BRIBERY CHARGE HEARD BY COURT

State Federation of Labor Listens to Testimony in Kellington-Rogan Contest

For nearly nine hours yesterday the excutive board of the state Federation of Labor sat as a court and jury in the Kellington-Rogan controversy and about 10 o'clock adjourned for refreshments and an opportunity to consider the evidence.

A. E. Kellington, president of the Trades and Labor assembly of Minneapolis, secretary of the international organization of flour millworkers, charged that on the eve of his departure for San Francisco as del-egate to the national convention of the American Federation of Labor, John Ro-

Rogan insisted he did no such thing and the matter had been the subject of so much acrimonious discussion among the members of organized labor in Minneapolis that it was determined to have a thorough investigation by the state board, and five members were in session at Alexander's hall yesterday.

The men who were the judges and jury were Chairman Thomas Van Lear and P. F. Jordan of Minneapolis; T. F. Thomas and C. W. Douglas of St. Paul and M. O. Saltz of Winona. The proceedings were conducted with legal formality and each man was represented by his attorneys Kellington, the accuser, was represented by John Durker; G. B. Howley, president of the Building Trades council and S. J. Spencer.

Rogan was defended by John O'Donnell, ex-labor commissioner; Hugh Jennings and Michael E. Nearly, president of the state federation.

The examination developed there was Charge Was Denied

The examination developed there was considerable feeling between -Kellington and Rogan and the case simmered itself down to a question of veracity between two men two men.

Rogan admitted going to Kellington's house on the night of Nov. 9 when Kellington started for San Francisco. Kellington says he made a tender of money to him, but Rogan explains his visit—the first and last he ever paid to the house—by saying he called to enlist his influence in the settlement of the trouble between the national organization of steam fitters and plumbers.

the national organization of steam fitters and plumbers.

The conference was continued at a saloon on Third street and there were no witnesses. Three members of Kellington's family who were at the station to speed him on his way to the coast say that he informed them he had been offered a bribe of $1,500 if he would have the boycott lifted. At that time they say he refused to name the man.

Charges Are Repeated

It was brought out that early last month Kellington made the statement publicly and repeated it in Rogan's presence. It was alleged that his reasons for doing so were that the state board of which Rogan was a member had adopted a resolution asking the national council to investigate the Washburn-Crosby boycott and to determine whether it should have the sanction of the organization.

Kellington asserted the man was somewhat under the influence of liquor, had a large piece of iron which could be used as a cudgel and a loaded revolver of large calber.

The policeman was informed that he was stopping persons on the Western avenue bridge over the Great Northern railroad tracks and he lay in wait and apprehended him. When searched at the central police station it was found that in addition to the cap which he wore the man had a crush hat folded in his pocket. He had little to say for himself other than that he was a stranger in the city and had committed no offense other than imbibing ilquor.

A number of the detectives had a talk with him yesterday, but whether they learned anything of his antecedents was not divulged, because under the new order of things Chief Doyle is the only person allowed to furnish information to the press, and he has nothing to say to newspapers.

There was a little breeze when Mr. Charges Are Repeated of the court, to testify as to what occurred at the meeting in Kellington's office, for Jordan was present. Chairman Van Lear sustained an objection on the part of Kellington's representatives to permitting a member of the court to testify and the defense did not make an appeal.

Dozens of witnesses were heard, but none other than Kellington and Rogan could testify as to the interview at Kellington's house and here their stories were diametrically opposed to each other.

Unlike attorneys at law, the solicitors for the two men were so thred out after the long session that they did not hesitate to rest their cases without argument and the members of the court and stenographer left the hall for refreshments, and for the purpose of discussing the evidence efter dinner. In spite of the publicity which had been given to the case the attendance at the hearing was much less than had been expected, but the hall was well filled at times.

Office Holders Object to Elective Office Bill

The bill introduced Saturday by Repreentative Bardwell of Minneapolis, which nakes the offices of city clerk, city at-makes the offices of city clerk, city attorney, city assessor and clerk of the municipal court of Minneapolis elective, does not please the men who are holding the places by pleasure of the city council, and some of them are not loth to say that the bill is a punitive measure instigated by the officers of the Hennepin county Republican committee, because they would not contribute to the campaign fund.

City Assessor Minor is outspoken.

"That is one of the schemes that Tom Girling and Andy Rahn are trying to work because we would not contribute to the campaign fund. They were sore and want to get even."

T. H. Girling is the chairman of the county committee and A. A. D. Rahn is the secretary. It is expected there will be considerable feeling shown when the Hennepin delegation has a thorough discussion of the measure. If the bill passes the successors to the present incumbents will be chosen at the next election, although some of the men have been appointed for a six year term.

VOLUNTEERS' LEADER TALKS OF HIS PLANS

Work of the Society in Past and Future Described by Gen. Booth

The wonderful personality of Gen. Ballington Booth of the Volunteers of America explains the love and reverence borne him by not only the people of his own faith, but by all with whom he comes in contact.

Standing 6 feet 3 inches tall, slender and erect, with a well formed head, surmounted with a thick covering of dark hair, slightly tinged with gray, Gen. Booth presents a commanding figure that fully explains his wonderful success as commander in chief of the Voluteers of America. Speaking rapidly, yet enunciating each word clearly, Gen. Booth, with all the earnestness exhibited by him when occupying the public rostrum, talked to The Globe of his hopes and "Among the most helpful and valuable work in connection with the Vol-unteers of America," said the general, "is the aid that has been rendered those who are dependent upon the so-ciety, as well as those who are struggling to maintain their positions as honest, hard working and deserving

"In no section of the work has there been a more marked advance than that which is carried forward upon philan-thropic lines. This work is practically divided into four branches." Fresh Air for Poor

Gen. Booth is very enthusiastic with the plan adopted by the Volunteers for giving the city poor the benefit of fresh air and holidays under proper circum-stances. He said:

There was a little breeze when Mr. Thonnell called P. F. Jordan, one of the meeting in Kellington's office, for dan was present. Chairman Van Learning an objection on the part of land was present. Chairman Van Learning an objection on the part of land was present actives to permitting with the performance of their duties and the see did not make an appeal.

There was a little breeze when Mr. The fact that the detective department is to be reorganized on April 1 on lines scores of cities where the Volunteers labor only have the hungry been fed, the destitute clothed, but aundreds of the city brown have been taken into the fresh of the court to testify and the see did not make an appeal.

The state board and a member of the detective department is to be reorganized on April 1 on lines scores of cities where the Volunteers labor on only have the hungry been fed, the destitute clothed, but aundreds of the city brown have been taken into the fresh of their duties and the see did not make an appeal.

TRAVELING MAN

TRAVELING MAN scores of cities where the Volunteers labor not only have the hungry been fed, the destitute clothed, but aundreds of the city poor have been taken into the fresh air. In one center it has been the overworked and weary parents who have been taken to a neighboring resort for an outing; in another center several hundred tired mothers, in another hundreds of children have been taken to a pleasant valley to play among the flowers and trees. It is estimated that over 100,000 of such men, women and children have had some enjoyment and health given to them through the instrumentality of the Volunteers. We hope to have some better method of tabulating the numbers ere another year has flown.

Tells of Prison Work

The prison work of the Volunteers which Gen. Booth touched upon in his discourse last night is receiving his closest attention. He firmly believes that a great work for humanity can be done there,
"There is a powerful and matchless work among the prisons of our coun-try," said the general. "The prison league has been formed in twenty-two league has been formed in twenty-two state prisons, embracing in all 28,000 men and women who have endeavored to live subordinate lives within the walls, while the department is in touch by service and correspondence with 30,000 men. We cannot refrain from adding our testimony to that of our prison representatives and court officials to the permanent good done to hundreds of those who are wearing, or have worn, the garb of a penal institution. The testimony of these men who have been remodeled in character and life is in itself an eloquent tribute to the work accomplished by the brave one who has tolled so hard and devotedly in inaugurating this branch of the work."

In speaking of the many benevolent

In speaking of the many benevolent Institutions sustained or aided by the Volunteers, Gen. Booth said:

Homes for the Homeless

The homes for working and out of work individuals have become a branch of the Volunteers involving considerable magnitude. Social efforts of this character were not in view when we entered the field some years ago, but today I would remind you that there are homes of philanthropy in Chicago, Joliet, Darien, Fort Dodge, Kansas City, Pueblo, Worcester, Boston, Lynn, Malden, Toledo, Erie, Pittsburg, Buffaio, New Castle, Flushing, Philadelphia, Newark, Minneapolis, San Francisco and other places. There have been 950 children received into these homes and 7,950 children have been helped with clothing. Not counting many hundreds sheltered in Kansas City and St. Louis during the flood, these institutions lodged 234,504 persons and fed 366,037 persons, independent of the temporary relief and food given to 101,000 persons during the holiday seasons. At the present time negotiations are pending for yet other institutions for the housing and maintaining of needy young women, homeless mothers and children without guardians.

Another branch of the work taken Homes for the Homeless

Another branch of the work taken up by the Volunteers is the forming of local societies for the helping of the sick and dying. Gen. Booth, touching on this part of the work, said:

ing on this part of the work, said:

Almost every company and post that has attained organization is carrying on in a degree a visitation of the most needy and destitute persons. Such persons are aided with their rent, or food, or fuel, or some articles of clothing, or occupation, medical treatment or nursing. One center takes a little sick boy to camp until he is recovered, another provides for the children of prisoners' families, while another distributed 10,000 quarts of fresh milk principally among the alling and destitute children.

Gen. Booth is not making a tour of the country at this time. He is only visiting the cities of the northwest. He will leave St. Paul today.

PEACE FORCES CROWD HARD ON RUSSIA'S RULER

The first army, which has been covering the retreat of the Russian forces from the south, is withdrawing slowly, checking apparently light attacks by the Japanese. The Japanese are conducting a flanking operation on the right, and from the Russian column Japanese batteries are visible keeping pace a short distance away.

The Red Cross detachments at all of the intermediate stations to Harbin are working night and day, operating, bandaging and feeding the wounded.
