

CITY NEWS

Old Man Is Seriously Ill—Henry Christopher, 94 years of age, is very ill at the residence of his son-in-law, Charles Pusch, 253 Sherburne avenue.

Fire Loss Reaches $50,000—The total loss sustained by S. Berglund through the burning of his lumber yard at White Bear will amount to $50,000. The plant will be operated temporarily on the salvage.

W. S. Moore's Condition Improved—W. S. Moore, the aged attorney, who has been in the hospital for some days suffering from blood poisoning, is reported on the way to complete recovery.

Judgment by Default—Judgment by default for $32.59 was secured by Mrs. E. C. Sprague against William Middleton in the municipal court today. Mrs. Sprague was formerly manager of the life insurance information bureau.

Larceny Charges Dismissed—Ada Palmer, arrested with Frances Hoyer for larceny of small articles in a department store, was discharged in the municipal court yesterday on the recommendation of the county attorney. Frances Hoyer will have a hearing today.

McGraw Sent to Workhouse—Leo McGraw, who knocked John Volkwein down and robbed him of $5 in an Eighth street alley Sunday night, was sentenced to sixty days in the workhouse yesterday in the police court. Ralph Juarwine, arrested with McGraw, was discharged.

Code Commission Through—The statute revision commission that has worked for four years on the code, has closed its office and gone out of business. The assets of the commission were one dictionary and one typewriter, which were sold according to a report made to the executive office.

Mrs. B. Quinn Dead—Mrs. B. Quinn, 98 years, for fifty years a resident of this city, died today at her home, 493 Collins street. The body will be taken to Owatonna for burial. She is survived by three children, Mrs. M. D. Kelly, St. Paul; Mrs. Patrick Brennan, Owatonna, Minn.; and Mrs. Fred Carpenter of this city.

Merely Defended Themselves—Edward Carlson and H. Adolphson, arrested Monday on a charge of disorderly conduct at Seventh and Rosabel streets, were discharged in the police court yesterday. They proved that they had been assaulted by two rowdies, and that they merely defended themselves.

Baker Resigns From Board—Dr. H. S. Baker of the Humboldt high school has resigned from the state teachers' examining board, and Supt. P. P. Kennedy of the Fairmount high school has been appointed to succeed him. The other members of the board are Supt. S. J. Race of Red Wood county and Prof. Arthur E. Haynes of the state university.

HORSE BREAKS NECK

Draft Team Dashes Through Business District

A team of heavy draft horses, frightened by a piece of flying paper, made a mad rush through the lower business section of the city at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The horses, attached to a wagon loaded to the top with scrap iron, stood in the junk yard of Philip Christensen, their owner, at Ninth and Rosabel streets. The horses suddenly became frightened and driverless ran out of the yard, turning down Rosabel street. At first they ran slowly, but their angle of the iron in the wagon behind them made them wild and they dashed blindly along. At Rosabel and Fourth streets the wagon, with its contents, weighing a ton or more, scraped the rear of a southbound street car. At Fifth street the runaway barely missed colliding with another car. A panic was narrowly averted in the car, several passengers resisting to rush for the door when they saw the team coming on like a cataclysm down the hill.

Reaching third street the horses attempted to make the turn to the east, but their speed was so great that the momentum of the heavily loaded wagon prevented it, and the horses ran full tilt into the Minnesota Home hotel building. The horses struck a telephone pole, throwing the scrap iron in every direction. One of the horses was doubled up like a jackknife and had his neck, leg and several ribs broken, and the other horse escaped with bruises. A window in the saloon on the ground floor of the building struck by the horses was broken and the corner of the building ripped off.

NEW INCORPORATIONS

Articles of incorporation for C. H. Cannon company of Minneapolis, wholesale produce commission merchants, were filed with the secretary yesterday. The capital is $10,000. Our Boys and Girls Journal Printing company was incorporated for $50,000.

EISENMENGER L. MEAT CO.

At the Head of Eighth St. N. W. Tel. Main 141-142, T. C. Tel. 285-143

ALWAYS BIG VALUES

For Wednesday and Thursday

- Headquarters
Canned Salmon Special 10c
Pike 15c
Fresh Pig Pork Shoulders 8c
Mutton Steak 10c
Veal Chop and Steak 10c
Lean Pork Steak 10c
Fancy Marinated Herring 15c
Pickled Corned Beef

Sichling's Famous Milwaukee Health Tonic... 465-457 WABASHA STREET.

PUSH BOARDS FOR BIG SALES GEFEST

Directors of St. Paul Board Expect Attendance to Pass 50,000 Mark

Between forty and fifty thousand persons are expected to attend the saengerfest to be held in St. Paul on June 21, 22, 23, from the northwest. Several thousands are expected to be present from eastern points. If the expectations of the board of directors of the St. Paul Saengerfest association are met, the attendance will be greater than that at the Milwaukee saengerfest, which broke all previous records.

World famous soloists, among them Gadske and Nordica, will be invited to sing, and a special matinee will be arranged to be known as the artists' matinee, at which a quartette of famous vocalists will sing. At a meeting of the board of directors of the association held last night in the office of Louis Betz, city comptroller, ways and means were discussed to successfully carry out the plans of the organization. To saengerfest societies and venues throughout the northwest will be sent artistic greetings and invitations to attend. Of these greetings 1,000 are to be printed in illuminated-German text on heavy Japan paper and mounted on unsized deckled stock. Later the greetings will be sent to every singing society in the United States.

Saengerfest Journal The association will also print a monthly saengerfest journal to keep alive interest in the festival which will be mailed to every member of singing societies invited to attend. A committee to have charge of the publication of the journal will be appointed by the board.

Hereafter five will constitute a quorum of the music committee numbering eleven. The committee will select the musical numbers to be sung by the choruses and soloists, and the musical directors and orchestra.

A rough programme, drawn up by the committee in charge, arranges for a grand reception concert on the evening of Thursday, June 21, in which local singing societies, including Minneapolis, will sing. Church choirs will also take part in the singing on that date. On Friday afternoon will be held the artists' matinee. On Friday evening will be held the first grand concert, participated in by all the singing societies and organizations in mass choruses. On Saturday evening the second grand concert will be held. Saturday afternoon will be children's matinee, when 2,000 school children of the city will sing in chorus. There will also be solo singing. On Sunday afternoon all the societies will combine in a great picnic, to be held at one of the large parks.

Not an Exclusive Affair

The saengerfest will not be an exclusively German affair, as Scandinavian singing societies have been invited to join in the celebration. They will sing two selections in male mass with one Norwegian composition and the other Swedish. The fact that the saengerfest will be a celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the formation of the saengerbund of 10,000, and independent of the other societies, like the district saengerfest associations.

The next meeting of the board of directors of the association has been set for May 9. The directors will meet in the mayor's parlors in the city hall.

SECRETARY VOGT TO MEET CHURCH LEADERS

International Officer of Christian Endeavor Society Here Today

The local members of the Christian Endeavor society will tender a reception to Von Ogden Vogt, secretary of the international organization, today. A meeting will be held in Minneapolis this morning, followed by a luncheon at the secretary's residence. The reception committee will come to St. Paul this afternoon for a series of meetings. A meeting with the ministers of the city will be had at the home of Dr. M. D. Edwards, pastor of the Dayton Avenue Presbyterian church, this afternoon. Another meeting of the society will be held later in the day at the home of Park Congregational church, and a workers' conference will meet at the church at 8 o'clock.

SMALL FIRES KEEP ENGINE COMPANIES OUT

Four Runs Made During the Afternoon and Early Evening

Four small fires occupied the attention of the fire department yesterday.

Bedding in the frame dwelling of a colored family at Wabasha street and College avenue caught fire in the afternoon from a carelessly thrown match, which extinguished before the engines arrived. At 752 Maryland avenue was fired by small boys and was extinguished before damage was done. A grass fire of uncertain origin spread and destroyed a haystack near Como park on Como avenue. Last night hot ashes thrown on the city dump at Third and Commercial started a fire which required several engines' work with an engine to extinguish.

DULUTH MINISTER CALLED TO ST. PAUL

St. John's English Lutheran Church Wants Rev. A. F. Elmquist as Pastor

Special to The Globe DULUTH, Minn., April 11.—The St. John's English Lutheran church of St. Paul has called A. F. Elmquist, pastor of Swedish Bethany church of this city, and he has the matter under consideration. He has built up his church here into a large congregation and is active in public affairs. Rev. Elmquist is one of the popular young ministers of the synod.

Will Grind Canadian Wheat

The Pillsbury-Washburn Flour company, limited, of Minneapolis, filed a $50,000 bond with the government yesterday for the purpose of securing permission to grind Canadian wheat in bone in the Lincoln mill at Anoka. This means that the company will be enabled to ship in Canadian wheat, which they can grind into flour for export purposes, in which case no duty will be assessed against the wheat.

Brings Suit to Recover

Tibbs, Hutchings & Co. yesterday began suit in the district court against W. H. H. Phillips asking judgment for $1,626.92. The plaintiff alleges that the defendants owe on three notes for sums respectively $500, $528.66 and $626.92.

Price's Cream Baking Powder

Improves the flavor and adds to the healthfulness of the food.

PHONE COMPANY TO HEAR LOUD PROTEST

Commercial Club Questions Reasons for Removal of Toll Boards

A plausible argument was made yesterday at the special meeting of the directors of the Commercial club to show why the Northwestern Telephone Exchange company really wants to remove its toll boards from St. Paul.

It was stated at the meeting that the company was granted a franchise in 1876 and that the franchise will expire by limitation next year. That if another franchise is given the company, the new franchise will entail the payment of a gross earnings tax and that it is this the company seeks to avoid by going to Minneapolis.

The meeting was called to consider the threatened removal of the toll board of the company from this city. The discussion was spirited and if it is left for the directors to decide, the toll board will remain in St. Paul permanently. The following resolution was passed unanimously: Resolved, That the railway, mail and telegraph committee be instructed to interview the Northwestern Telephone company and insist that the toll board station be not removed from St. Paul, and to secure from such company a positive definition of their position in the premises, and that a special meeting of this board be called to consider such report as soon as the same shall be ready, and that the other commercial bodies and the corporation attorney be asked to meet with this board at that time.

The argument that the company sought overhead rights of entry into the city was scouted and it was pointed out that the conduit system was already partially installed. Various other arguments and suggestions were submitted to the directors and the result was the above resolution. The transportation committee, to which the instructions were directed, will meet today and call upon the company with full instructions to ascertain the exact position of the company with regard to the reported move.

During the afternoon the Retailers' association and the Jobbers' union met and considered the proposed removal of the toll board. Each of these bodies passed resolutions similar to that of the Commercial club. The toll board of the company gives employment to thirty-seven girls, who earn yearly about $10,000 all told. In case of removal this much ready money would be taken away from the retail dealers of St. Paul.

DRIVER OF RUNAWAY IS THROWN ON HEAD

Frightened Horse Starts on Mad Tear and Peter Knaut is Injured

Peter Knaut, 685 Wabasha street, was thrown head first from his buggy at Fifth and Jackson street yesterday morning during the course of a runaway and badly cut about the head. His left leg was also injured. Knaut stopped his horse at Sixth and Rosabel street. While attempting to fasten a weight to the animal it became frightened and ran away. Knaut jumped into the buggy and tried to pull up the horse, but the buggy collided with a wagon belonging to John Shea, 4 Jackson street, and Knaut was thrown out. Both vehicles were badly damaged, and Knaut's horses badly hurt.

Woman Denied Divorce

In a decision rendered yesterday Judge Kelly refused the petition of Carrie Gilbertson for a divorce from her husband, Andrew Gilbertson. It was the third time the Gilbertson family troubles had been in court and the judge decided that they would have to come again.

New Commercial Club

The first meeting of the Arlington Commercial club, the new organization, will be held tomorrow evening in the office of N. O. Hage. Officers will be elected and organization perfected. The club has sixty charter members.

School Contract Awarded

The contract for building the addition to the Hancock school was yesterday awarded to Rees & Co. for $18,491, which was the lowest bid.

DYING AS FRIENDS GIVE HIM BENEFIT

Planned in Ignorance of Illness—End Came Before He Was Told

NEW YORK—George Becker, who established the first concert ticket agency in New York, lay in the unconscious state of the foreman's death while a benefit musicale was being given for him, and yesterday he died without the final pleasure of knowing that his friends had tendered him a testimonial. Becker's home was at No. 205 West 102d street. Forty years ago he started in the music business as Theodore Thomas' librarian, and for years had been prominent in musical circles as manager of the Knelsel quartette. The quartette gave a benefit concert at the music business on Wednesday evening which was intended to reimburse Becker for his losses by thieves. His home was recently looted by thieves. It was planned to give the benefit as a surprise to Becker. His friends were not aware of his illness and were disappointed at his nonappearance. The next morning they learned of his death. Mr. Becker is survived by a widow and an adult son.

Minneapolis Camp No. 674, M. W. A. Don't forget our vaudeville entertainment tomorrow night.

Rome—The pope received in private audience Rev. John A. Zahm of Notre Dame, Ind., provincial of the congregation of Holy Cross in the United States, who passed an offering of $1,000 from the University of Notre Dame.

MILTON'S BIG BUTTER STORE OUR FAMOUS Star Brand Butter MILTON DAIRY CO. Cor. 9th and Wabasha Sts.

GIRLS AT CAPITOL

Think His Ideas About Dressing on $65 a Year Just Too Funny

The girls that Edward Atkinson found in the east may be able to dress well on $65 a year, but those in the capitol building of Minnesota say they do not know how it is done. Prof. Atkinson's list of feminine wearing apparel for four years was shown to half a dozen young women at the capitol, but they greeted it with shrieks of derision.

"Why, that wouldn't buy face powder for Minnesota girls," said one smartly dressed young woman.

The unanimous view taken by the capitol girls is this: The list furnished by Prof. Atkinson may be sufficient in some ways, if the articles were of good quality, but such as could be bought on a $65 allowance would not last half the time.

"Why, anyone would know that list was fixed up by a man," said one rosy cheeked girl. "Why, he hasn't even got any vells in there. Vells cost $5 a year, and would be cheap at that."

"His vells are being wasted, to get along on that list. Ten undershirts—well, possibly. Eight pairs of cotton gloves and eight pairs of kid gloves. I never had to buy gloves for a girl or he would have altered that item, too; and the kind you would buy on a $65 allowance a year."

"And then look at the foolish man! Two hats a year! Now you know that might be done if they were nice hats, but on $65 you could afford to buy on $65 a year. Eight pairs of Oxfords and eight pairs of high shoes. Yes, I could make that do me. Two winter garments for winter and two for summer—yes, I can make a jacket do two years."

"Oh, Frances, look here. Sixteen cotton shirts. Well, a girl would look to go pretty shabby and stay at home part of the time, while her clothes are being washed, to get along on that list. Ten undershirts—well, possibly. Eight pairs of cotton gloves and eight pairs of kid gloves. I never had to buy gloves for a girl or he would have altered that item, too; and the kind you would buy on a $65 allowance a year."

Boys Take Handkerchiefs "Look here, Gertrude, at his handkerchief list. Twelve a year might do some circumstances, but—say, young man, did you ever sit to a dark corner with a girl and steal her handkerchief just to have something to remember her by? Well, that's the way half of them goes. They would have to be very good material to stand up the washing necessary, even if the boys didn't take any."

Here is a little article that would surprise you and that is neckwear. You have no idea how much of a girl's pin money it takes to keep her looking fresh around the neck; why, that is the way we fool the men to think we have on our side. We simply put something new around the neck; no, that item would be heavy. "I wish I could do it," sighed Gladys in indignation. "If you find out how it is done I wish you would let me know."

Then Gladys took a look at herself in the nickel trimmings of the typewriter and began to hammer out a report. Here is a list of things Prof. Atkinson says can be made to do a woman four years and can be purchased at an annual cost of $65: Eight hats trimmed by the wearer. Two pairs of high shoes. Two outer garments for summer. Two pairs of high shoes for winter. Sixteen cotton shirts. Twenty-four pairs stockings. Four cotton shirtwaists. Ten undershirts. Ten handkerchiefs. Eight corset covers. Eight nightgowns. Two umbrellas. Eight pairs cotton gloves. Two pairs of kid gloves. Four woolen shirtwaists. Two silk shirtwaists. Six summer undervests. Eight pairs of kid gloves. Twelve pairs of cotton drawers. One muff. Belts, buckles, etc.

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Drive Workmen to Crime "In after years, when admiring visitors are shown the institution and point with pride to the handiwork of the inmates, at work so beautifully finished, so serviceable and showing the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

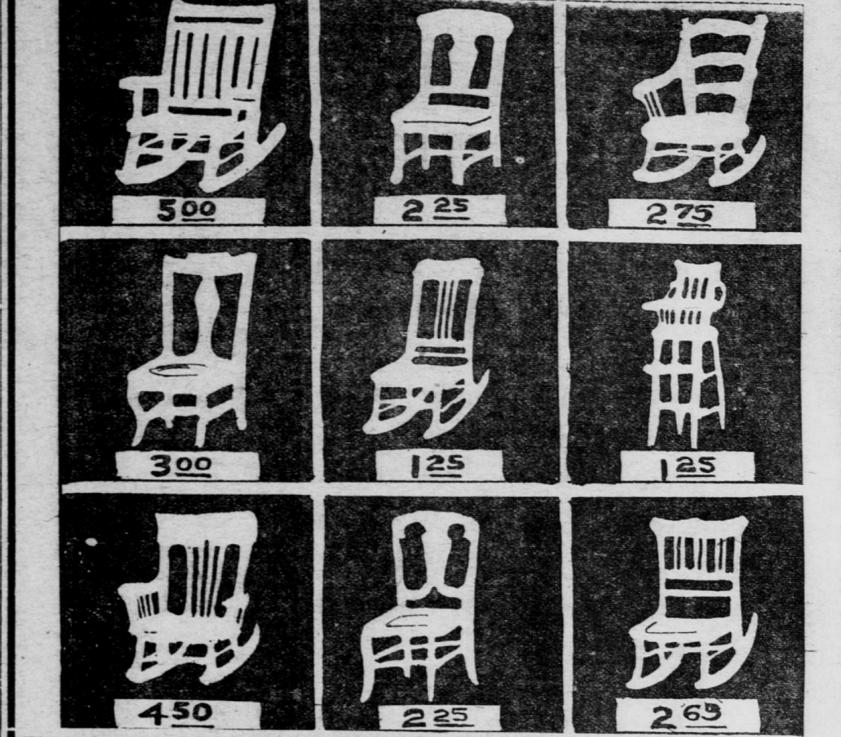

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

WALKER'S SALE 15,000 CHAIRS AT YOUR PRICE

THE HOME FURNISHERS SMITH & FARWELL CO. SIXTH AND MINNESOTA STS.

VOLLMER BILL STIRS THE LABOR LEADERS

William Templeman Declares Measure Puts Premium on Crime

To endeavor to right conditions amenable to improvement by legislation is the purpose of the Workingmen's league, organized by the union laboring men of St. Paul. The league already has a membership of 400. There are 10,000 union laboring men in St. Paul, and since every one is eligible to membership in the league the moral effect of the organization cannot be underestimated.

The league held a meeting Monday evening and considered pending legislation. An accounting from the officers as to what had been accomplished in connection with the Republican legislature was not very flattering as to results, but it showed the necessity of such an organization. The fact of the Selb fellow servant bill, making the recovery of damages possible in accidents through the negligence of fellow servants in a variety of employments, was reported.

The measure pending in the legislature which attracted the attention and opposition of the league is the Vollmer bill to repeal all limitations as to the employment of convict labor in the two penal institutions of the state. It is argued that this bill, if passed, would have the effect of putting the free labor of the state at a distinct disadvantage. Speaking of the bill and the attitude of the legislature towards the measure, William Templeman, former president of the St. Paul Trades and Labor assembly, said last night:

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for the interests of the state should exhibit such a lack of interest in the prison population and deliberately overlook the necessity of protecting the free labor of the state. That they would intend means to take from the families of the workmen the little that they have and beggar the many to gratify the few is incomprehensible. It is not sufficient that we already have a large criminal population, but they must needs put a premium on crime in passing this apparently innocent looking bill. In making the state a competitor in the industrial world they make it impossible for the man who seeks to maintain himself in decency to do so, when he is forced to compete with cheap prison labor, whether operated by the state or let out to contractor. When the factory is closed in one big city because of prison competition, thousands of men must, perforce, seek their living by their wits, for we must admit that after spending a score or more of years at one occupation the mechanic cannot easily turn his hand to another. Rather than starve or see his family suffer, the man will resort to crime."

Templeman Scores House "It is heart breaking to think that men chosen to legislate for