

FRENCH GIFT TO UNITED STATES

Washington Bust Presented, With Addresses by M. Jusserand and Mr. McCleary

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22.—Ambassador Jusserand presented to congress today the bronze replica of the original marble bust of George Washington, which was destroyed by a fire in the library of congress in 1851.

The ceremonies took place in the rotunda at the capitol, where the bust was unveiled, and in the president's room in the senate wing, where speeches were made by the ambassador on behalf of the French donors and by Senator Wetmore, of Rhode Island, and Representative McCleary, of Minnesota, on behalf of the two branches of congress.

Mrs. Jusserand drew aside the veil, which exposed the replica on its garlanded pedestal. This act provoked the only applause of the ceremony.

The French ambassador, in a receptacle of the pedestal documents containing a history of the bust and announced that the acceptance by the United States of the gift from France sealed eternal friendship between the nations.

Senator Wetmore read a resolution adopted by congress accepting the gift, and the ambassador delivered a speech of presentation. He said: "A great nation never forgets the great deeds and great examples of its ancestors."

George Washington, he was in truth a providential man, for of your many great men would have been able to do so well what he did, and he, appearing as any other people, would not have proved such a useful citizen.

He would not perhaps have survived Washington's task so well, but he filled Washington's place, the noblest that could be imagined. The noblest, for the question was to know whether the attempted revolution would prove the creation of a new and better life or death; the question was to know whether the attempted revolution would prove the creation of a new and better life or death.

George Washington being foremost among them, French admiration began at once and never ceased, and it led to two things for him and for America, two things which was the only country in the world to do so.

With her natural sympathy for those who suffer, for those who are threatened in their just rights to offer her aid, France chose one of the gloomiest moments when Washington was at Valley Forge in the year of independence. And we did another thing which, I believe, we were alone in doing, and which shows, as well as at least as clearly as any other, the sentiment of France for Washington and America.

When the great citizen died, France went into mourning for ten years as if the noblest of her own national heroes had died. A ceremony was held in Paris to honor his memory, and the most powerful posterity of his posterity, whatever be the distance, will remain near to the great ancestor, by their principles, by their industry, by their robustness of purpose, and if I may add a personal wish, by their friendly feeling for France.

Speak for Congress. In receiving the gift Senator Wetmore said: "May we not invoke the blessings of God and France, and the United States, under His guidance express the hope that these two nations, these sister republics, may in common endeavor to bring to the world of moderation, of justice and of peace."

Responding for the house, Representative McCleary spoke of Washington's human side and told stories showing the humor that coursed through his veins in the face of the difficulties he encountered. Recounting the story of Washington in having the different states adopt the constitution of the United States, he said the turning point in Washington's career was chosen by him as president of the convention to construct the constitution. He spoke feelingly of the friendship between the United States and France.

President Pro Tem. Frye adjourned the gathering without ceremony, but the French ambassador was congratulated warmly for his remarks.

PAY BANK INSPECTORS BY ANOTHER METHOD. To This End Amendment to Law is Suggested by Faribault Failure. Globe Special Washington Service. WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 22.—As a result of the Faribault bank failure, to ask congress to alter the national bank inspection act and the law governing the payment of inspectors. The latter are paid by the bank instead of by the day, the price for a $50,000 capital bank being $20. The consequence is that the inspector hurries through the town, doing a bank a day, when he might better stop and do two or three days' work on a single bank if it appeared to be in a bad way. The law also needs an amendment creating a penalty for officials of a bank who disobey the statute forbidding the loan of more than 10 per cent of the capital stock to an individual or corporation. It is probably too late this session to secure the desired legislation, but Senators Clapp and Nelson are interesting themselves.

Berea College Loses. ASHLAND, Ky., Feb. 22.—Berea college was today fined $500 for violation of the Day act. This is the new Kentucky law prohibiting the coeducation of whites and blacks. The case will be appealed to the national supreme court, if necessary.

PIPESTONE COUNTY TOWNS OF PIPESTONE AND YELLOW MEDICINE COUNTIES

PIPESTONE county has often been termed "The Garden Spot of Southwestern Minnesota"—and rightly, too. This is in itself an honor, for Southwestern Minnesota has few equals and no superiors on the American continent. Situated as it is, upon the watershed between the two great rivers, the Missouri on the west and the Mississippi on the east, betwixt two degrees of latitude, between the 43d and 46th parallels, and about 2 1/2 of longitude, between meridians 17 and 19.30 west from Washington, this region is high enough north and above the sea level, and so betwixt the damp air of the great lakes and the dry winds that blow off the Western plains that a happy mean here exists of both moisture and temperature.

Pipestone county lies in the second tier of southern counties, thus enjoying a climate similar to Northern Iowa, and consists of more than 400,000 acres, of which we are satisfied it contains bounds to say that not enough to equal one whole section altogether is waste land. As a rule the surface is gently rolling, never broken or so rolling as to prevent easy cultivation, and the whole county is well drained by Rock river, Split Rock and Pipestone creeks, and other smaller streams. The soil is a rich dark loam of extraordinary depth with a yellow clay subsoil.

Picture if you can a county of nearly 2,000 farms of 160 acres each, crossed by four trunk lines of railroad, dotted here and there with commodious school houses and comfortable churches, buildings, nearly every farm occupied by its owner, good houses and barns and evidences of thrift and prosperity apparent upon every hand, and every ten or twelve miles a thriving little town, with its stores, its hotels, its stocks of furniture in the town.

RUTHTON. Ruthton is beautifully located, and although its growth has been slow, it is increasing and is bound to become one of the important towns of the county. Surrounded as it is by as fine a farming country as can be found it is naturally the trading point for a large number of farmers, and some very creditable stores are conducted—nearly every line of business being represented. The town boasts of a newspaper—the Gazette—its seventh year—and a national bank. Churches of various denominations are small they appear to be very societies. Some four or five secret societies have franchises in Ruthton. It is situated on the Great Northern road, sixteen miles northeast of Pipestone, and has a population of 500 people. It is growing very fast and has a trade of business for every line of trade. It is one of the main shipping points of the Willmar & Sioux Falls branch of the Great Northern railroad, in Pipestone county. This town is growing very fast and has a population of about 300 people. HANLEY FALLS. Hanley Falls is one of the prosperous towns of Yellow Medicine county, and is growing very fast. The town has about 500 people and is situated on the banks of the Yellow Medicine river and at the junction of the Great Northern and the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroads, and is in the heart of the most productive and wealthy agricultural section of Minnesota, where crop failures are unknown. The land is of the best around Hanley Falls, running from $40 to $65, and the soil a black loam about 3 feet deep, and a yellow clay subsoil retains the moisture, and gives the town a direct and easy access to the market.
