. The Cedar street location for expressmen, he remained to see his selection become the most popular location for expressmen. During the past few weeks business has not been up to its average, and when the city council passed the ordinance requiring the expressmen to cease using Cedar street as a stand, and the measure had been approved by Mayor Smith, "Frenchy" decided that it was time for him to retire, not being able to calmly witness the gradual abandonment of the city and the consequent pushing of the expressmen to locations further removed from the business center.

The old horse, the ancient wagon and all the rights, privileges and emoluments thereunto appertaining, together with their prestige and large public acquaintance, were offered for sale. All efforts to persuade the veteran company with the nag and truck, and made preparations for his departure to his new home.

In the thirty-five years that Montour has been in the business he has always been on hand looking for work. During the dull periods the ranks of the expressmen have thinned, but Montour was always to be found looking for work in his line. Dull times he could stand, but when ordered to leave Cedar street he gave up in disgust.

HAMLIN KEEPS MUM

Does Not Explain Turning Down of Eli Warner

News of the Hamlin-Warner disagreement, in which Eli Warner thus far seems to have been worsted, continues to be the topic of discussion among Republican politicians interested in the state campaign.

Conde Hamlin, chairman of the state central committee, returned yesterday from Chicago, and told newspaper men who called that he had succeeded in landing "Uncle Joe" Cannon, of Illinois, for two speeches in Minnesota during the campaign, but he failed to shed any new light on the situation in inner Republican circles regarding the naming of an executive committee without the initials of Eli Warner being on the short front of one of the committee.

Warner and his Ramsey county friends are saying very little, but Republicans generally are discussing the situation. Reports of the trouble even reached Gov. Van Sant's office yesterday, and the governor told a friend who made a call on him in Ramsey county that he would not be in Ramsey county if anybody is entitled to anything from Dunn's chairman, it is Eli Warner, and he and Dar Reese should be taken care of if anybody is entitled to consideration in Ramsey county for the third place given the county on the general committee.

The governor was not joking. "Eli led the fight in Ramsey county for Dunn," Gov. Van Sant said yesterday. "Without Eli, Dunn would not have made anything of a showing in the county, and while the delegation was captured by the Collins men, it was not until after a desperate fight by Warner and Reese that the place to Warner was provided he wanted it."

Van Sant's office yesterday, and the governor told a friend who made a call on him in Ramsey county that he would not be in Ramsey county if anybody is entitled to anything from Dunn's chairman, it is Eli Warner, and he and Dar Reese should be taken care of if anybody is entitled to consideration in Ramsey county for the third place given the county on the general committee.

It is claimed that Fleissner refused to remove curtains from the doors of his place in Ramsey county for the third place given the county on the general committee.

PARK BOARD PLANS PARK FOR WEST SIDE

The board of park commissioners yesterday held a lengthy executive session, the principal topic of discussion being the proposed acquisition of land on the west side for park purposes. It was stated after the meeting that negotiations have progressed to such a point that a definite announcement of the nature of the plan may be shortly expected, it being contended that an announcement at this time might result in the misapprehension of some of the plans to purchase.

OVERBALLS DRAG YOUTH INTO POLICE COURT

Justis Willen, Charged With Stealing Protective Pants, Proves Ownership

Justis Willen, eighteen years of age, was discharged in police court yesterday when tried on the charge of stealing a pair of overalls from H. W. Thompson, clerk for the Minnesota Transfer company. The overalls disappeared July 2, and Thompson claimed that he identified them by seeing them on Willen. The latter, however, showed them to be his own, and the police brother before the time of the alleged theft.

F. C. STEVENS SEEKS A RENOMINATION

Fred C. Stevens, present representative from the Fourth congressional district, yesterday filed with the secretary of state as a candidate for the Republican nomination at the primary election to be held Sept. 20.

New Rule at Soldiers' Home

At its October meeting it is possible that the trustees of the state soldiers' home will develop a plan for reducing the number of old soldiers cared for by the institution. The law forbidding the home officials to take a pensioner's money for his maintenance has crippled the finances of the home and more stringent measures will probably be passed as to the admission of old soldiers drawing good-sized pensions. The plan proposed is to receive only veterans who are destitute or disabled.

SHIPPERS' PROTEST

Dipping Plant for Cattle Is Being Built at South St. Paul

Within a week, and likely before that time, the Union Stock Yards company at South St. Paul is expected to begin operation for the treatment of cattle coming from North and South Dakota and Montana, according to M. D. Flower, president of the company.

This statement is in answer to the complaint of Western stockmen that the local yards are not prepared to take care of cattle coming from the quarantined states, where a cattle disease known as scab is prevalent, and that when cattle have been exposed to the disease at South St. Paul the stockmen are compelled to sell them and being permitted to dispose of them as feeders.

"There has been no unnecessary delay, as the stock yards company proceeded as rapidly as possible once the national agricultural department had given notice of just what is required," said Mr. Flower, "and we set a large gang to work constructing a dipping plant according to the specifications of the government. The work is being pushed, and not later than a week from this time we will be able to comply with the government regulations and permit Western cattle to be sold as feeders."

"All the delay that has been occasioned is due to the changes in the plan of the dipping plant, which has spent some time experimenting with the effect of dipping the cattle in crude oil. It was found that this would not work, as some of the cattle were killed and others died. Originally an order was issued requiring that all cattle be dipped twice, but this was finally modified to require only one dipping if the dipping is done properly. The securing of decisions on the points made and the experimenting, has consumed some time, but the stock yards company has endeavored to do as much as possible after receiving definite instructions."

HACKNEY ON GUARD CLAIMED BY OLD AGE

Ald. Hackney, of the Tenth ward, says that he has been assured that there will be no effort to establish the much talked of amusement park within the city limits. He says that if he will insist upon the enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting the erection of fences more than six feet in height, he will also do all in his power otherwise to prevent its establishment.

JAMES KONKLE DIES WHILE SITTING IN A CHAIR

His death occurred immediately after he had returned from a short walk. He went alone into the kitchen and seated himself near a window, where he was found dead by his daughters, with whom he resided.

Moroney, secretary of the St. Paul civil service board, is expected to return today from a trip to Omaha, where he held civil service examinations early in the week, and visited a number of postoffices in his territory in Nebraska. Notices were sent but yesterday for a civil service examination for a veterinarian, Philippine service, to be held at the St. Paul federal building Aug. 17. The salary to begin is $1,500 per annum, and the position is now between eighteen and forty years of age.

JOHN O'DONNELL NOT IN MAYORALTY RACE

John O'Donnell, Minnesota labor commissioner, who had been considered a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of Minneapolis, yesterday wrote a letter advising his friends that he would not be a candidate. O'Donnell says he is certain he could poll a large number of votes, he is equally certain that he could not hope to secure enough to nominate him. He is now in St. Paul, and is believed to be inspired by a hope that should R. C. Dunn be elected governor, he will be reappointed to his present position.

CITY OF VIRGINIA HAS FINE SCHOOL BUILDING

"I was truly amazed to find at Virginia, on the Iron range, a school building the superior of any school building in St. Paul," said Gen. C. Andrews, state fire warden, yesterday on his return from a trip to Northeastern Minnesota. "The range country has only been developed for a few years, but the Virginians are just completing a handsome new red pressed brick school, with light stone trimmings, costing from $60,000 to $70,000. The new building has every modern improvement and would be a credit to St. Paul or Minneapolis. The improvements in the Iron range country in the past ten years are simply marvelous to visitors."

Johnson, a switchman, residing at 701 De Soto street, was seriously injured by being struck by a Soo line engine yesterday morning in the union yard. Pope, of St. Paul. The suit is for personal damages, Pope alleging that the railroad company is responsible for an accident by which he sustained a crushed foot which later was amputated.

WARDEN OF BISMARCK PENITENTIARY BELIEVES LEGISLATURE WILL CONSIDER BILL

An effort will be made at the coming session of the North Dakota legislature to pass a board of control law. It is believed that the board of control idea are being according to N. F. Boucher, warden of the North Dakota penitentiary at Bismarck, and a man who has given the subject a great deal of study, they will avoid the mistake made by the Minnesota lawmakers and stick pretty closely to the ideas contained in the Iowa law.

"I have no doubt that an effort will be made to pass a board of control law in the next winter's session of the North Dakota legislature," said Warden Boucher. "The board of control idea is spreading throughout the country and it will take hold of North Dakota sooner or later, and I look to see a bill presented to the legislature establishing the centralized system of control of state institutions."

"There will be opposition, and possibly sufficient to defeat the enactment of the bill," he said. "If the framers of the bill show good hard sense, however, they will eliminate the objectionable features of the Minnesota law and cling pretty closely to the Iowa law, after which the Minnesota law is copied."

"The purely educational institutions should not be included in the institutions over which the board will have control, or, if included at all, the board's jurisdiction should be confined simply to the financial problems involved in their management. The Iowa law is the best one of its kind on the statute books of any state in the country and if North Dakota is to have a board of control it should be similar to those in the Iowa measure."

LIQUOR HIDDEN FROM INDIANS

As the story goes, the trouble which caused the hiding of the liquor arose through jealousies that existed between Indians employed by the Hudson Bay company and the Northwest Fur Traders of Manchester. The latter was an American concern. Especially along the Canadian boundary in the Methuen area, the Indians hostile toward each other.

The base of supplies for this region at that time was Fort Frances, which is at the head of Rainy river, directly opposite the mouth of the Northwest. At one time, according to the tradition, the feeling between the rival Indians became so intense that the Hudson Bay company had previously it was to prevent this that the white residents of Fort Frances decided to hide all the liquor in the village, as well as to occur on the ground.

C. Harmon, 1800 Grand street, who asks a reduction on his shop at 383 Rosabel street is $1,500 too high; F. J. Errett, 1364 Summit avenue, who says he was assessed $3,210 on the same kind of property for which his neighbor was assessed only $1,500; P. Desauries, who asks that the valuation of the Hale property on Mayday avenue be reduced from $10,000 to $6,500.

MAYOR GETS GRIP ON ANOTHER MAN'S GRIP

His Honor Picks Up a Drummer's Valise by Mistake. Mayor Smith has returned from a trip to Walker and other points, and says that he now realizes how easy it is to appropriate a grip belonging to some one else. He says he has picked up a grip belonging to a traveling man, and "my mishap occurred at St. Cloud," said the mayor, "and without intending to do any harm I found myself in the possession of a grip belonging to a stranger, and to make the case worse, I was some distance from St. Cloud when I made the discovery. Fearing that my position as mayor would not protect me if I should be charged with larceny, I hastened back to St. Cloud, found the owner of the grip still there, and my apology was accepted. It cost me several dollars to return the grip, but I felt easier after getting it off my hands. The grip looked much like mine."

MAJ. VON BAUMBACH MISSES BOAT

Maj. von Baumbach had intended, when he left St. Paul three weeks ago, to go to Alaska, but he missed the Alaskan steamer on which he had engaged passage from Seattle by two hours, and is spending a few weeks at sound points. He will not return to his office until late in the month.

WINE OF THE VINTAGE OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR PERIOD

Wine of the vintage of the Revolutionary war period instead of free milling gold quartz, and liquor distilled during the years when Napoleon Bonaparte dominated Europe, instead of tracts of white pine, are what prospectors and cruisers in the Rainy Lake region may soon devote their time to seeking, according to a report brought to St. Paul yesterday by Charles C. McCoy. McCoy lives near the junction of the Little Fork and Rainy rivers and stopped here en route to St. Louis.

The finding of a wine bottle which bore an eighteenth century label pressed in the glass, in the possession of an Indian in the Manitowish country, which is said to have been brought to Rainy lake, is what has recently caused residents of that country to affirm faith in one of the region's earliest traditions, according to McCoy. It is not unlikely that a party will be organized to search for a lost cache of wine and liquor, which, in accordance with rumors that have been handed down from generation to generation by settlers of Fort Frances, Ont., was hidden during the first years of the last century at a time when Indian riots were in prospect.

Miss Gorman had previously been selected as a teacher, and the assignment amounts to a transfer. The application of Miss Zada Judd, teacher of the Quincy school, for an increase of salary from $700 to $750 was refused, Supt. Smith reporting that $700 is the highest salary paid teachers having charge of the Quincy school, where the teachers are paid the same amount. Miss Judd, in a communication, contended that she is the only teacher in the city not receiving the schedule increase in salary, and holding that she should be paid the maximum allowed to grade teachers.
