KEEP UP THE LIMIT

Insurance Agents Defeat Proposed Cut in Pay

Pressure by insurance agents proved too strong for the house insurance committee when it met at the Ryan hotel last night, and the committee voted to strike out a provision from the special committee's bill limiting commissions to 15 per cent. The insurance companies had agreed to save to the assured of the state $150,000 a year in reductions in rates if the clause was retained, but the pressure was so strong that the committee agreed to amend the bill to assist the local agents.

The compact feature of the bill was rejected by a vote of 6 to 5 and the nonunion companies win a victory by this decision. The amended bill contains the fire marshal provision of the old bill and a fairly comprehensive anti-compact clause. The bill as amended by the committee contains a duplicate of the Lord's senate bill, and it will be substituted for the Rockne bill in the house.

Fred V. Brown and James Shegner, attorneys for the insurance companies, spoke for the original committee bill. Among the agents who appeared to oppose the bill were George V. B. Hill, Jacob Stone, Chief of the insurance Show and H. E. G. Kemp. The committee meeting continued until 11 o'clock.

CHILDREN ARE SENT TO STATE SCHOOL

Humane Society Takes Two Tots Away From Their Mother

Jacob and Maggie Nihart, two children aged 8 and 10 years, respectively, were committed to the state school yesterday by Judge O'Connor after the father of the children is supposed to be dead, while the mother is said to live on University avenue, near the bridge. The children are committed to the humane society that the boy and girl were not properly cared for and their moral surroundings in which they lived were not conducive to their moral welfare. The society took the case in hand and after asking an investigation commenced proceedings in court to have the children committed to the state school.

STEGNER JURY IS UNABLE TO AGREE

Suit Brought Against Milwaukee to Recover Damages for Death of Man

After deliberating all of Monday night, the jury in the case of Le Roy Stegner vs. Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company reported to Judge Bunn, who heard the case, that they could reach no agreement as to a verdict, and they were accordingly discharged. At a former trial a verdict for the defendant was found, but upon an appeal to the supreme court the verdict was reversed. The plaintiff asks $5,000 damages for the death of his brother, Jasper Stegner, a street railway conductor, who was killed on one of the defendant company's crossings in Minneapolis.

BANKERS OF SEVENTH DISTRICT TO MEET

The outline of the programme for the next convention will be made, and the place of meeting probably decided on.

Relief Association Wins

Judge Lewis yesterday decided the case of the St. Paul Fire Department Relief association vs. Margaret D. Coombs and others, in favor of the plaintiff, sustaining the claim to a mortgage of $750 upon property sold by the association to the defendant in 1900. A curious legal entanglement had resulted through an error in signing up the mortgage papers, the association becoming the mortgagee instead of the mortgagor.

Violate Child Labor Law

Labor Commissioner W. H. Williams thinks that the child labor law in the state of Minnesota is being violated too easily, and to correct this is asking the school superintendents to assist in enforcing the truancy laws of the state. Circular letters are being sent out to the superintendents, in which they are asked to aid the labor bureau in gathering such facts as may be useful.

St. Paul Girl Wins Honors

Miss Esther E. Osborne, a St. Paul girl, is winning honors in grand opera in Stockholm, Sweden. She is a daughter of Capt. Osborne of the state auditor's office and has been studying music abroad for over a year. A letter from United States Consul Edward S. Adams tells that the great success of the young woman is winning as Marguerite in "Faust."

PAWN TICKETS FAIL

TO GET $100 BOUNDS

Former Deputy Sheriff's Speculation in Pawned Stones Ends in Lawsuit

An echo of the arrest of Karl R. Kipp, the absconding Syracuse (N. Y.) convict, in St. Paul last October, is heard in the suit brought yesterday in the district court by William Miller against Abe Cohen.

Miller, who was turned by the county jail at the time of Kipp's brief incarceration in this city, sues the Minnesota street pawnbroker to recover damages in the sum of $100 because of the pawnbroker's refusal to turn over to him two diamond rings pawned by Kipp under the name of Jack Shepherd, and for the delivery of which Miller held the tickets.

Kipp's roller taking the bank of which he was cashier of $100,000, fled to Europe. He marked his course through the Parisian boulevards and the gambling palaces of Monte Carlo with a flood of money, until, tiring of exile, he returned to this continent, landing in Canada and finally came to St. Paul from Winnipeg.

Kipp Pawned Diamonds

Here he showed every evidence of prosperity. His ill-gotten gains were divided away under his lavish expenditures that he was forced to pawn his jewelry. He deposited a 1 3/16 carat diamond ring with a 1/2 carat diamond ring set with two 1/4 carat diamonds with Abe Cohen, receiving a loan of $75 upon the first and of $40 upon the second.

Shortly after he was "spotted" by Detective Fraser, arrested and immediately broke down and confessed his crimes. The sheriff in Syracuse was notified of the arrest and came at once to St. Paul, as did agents of the surety company in which Kipp, or Shepherd, as he was known here, was bonded. He consented to return to Syracuse to face trial without the formality of requisition papers and was at once taken back.

Diamonds Denied Miller

In bringing his suit Miller, who is at present connected with a trade training school at Red Wing, says that while Kipp was under his care in jail during the latter portion of October he obtained "for a just and reasonable compensation" the two pawn tickets given by Cohen upon the rings and that Oct. 29 he went to Cohen's store and tendered the tickets with the amount of the loan in each case in exchange for the rings and that Cohen refused to surrender them.

He claims the solitary diamond ring worth $150 and the other $30, and so because of the refusal of the pawnbroker to surrender the rings he asks judgment for damages in the case of the first ring of $100, and in the case of the second for $50.

Pawnbroker Cohen, who was served with the summons in the suit yesterday afternoon, said that he remembered very well the demands made by Miller for the rings, but that before Miller's call he had turned both over to agents for the bonding company upon a written order of Sheriff O'Connor, having told the detectives that he had lost the pawn tickets.

RUSH FOR PROVERB

CONTESTS CONTINUES

Contestants Need but One Envelope for Each Set of Answers

This morning proverb picture No. 43 is presented upon the second page of The Globe. A week from today... The morning proverb picture No. 43 is presented upon the second page of The Globe. A week from today proverb picture No. 50, the closing one of the series, will be printed and the greatest educational contest ever attempted and carried to a successful culmination by a newspaper of the northwest will be all over save for the sending in of answers and the examination of the same by the judges.

Throughout the army of contestants who are working in the hope of winning some substantial one of the prizes offered there is renewed activity as the closing day of the contest approaches. Many calls are received daily at The Globe office and through the mails for book numbers of The Globe containing some picture concerning the proverb answer to which doubt has arisen. It appears to be the general feeling with the contestants: "When in doubt, send two or more proverb answers." And the rule is a good one.

Mr. Proverb pictures doubtless present the possibility to different minds of more than one proverb fitting the conditions thereof, and these persons seem to feel the prudent to do better part of valor for they are sending for extra copies of the papers containing the doubtful pictures, clipping the corresponding coupons and preparing to submit different proverbs in answer to the same picture.

Doubt still exists in the minds of the contestants as to the exact meanings of the various conditions of the contest... The directors of the club indorsed each of the fifty proverbs in favor of the Morley bill. He said that Minnesota's prosperity depended in a large measure on the character and blood of the live stock, particularly cattle owned by stock raisers and farmers all over the state.

REAL ESTATE DEALER DROPS DEAD AT HOME

William H. Richardson Stricken While Preparing to Leave the City

While superintending the packing of his household goods preparatory to moving to Arcoia, Minn., William H. Richardson, a real estate dealer, dropped dead at his home, 564 Marshall avenue, a few minutes after 8 o'clock yesterday morning. A physician was called, but his efforts were unavailing, as death was almost instantaneous.

TOUGH YOUTH CAUGHT POUNDING WHITE WING

Rowdy Hits Street Sweeper and Will Spend Month in Workhouse

Because Michael Nash, a street sweeper stationed at Seventh and Cedar streets, refused to sweep a patch for A. E. MacDonald, a young tough of some note, yesterday morning, MacDonald took the law into his own hands and smote the "white wing" over the left eye, causing an ugly swelling. Not satisfied with the injury already inflicted, MacDonald wrested the broom from Nash and was about to bring it down over the street sweeper's head when Capt. John Clark happened by. Seizing MacDonald by the neck, the captain hustled him into a doorway and called a patrolman. MacDonald was sentenced to the workhouse for thirty days by Judge Finehout yesterday afternoon.

COLORED FOLKS DRAW TERM IN WORKHOUSE

Charles Jackson and Carrie Wilson Sent Up for Fighting

Fifteen days each at the workhouse Charles Jackson and Carrie Wilson, both colored, Monday night the couple indulged in a rough and tumble fight near Jackson and Grove streets, and during the fracas traveled back and forth a distance of two blocks. Patrolman Smith attempted to arrest the couple, but they eluded his grasp and fled to the home of Carrie's sister, on Grove street. The patrolman forced the door and the two were taken to the central station.

Building Permit

A permit was issued by Building Inspector L. W. Rundlett yesterday to M. Briggs to erect a two story frame dwelling on the east side of Exchange street, between Ellery and Sherman. The house is to cost $3,500.

KERWIN TO RESIGN

Le Sueur Man Said to Be Ready to Quit

The capitol, it is said, is soon to be treated to the spectacle of a Republican state official tendering his resignation. P. J. Kerwin of Le Sueur is credited with an intention to resign his place as second assistant attorney general.

Mr. Kerwin has practically decided upon Young of his determination and Mr. Young's campaign committee made the arrangement with Kerwin before the state convention that nominated E. T. Young for attorney general.

The work of the office is extremely onerous, and the Le Sueur man has not felt that admiration for his first state office that he had anticipated. He built a big stock pavilion at the state fair grounds.

BILLS ARE INDORSED

Directors of Commercial Club Approve Four Measures

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Commercial club yesterday considered four measures recommended for passage by the Ramsey county legislative assembly.

The bills were: Senate file No. 282, authorizing an issue of $500,000 of water bonds; senate file No. 160, giving power to the water supply commission to acquire land adjacent to the water supply of St. Paul; the matter of building the bridge at Fort Snelling and the Morley bill to appropriate $200,000 for a big stock pavilion at the state fair grounds.

The directors of the club indorsed each of the five proposals. Secretary E. W. Randall of the state fair spoke in favor of the Morley bill. He said that Minnesota's prosperity depended in a large measure on the character and blood of the live stock, particularly cattle owned by stock raisers and farmers all over the state.

The night travel was just at the rushing period when the old woman arrived once more at the crowded station. Depot Master Farrell noticed her. He detailed a man to keep watch over her for awhile.

As near as I could make out she is bound for some point in Michigan called Grand Rapids. I don't know the place. She may be mixed up with where she wants to go. There used to be a place between here and Duluth years ago on the Grand Rapids line. Perhaps she left there when a girl and is now trying to find her way back to her old home. The town has long since passed away.

So there was nothing to do at the late hour but to send the old woman to the care of the police. She was placed in a room and made as comfortable as possible. When an officer saw the room she was up on a chair, blowing with all her might at the electric light. As soon as she saw the officer she cried gleefully, "about means."

STRANGE WOMAN

PUZZLES THE POLICE

Comes to City From West and Forgets Name and Destination

Somebody's grandmother slept in a cell in the women's ward at the police station last night, though she was not there for any wrong done by her to the law of the land; she was there for her own protection because there seemed no other place for the one-eyed woman to go under the circumstances.

When a Great Northern train arrived yesterday morning the little, short plump, wrinkled faced old woman alighted. She was soon noticed by the depot officials, and an effort made to ascertain her destination, but without success. It was thought that she had intended to travel, though no explanation of her lonely condition could be found.

Matron Tries and Fails

The matron, long used to such cases, tried to learn something of the senseless, hollow laugh was all the explanation the childish old soul offered. Mrs. Hutchings, agent of the Association of Charities, was called to her aid, and he undertook to care for her. A comfortable lodging place was found for her at the Globe hotel.

While apparently without means, the manager of the hotel thinks she has money stowed away in a long black trunk which she carries, but which she steadfastly refuses to let anyone touch. The housekeeper engaged the old woman in conversation, and it seems for a time that she was going to tell something that would lead to her identity.

"What have you in the bag?" asked the housekeeper. "I told her that well, I'm not going to tell you," cried the old woman with delight. "About dusk the old woman became restless. She insisted that she must be going and demanded the way to the depot.

"I had no right to keep her here," said the manager. "I told her that we would carry her, but she insisted that she must be going, so I took her to the depot."

The night travel was just at the rushing period when the old woman arrived once more at the crowded station. Depot Master Farrell noticed her. He detailed a man to keep watch over her for awhile.

As near as I could make out she is bound for some point in Michigan called Grand Rapids. I don't know the place. She may be mixed up with where she wants to go. There used to be a place between here and Duluth years ago on the Grand Rapids line.

WANT LOWER RATE

Oil Companies File Complaint With Railroad Commission

In a complaint filed with the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners yesterday, the Bartles Oil company of St. Paul and other companies ask for a reduction of freight rates on oil, gasoline and petroleum products in less than carload lots on all railroads in the state.

The oil, gasoline and petroleum products in less than carload lots is now sent by third class freight, which is much higher per hundred than fifth class, which is the lowest available rate. It asks that the commodities named be made fourth class freight when less than car lots. The action of the railroad commission in Iowa is cited as an example.

The list of companies is as follows: Bartles Oil company, Corplanter Oil company and the General Oil company of St. Paul and the Penn Oil and Supply company, the Climax Refining company, the Kunz Oil company and the Crescent Oil company of Minneapolis.

City Printer McHugh Dead

Patrick McHugh, city expert printer, died yesterday morning at his residence, 413 Fuller street, at the age of 42. Death resulted from acute pulmonary trouble. Mr. McHugh had lived in St. Paul for some time and had a wide circle of acquaintances. He was a member of division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, and a prominent member of the typographical union. Mr. McHugh leaves a wife and five children. His funeral arrangements have not yet been decided on.

License Denied New Trial

Judge Kelly yesterday denied the application of the plaintiff for a new trial in the case of Roch J. Lizee vs. Frank Robert. In the previous trial Lizee, who was a partner of Robert in the contracting business, claimed that Robert had taken $536.11 more than his share of the assets of the business. The trial, however, brought out the fact that $565.75 was still due to Robert, aside from the sum demanded by the plaintiff.
