NONE OF US PERFECT

BUT WE CAN RISE ABOVE CIRCUMSTANCES

Many a Man Blames His Condition in Life Instead of Himself for His Failure—We Can Make Our Lives Pretty Much What We Want Them to Be

How often we hear persons say: "If it was not for my circumstances I could do so much more," or "If I was differently placed I could do so and so." This sort of thing results in self-pity and self-pity is a bar to progress and ends in failure. Becoming self-absorbed and dwelling upon ourselves and our emotions, is deadening to the soul. Circumstances are often adverse and have much to do with many a man's misfortunes, but there is such a thing as making unpleasant circumstances a stepping stone and rising to greater heights thereby. Sometimes one hears of relatives in families who cannot get along, who are continually having clashes, and if you interrogate either one you will find that each blames the other. We are none of us prone to think we are to blame, and dispossessed! Let us each give five minutes to self-examination and see if there is not something in ourselves which is trying.

For instance, there may be some one in the household who is fond of reading aloud whatever he or she finds in the paper that is interesting, and reads on even when others may be reading. How little does it hurt one to put down his book and give courteous attention for a few moments. Many a granddaughter is terribly bored by her grandmother, but if the girl will only look ahead and think of her own old age and how some day she may not be nearly as agreeable as her own grandmother, and how it would hurt her feelings to be treated with discourtesy, she will change her tactics. Many people are trying, but are we not so too? We may have little ways and mannerisms which are only tolerated by others from courtesy. That is the reason that we fly from those who are utterly frank and tell us what they don't like about us, because courtesy will prevent us from returning the compliment. None of us is perfect, and when we find fault with others, and wish they were different, we should remember that others may be heartily wishing we would change.

But self-pity is demoralizing, retards the growth of the soul and blinds our eyes. Instead of making our failures an object lesson, and profiting from them, we say, "Oh, well, my luck is bad, everything is against me, there is no use of my trying." In reality there is no such thing as luck. Things do not happen by chance, but through a wise design which ultimately works for our good, unless we resist and muddle. But to not let us in every one's trying, persisting and insisting. Perseverance, combined with a good intention and hard work, rarely fails. And this has been said that to be worthy of success is greater than success. Do the best you can, and then if you fail it will not be from lack of trying.

It would be absurd to say that all men are born equal, even though it is so stated in the declaration of independence, or some important document, and have an equal chance, for it is not so. Many men are inconceivably handicapped from the beginning, but if they do the best they can nothing more is expected of them. But do not let us consider ourselves the most afflicted of beings and sit down and think what a terrible time we have, but get out and do for others and discover how much worse off they are and how much we may do to help those less fortunate. Self-absorption makes for retrogression, while unselfishness is helpful and uplifting.

MRS. MAYBRICK IN HER NATIVE LAND

Says She is Confident the Wrong She Has Suffered Will Be Righted

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—On board the steamer "Vanderbilt," which left today from Antwerp, was Mrs. Florence Maybrick, recently released from prison in England. Mrs. Maybrick was entered on the passenger list as Mrs. Rose Ingraham, a name which she took from her great-grandparents. This precaution was merely to avoid annoying observation on the part of fellow passengers. While she made no secret of her presence on board and appeared frequently about the decks and saloon, very few were aware of her identity. She is accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel V. Hayden. Mr. Hayden is her attorney. Mrs. Maybrick gave out the following statement: "I regret that the state of my health, as well as business reasons, prevent my talk-

Prepared Specially for THE GLOBE

Black and white combinations are probably the most chic creations that the modiste can give her patron, but at the same time the most difficult to render artistically. Just a trifle too much black at the wrong place will give too heavy a line of contrast and the entire gown loses all style. In the model illustrated a white chiffon cloth with hairline stripe of black, and black novelty lace are used over a foundation of white tulle veiled with a very sheer mousseline de soie. This underskirt is circular, fitting closely to yoke depth and is habit back. A plaited ruffle finishes at hem. Over this the mousseline is in five gores with a deep graduated flounce, slightly fluted, and edged by a ruche. The chiffon skirt has panel front, a full flounce the depth of one beneath and gored sides, shirred in yoke effect with tucks and again above knees. Two tucks shirred top and lace is inset in outline of panel, continued at yoke top. The waist has a deep cape yoke bordered with the lace, which is also inserted in upper part to give effect of straps at either side of front, and as a small point at back below the collar, which is partially of lace with tucked tulle. The sleeves are in a puff to elbow with full graduated ruffle over one of plaited white chiffon, and the crush girdle is of white tulle with cut jet buckles at front and back. The hat is one that may be worn until late autumn, and is of shirred black tulle, the shirring in groups of tucks, and has a small high crown of black velvet, with black satin crown band and jet buckle. The white ostrich feathers are tipped with black, and a satin bow is under left brim. An unusually pretty black and white parasol is carried with this toilet, which could easily be duplicated. It is white tulle with black Chantilly lace at border and two white chiffon ruffles edged with black satin ribbon applied in bowknot design.

ing to my friends of the American press at this time as I should like. To them I am deeply indebted for their effort in my behalf, and I take this means of expressing my everlasting gratitude as well as words can and also to thank them for their congratulations on my release, which I regret I have not been able personally to acknowledge. I cannot express the feelings of deep joy and thankfulness with which I return to my native land. At the earliest opportunity I shall visit my birthplace, Mobile, Ala., and also Norfolk, Va., my home during my married life. I now believe, as I have always, that God will in his own time right the great wrong that I have suffered.

The departure of the party from the ship proved somewhat of an ordeal, owing to a large crowd of the curious, and it took the strenuous efforts of two detective sergeants to get it to the carriage. The crowd, however, was very orderly and made no demonstration. Mrs. Maybrick left the pier on the arm of Mr. Hayden. What the curious crowd saw was a slight, short woman, with a thin, worn face and a mass of brown hair. The simple gown of a small black and white pattern of silk fitted her closely and was fastened at the waist with a wide black belt. The only bit of color in her costume was a heliotrope ribbon and a flower of the same hue in her hair. She was unveiled and smiled at the staring crowd. During the voyage across, Mrs. Maybrick appeared a few times at meals, but remained most of the time in her cabin. She was met at the dock by a few close friends and was driven directly to a hotel, and after a brief rest will make a trip to the Catskills before her contemplated journey South.

Mr. Hayden acknowledged that Mrs. Maybrick was about to proceed in her suit for lands in Virginia and other states, which are said to be valuable, but declined to refer to the answer to the suit, in which it is alleged that Mrs. Maybrick has no claim to the property and that the bringing of the suit was a trick to hasten the woman's release.

What Miss Anthony Saw
NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Miss Susan B. Anthony, Rev. Anna H. Shaw and Miss Lucy Anthony have returned from Europe, where they attended the congress of women in Berlin. Miss Susan B. Anthony said: "English women are well informed on politics and talked on most subjects of general interest, much more than American women. In Scotland and Ireland they are doing the same thing as in England. We in America are not gaining materially as much as we hoped. But there is an undercurrent. We found the German women very responsive. The fact that Emperor William permitted and encouraged our efforts is significant. It is not of personal liberality, at least of deference to our opinion."

Day for Rathbone Sisters
ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 23.—Elaborate exercises were held today in the temple of fraternity by the Rathbone Sisters, the women's auxiliary of the Knights of Pythias. The members of the supreme council and 300 members of the order participated. The feature was a reception tendered to the national chairman, Mrs. H. E. Wood, of Kansas City, by the St. Louis temple.

Shadow Is Removed
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 23.—Two brothers, one of whom had been tried for his life on the charge of murdering the other, met unexpectedly at a hotel in this city today. They are Edward S. Van Liew of this city, and Cornelius S. Van Liew, of Pasadena, Cal. The meeting ended up a mystery of long standing and relieved one of the brothers of a shadow which has rested upon him for years. Twenty years ago the brothers had quarreled in a tavern in Onondaga county, N. Y. After the quarrel Edward returned to his home at Vernon Center, resolved never to recognize his brother again. Cornelius made a like resolution, and having no family determined to go West and forget. He left without seeing any of the members of his family or his friends and without giving them any idea of his plans. The next day after the departure of Cornelius a search began. The search was in vain, and it was rumored that Cornelius had been struck by his brother and carried away. Edward was afterward tried in the courts of Onondaga county, but set up a claim of self-defense and the jury disagreed. A second trial followed and he was discharged.

Five years ago Edward came west and located at Grand Rapids. Today he went to a local hotel to meet a friend on business. While there a stranger accosted him with the question: "Is this Eddie Van Liew?" "It is," was the reply. In five minutes a dispatch was sent to the aged mother in Onondaga county, New York, and another to the Onondaga county authorities informing them of a happy reunion. The brothers have decided to return to the old home at once to prove conclusively that Cornelius still lives.

Goodnow Is Busy
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 23.—Consul General Goodnow cabled the state department today that the conference of foreign consuls at Shanghai had been resumed in the afternoon. After a good deal of discussion no solution was offered for the present condition of affairs, and it was suggested that each consul report directly to his own government asking what should be done, if anything. Mr. Goodnow has no suggestions to offer to the state department. He has been given instructions which it is believed will prevent the United States from being entangled in the settlement of the question of China's neutrality at Shanghai.

Elihu Root Says He Won't
NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Senator Platt said today that he had received a letter from Elihu Root declining to be the Republican nominee for governor. "I received Mr. Root's letter two days ago," said Senator Platt. "As far as I am concerned it settles the question. I don't believe that his being the nominee of the party is in the range of possibility now. He writes me that he will not accept if he is nominated, and nothing could be more positive or final. I am in favor of an open convention. Gov. Odell says that he is. Of course we all have our preferences, but I do not believe the candidate will be selected until the convention assembles in Saratoga."

DUBLIN, Aug. 23.—William O'Brien has decided to accept the seat in parliament for Cork city, to which he was re-elected unopposed Friday last.

REPUBLICAN SPEAKS IN FAVOR OF PARKER

Says He, Unlike Roosevelt, is Satisfied to the Entire People

Special to The Globe
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 23.—Smiley M. Chambers, United States district attorney under Harrison, and one of Indiana's prominent Republicans, says of the presidential situation: "For eight years the Democratic party has waged hopeless contests. Their leader for eight years did not hold the confidence of the conservative business interests of the country. The St. Louis convention changed all this by nominating Judge Parker for president and adopting a platform that eliminates all of the features objectionable to the conservative business interests of the country except the proposition of free trade. The personality of Roosevelt is obnoxious to many business interests of this country. The personality of the two candidates will cut a large figure in this campaign. The Republicans are confronted by the same conditions as in the Blaine campaign of 1884—a popular candidate with many classes of people, who failed to command the confidence of the conservative and influential elements."

With Shining Gems
ROME, Aug. 23.—The pope will personally supervise the preparations for the coronation in St. Peter's of the same statue of the Virgin crowned by Pope Plus IX in December, 1874, when he promulgated the dogma of the immaculate conception. The ceremony will be one of the most gorgeous of the Catholic church. The pope this morning examined the first of the twelve stars forming the crown of the virgin. It is five inches in diameter, contains 209 diamonds of the first water of various sizes, and cost altogether $2,000. The whole twelve stars, including their setting, cost $10,000. His holiness is practically satisfied with the appearance of brilliancy of the first star. He has announced that he has already ordered a jeweled necklace as his personal offering to the virgin.
