NEWS OF THE CITY

SEMI-CENTENNIAL EARLY NEXT MONTH

St. Paul Will Celebrate Its Fiftieth Anniversary in an Elaborate Fashion

The anniversary celebration of the semi-centennial of St. Paul's advent as a city will be held in the fore part of next month.

This much was decided at a meeting of the members of the various committees appointed by the Commercial club to look into the subject several days ago, which was held yesterday at the club rooms

Each of the committees was represented and the proceedings were harmonious in every respect.

As the reports were unfolded to the members it became apparent that a great deal of interest is being taken in the event by the public, and when they had all been received it was indicated that at least 50,000 would be in line when the command to march is given to the great civic parade.

There will be no three-day carnival as was at first planned, but during the day that will be singled out by the committee for the celebration, a busy programme will be offered.

During the forenoon there will be addresses by well known orators in some large public hall, covering the progress that has been made by St. Paul since its formation as a city. The personnel of the speakers has not yet been definitely decided upon, but the committee has several good orators picked for the occasion.

A Mammoth Parade

In the afternoon there will be the highest parade ever seen in this city. According to the reports received yesterday it will comprise about 50,000 people, including 20,000 public school children; 10,000 parochial children and 20,000 others, spreading across the entire field of human endeavor. There tire field of human endeavor. There will be soldiers, regulars and guards, representatives of every trade and factory of this city, labor's organizations, capital's bodies and the fraternal so-cieties, as well as the county and state officers and many independent bodies.

There has never been a parade in
St. Paul in which there have been 50,-000 persons in line, and the citizens who met yesterday were perfectly cognizant of the importance of the occa-sion. One of the committees reported that it would be possible to reproduce the "living flag," that has already been given here, on a larger and more com-plete scale.

Th, parochial turnout promised is surprisingly large and satisfactory, and while the various societies of the city have not yet signified their wish for a place in line, it is expected by the Commercial club that the secretaries of the various hodies will said their said the secretaries. various bodies will send their requisi-tions for place and space in the parade to the secretary of the Commercial club, C. P. Stine.

In the parade there will be found floats and displays showing the man-ufactures and industry of St. Paul to-Great Display on River Front

In the evening the scene of the activity of the celebration will be changed to the river front. An unparalleled display is planned, showing the appearance of St. Paul fifty years ago, which will be given on the river. In addition to this there will be a parade of the shipping and an elaborate pyrotechnic exposition.

The date of the celebration has not yet been set, but when the committees adjourned yesterday it was under in-struction to come together at the call of the chair some time in the early part of next week. It is thought that the day selected will be about Oct. 12.

GRANT A PRINCIPAL LEAVE OF ABSENCE

School Directors Differ Over Request of Principal Farnsworth

Prof. S. A. Farnsworth, principal of the Cleveland high school, was yesterday given a leave of absence for two weeks by the board of school inspectors by the close vote of 3 to 2. Inspectors Holman, Lindahl and Egan voted in favor of the request, and Inspectors Fisher and Boeringer against.

The question had been considered in secret session previously, but Messrs. Fisher and Boeringer declined to vote with the majority.

During a recess the congressional districts cancused to present the names of men for the congressional executive committee. He made the necessary motion to the enlargement of the committee and C. H. Dart, of Meeker, was in hearty sympathy with the proposition.

"It is a clear vote," said Chairman Day, in announcing the result, and then added, "this is levely harmony." After some discussion of the situa tion where districts had returned members of the committee who are not members of the state central commit tee, the illegality of the plan was evident, and, as finally agreed upon, the executive committee stands: C. H. Day, Albert Lea, First district;

Mr. Rosing read Mr. Lind's declination, contained in his telegram from Everett, Wash., as originally published in The Globe, and said he believed it was a final statement. C. H. Dart, in moving its acceptance, said he was moved to do so by regret and dislike of the fact, but there was no use in postponing action on the declination. When the motion had been carried, the chair suggested the appointment of a committee of five to make recommendation of a man to fill the vacancy, and William A. Gausewitz, Steele; D. D. Murphy, Faribault; Fred L. Ryan, St. Louis; George F. Porter, Minne-apolis, and Daniel Eberle, St. Paul, were named to canvass the situation and report a recommendation.

Before the adjournment for lunch—which was taken by the company in the ordinary at the Merchants-the officers of the executive committee were authorized to secure headquarters for the campaign. They will be in the center of the down-town district and will be opened immediately. Afternoon Session a Love Feast

The afternoon session of the committee was a veritable love feast. Brief but inspiring speeches were heard from several of the candidates, and the enthusiasm was remarkable. It is an inspiration to be placed in the fighting ranks with such men as these, and we are going before the people on a platform of principles that must appeal to the reason of thinking men. If the election were to be held today we would win, and unless great changes take place we will win in November. I hope for victory all along the line, but I certainly expect the election of John A. Johnson as governor of the state."

Editor Hoard's Good Tidings

E. H. Hoard the Montevideo editor ommissioner, brought good tidings from his section of the state. He said:
"Quite a considerable portion of the Republicans of my district who usually vote her straight, will this year vote a split ticket. I feel sure they will begin by skipping their own candidate for governor and putting a cross after the name of John A. Johnson. I shall encourage them to continue to split the ticket, believing that the Demo-crats have a better ticket to support that the Republicans have. I am proud of the honor of the nomination, and proud of the honor, whether we win or not, provided the people show good judgment and elect Johnson as govpudgment and elect Johnson as governor. I believe it is a good ticket and that we have a strong set of principles behind it, and I will support the ticket and the principles behind it."

W. F. Kelso, who was introduced as the father of Democracy in Northern Minnesota, said he had been a Democrat for thirty-five years and for twenty-five years of the time he had been a Minnesota Democrat. He had been nominated to forlorn hopes so many times that he had come to the belief that he was the utility horse in the barn.

"I was not a candidate for the nomination," Mr. Kelso said, "but I never went back on the call of the party, and went back on the call of the party, and especially when I can fight under the leadership of such men as John A. Johnson and F. G. Winston. It is an honor to go to defeat with men like these, and an honor to go down to defeat under the Democratic flag anyway." He expressed the belief that at least a part of the ticket would be elected.

T. J. McDermott, candidate for attorney general, made a vigorous speech in which he promised to prosecute the thieves who had robbed the school fund if he were elected. He counseled a fast, active campaign; the burden rested on the committeemen and if they
