

St. Paul Social Circles

The past week has been gay and the coming one promises to be even more so. It is as yet a season of afternoon affairs and luncheon parties, but week after this coming one the dances will begin in earnest and the debutantes will meet the young men who will be able to make their first winter a pleasant one. The serious illness with diphtheria of Miss Helen Cooper and the withdrawal of her mother's invitation for her coming out tea, have cast a gloom over the debutante set and will make quite a difference in their plans. The prevalence of diphtheria on the hill has greatly alarmed that neighborhood, although the reason for it is wrapped in mystery.

In New York society women are attempting to revive the wearing of evening dress to the theater and some women so attired have been seen in the park recently at several houses. By this is meant, of course, wearing evening dress in the body of the house as is done in the London theaters, as décolleté gowns are always common enough in boxes at any theater in New York. But it is very doubtful whether this fashion will prevail, particularly since women have taken to wearing such elaborate and costly high-necked costumes. In St. Paul a woman in evening dress at the theater, except on some gala occasion, would almost create a sensation, even in the boxes which are rarely occupied by women in real toils. The women who have been advocating this style in New York claim that half the charm of theater-going in London is due to the uniform dressing of the audiences, the women in low-necked gowns and the men always in evening dress. We are becoming quite metropolitan in some ways in this city as the talking at the theaters here is becoming distressing and is preventing many persons from enjoying the play. It is exceedingly doubtful, however, if we ever follow the fashion of wearing evening tois for ordinary theater-going.

The debutante teas so far given have been marked by great elaborateness and very smart dressing. Indeed, it is doubtful whether in any city there is more elegant or correct entertaining done than here, or can other cities boast more beauty and better governed women. Simplicity in entertaining may be an ideal, but it is certainly not strictly adhered to among us. A profusion of flowers, an elaborate and beautiful table, and everything which good taste can suggest have ever distinguished the affairs of St. Paul women, and this winter is no exception to the rule. One has scarcely space in which to recapitulate the past week, or to foretell the future, so full of overflowing are the days with social events. A brief summary of the week includes a small luncheon given by Mrs. T. L. Bloom on Monday, a large tea given by Mrs. Thomas Foley on Tuesday at which Miss Mary Foley was introduced, and one of the most elaborate affairs yet given, a luncheon by Mrs. W. B. Dean, also on Tuesday, for the bride, Mrs. J. P. Gribben; also luncheon by Mrs. Clarence Johnston; a dinner given by Mrs. W. B. Dean on Wednesday night; a bridge party Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. John Morrison, and the beautiful tea given by Mrs. Forest Thursday was particularly gay. Mrs. Bramhall gave a large reception in honor of Miss McKinstry; Mrs. Brooks a bridge party for Miss Harbaugh and Mrs. T. C. Field a luncheon for her sister, Miss Ingersoll. On Friday Mrs. Daniel R. Noyes gave a luncheon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Brown, of New York. Yesterday Mrs. Holbert, of Summit avenue, gave a bridge party.

The week before us is full of overflowing with teas, bridge and luncheons. Mrs. Hutchinson, of the Angus, will give a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon, and the same afternoon Mrs. Herbert Davis, of Fairmount avenue, gives a large tea to introduce her daughter, Miss Lucille Davis; on Wednesday Miss Carson will make her first bow to society at a tea given by Mrs. Seabury and Mrs. Carson at the residence of the former on Ashland avenue. Wednesday too, Mrs. Lawrence G. Washington, of Dayton avenue, will give a buffet luncheon, and on Thursday she will give an afternoon bridge party. On Thursday evening Dr. and Mrs. Charles A. Wheaton, of Summit avenue, will give a large evening reception in honor of their second daughter, Miss Marion Douglas Wheaton. Mrs. George T. Slade has issued invitations for a bazaar which will be held at her home, 435 Summit avenue, on Thursday and Friday afternoons, for the House of the Good Shepherd. Friday night the Cotillion club will dance at Ramaley's hall. Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Jefferson, of Summit avenue, have issued invitations for a large evening reception on Tuesday, Nov. 22, from 8:30 until 11:00, to introduce Miss Genevieve Jefferson. On the same day Miss Bowlin, of Summit avenue, will give a luncheon in honor of Miss Judson and Miss Foley.

Mrs. W. F. Rooder, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. E. Adams, of Goodrich avenue, has returned to her home in Cleveland. Gen. and Mrs. M. R. Morgan, of Holly avenue, will spend a week in St. Louis. Mrs. Catharine and Mrs. Maxfield, of Goodrich avenue, have been spending a few days with friends in Marquette. Mrs. John Meagher and Miss Kelly, of Goodrich avenue, have returned from the East. Miss Florence Fortune spent a few days in St. Paul on her way to her home in Helena. Miss Tappey, of Detroit, has been the guest of Mrs. Lightner, of Summit avenue. Mrs. Tompkins, of Cairnair, left for her home on Friday. Mrs. L. D. Wilkes, of the Aberdeen, has returned from Europe. Mrs. C. D. Gilliland, of Summit avenue, has gone to New York. Miss Emma Gilliland will return with her in December. Mrs. W. E. Howard entertained informally Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Charles Nicols, of Chicago.

Mrs. Kenneth Clark, of Portland avenue, gave a bridge party on Friday. Mrs. Slaymaker gave a bridge party at the Aberdeen yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Charles L. Spencer, of Summit avenue, has issued invitations for a bridge party on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. James J. Hill has gone to New York. Miss Clara Hill is in Washington. Miss Katherine Abbott, of Dayton avenue, gave a luncheon at the Country club Friday. Mrs. John Harris, of Chicago, is the guest of Mrs. H. P. Upham, of Summit avenue.

The clubwomen of Minneapolis have invited those of St. Paul and the suburbs to the East Side Public library on Saturday of this week to meet Mrs. L. P. Williams, and hear her report on forestry read at the recent Pergus Falls convention. The meeting will begin at 2:30, and the library is one block from the Como-Harriet car line.

Mrs. A. H. Stern, of the Angus, will give a tea tomorrow afternoon in honor of her guest, Miss Posey. Mrs. William Dahymple is the guest of Mrs. Oliver Dahymple, of Summit avenue. Miss Kate Alexander Marvin, of the Angus, will leave this week for Washington. Mrs. Simons, of Superior, is the guest of Miss Cecilia Kalman, of Summit avenue.

Miss Judson and Miss Dean will lead the German Friday night at the Cotillion dance at Ramaley's hall. Mrs. Cary, of Wyoming, will be the guest of Miss Judson, of Summit avenue this week.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

FASHIONS FROM VOGUE

Prepared Specially for THE GLOBE

The gown illustrated depicts one of the many new models for street costumes, that is particularly well designed to carry out the idea of the Directorate period and yet conform to the needs of the present day. It is of a delightful tint of mulberry-red cloth over a tuffeta foundation of the same shade and is made with a full skirt that hangs in graceful folds from a belt to hem, where it lies on the ground all around. At the knees and again half way between them and the belt are sewed shaped bands of the cloth trimmed with antique silver buttons, which make the skirt appear as if made of three overlapping sections, and which most effectively relieve the simplicity of the long skirt. The coat has short attached skirts, trimmed with large buttons in the back and three overlapping capes scalloped on the edge. The drapes, which are tight fitting, are ornamented by large antique silver buttons and open over a narrow vest of buff colored velvet embroidered in black and red and the close fitting sleeves and throat are finished with lace ruffles. A wide brimmed Dieretore hat of black velvet trimmed with ostrich feathers is worn with the gown and either Persian lamb or black bear furs might be carried. Although fashions are more varied this season than for years past there is one important fact to remember and that is that tailored costumes—the true tailor-made—can not be too severely plain, and that other gowns can hardly be too elaborate. These latter gowns may be made after any one of a dozen different styles and be perfectly correct if they are sufficiently ornamented by buttons, braid, passementerie, tucks, folds, cordings, etc., but the former suits should be made with short skirts, either plain or plaited, and tight fitting three-quarter length coats.

NOBODY has ever explained why the styles for women originate in Paris. But the fact remains.

So every year we import model garments from the most fashionable modistes in the French capital; garments which are just ahead of the present mode, and we copy the models faithfully in all particulars—but ONE.

Our garments are a good bit better made, (and generally from better skins) than the ones we get in Paris.

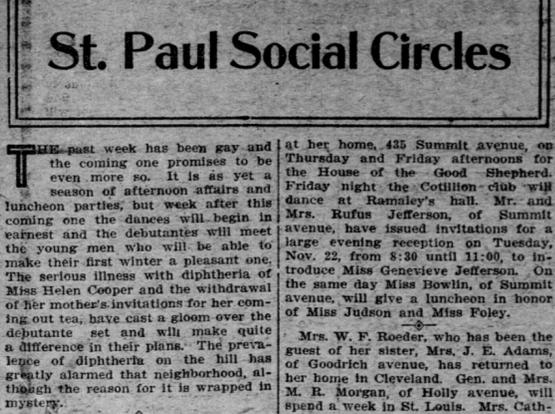

There's little to say of this jacket, for the picture tells the story.

Like all our jackets, each one is custom made; not made hurriedly, but made WELL and made promptly.

We recommend Mink for this shape—but you may choose any good fur.

The Gordon & Ferguson GUARANTEE is worth having. Behind it stands a reputation of thirty-three years, to say nothing of its money value.

GORDON & FERGUSON, St. Paul, Minn.
