Argue for New Trial—Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock a motion for a new trial in the case of Nellie Maley against the street railway company will be argued by her attorney, J. H. Pflanz. Plaintiff sued to recover for alleged personal injuries received in a street car collision, the first trial resulting in a verdict for the defendant.

CHICAGO GOES WILD OVER ST. PAUL TOUR

Date for Start Fixed and an Attendance of Five Hundred Cars Assured

Word was received last night from B. A. Ledy, secretary of the automobile club of St. Paul, that the general plan submitted by him to the directors of the Windy city club had met with approval and that Chicago was enthusiastic over the prospects of the big road tour which will be held in July. The meeting yesterday at Chicago selected July 7 as the most appropriate day upon which to begin the run to St. Paul. When the result of the conference was announced in the club Mr. Ledy was given an ovation and assured him that the delegation of machines from Chicago alone would be at least 500.

If this is so the road tour will be a greater success than even Mr. Ledy thought it would be when he took the preliminary steps at the suggestion of the St. Paul organization to secure the big run. He figures that if 500 machines come from Chicago that another hundred points east will start from Chicago with the local autos. With 200 from the northern section and 150 from the west and at least 200 from the south and southwest he is assured of more than 200 cars from outside of the Twin Cities in the big parade in St. Paul.

It was announced after the meeting that John E. Fry and Robert W. Spangler, officers of the Chicago Automobile club, and N. H. Van Sickle and E. Ralph Estep, owner and editor of the Motor Age, respectively, will start on a preliminary tour of the Chicago-St. Paul route May 4. They will use a 40 horsepower car and during their stay in St. Paul will be the guests of the St. Paul club.

GAS COMPANY CANNOT COLLECT FROM COMFORT

Motion to Force Plaintiff to Pay Current Charges Denied by Judge Lewis

Judge Lewis yesterday denied the motion of the defendant in the case of H. M. Comfort against the St. Paul Gas Light company and the Edison Electric Light company, to amend the findings in the case so as to order the payment to the defendant of $131.88.

Comfort, who lives at 132 Smith avenue north, fitted up a telegraph outfit in his home and bought current from the defendants. They alleged that he violated the contract in supplying other persons with the current, and stopped the service.

Comfort brought three separate suits against the companies which were settled out of court by the payment of $50 attorney's fees to the plaintiff, and the service reinstated.

Later the company alleged that Comfort again violated the contract and discontinued and Comfort again brought suit and mandamus proceedings against the company. The court found that the plaintiff had violated the contract and brought in a verdict for the defendant.

The defendant then entered a motion to amend the findings so as to include $131.88 alleged due for current, but the court denied the motion yesterday in filing the order.

Transfer of Church Property

Judge Brill yesterday filed an order setting May 27 as the date for the hearing of the petition to transfer the ownership of certain real estate belonging to the Second Episcopal church, of the Methodist Episcopal church, to the German M. E. church, having ceased business in 1897, after twenty-one years of existence. The petition filed by Herman E. Young, director of the society, requests that the property be turned over to the North German congregation of the German M. E. church. Since 1897 a meeting of the board of directors of the society was held annually to maintain the organization legally, to evade the payment of taxes, and to obtain advantage of the law which treats church property as for religious purposes from taxation.

WINNERS IN THE GLOBE'S PROVERB CONTESTS TELL HOW THEY LANDED THE FIRST MONEY

FRANK M'KERNAN

That the two St. Paul men winning two-thirds of the total of the first prize money in The Globe's proverb contest should be employed by the same company in this city is remarkable.

More striking still is the fact that the two men working under the same roof for five years, have not a speaking acquaintance.

The men are utter strangers and their success in solving the proverbs of The Globe's famous contest is independent of each other.

Frank McKernan, 224 Virginia avenue, is a proofer for the West Publishing company. H. B. Skillman, 23 Nelson avenue, is a law editor in the service of the West company.

Mr. McKernan has been in the employ of the company for the past eleven years as proofer. He is a graduate of a high school and later of a law college. He lives with a devoted mother, who has a just pride in the success of her son in furnishing forty-five correct answers to the fifty proverbs offered by The Globe for correct solution.

Mr. Skillman is a graduate of the class of '98, University of Michigan law school, Ann Arbor. He came to St. Paul five years ago and is married. He confers to a valuable assistance on the part of his wife, a Michigan co-ed, who varied her domestic duties by guessing the correct answers to the proverbs.

Both men are in modest circumstances and The Globe's liberality in awarding $150 to each for two of the three most correct lists of proverbs, in answer to the contest is duly appreciated by the recipients of the money.

Working in an atmosphere that is surcharged with good fellowship between fellow employees, McKernan and Skillman were kept busy yesterday receiving the congratulations of their associates on their good fortune.

How McKernan Won

"I availed myself of the books in the city library," said Mr. McKernan, when asked yesterday what had been his system in guessing so nearly correctly the list of proverbs submitted by The Globe.

Company D of the national guard gave the first ball in the new Armory building last night. It was the twenty-fourth annual formal military ball of the company. The affair is the social occasion of the year for the company.

The hall was appropriately decorated with plants, bunting and flags. The arrangement committee included Corpl. J. E. Thibault, Sergt. C. A. Itner, Sergt. C. W. Albert and Privates R. E. Godfrey, P. J. Daw and F. F. Smith. The reception committee: Capt. H. V. Knocke, master of ceremonies; Lieut. Charles French, Lieut. Martin Early, Sergt. Itner, Sergt. Albert, Corpl. Thibault and Privates Godfrey, Peter, Smith and Krembs.

Light refreshments were served during the evening.

CONTRACTS AWARDED BY PUBLIC WORKS BOARD

P. H. Thornton Will Do the Grading on Thomas Street

The board of public works awarded the contract for grading Thomas street, from Hamline avenue to Snelling avenue, to P. H. Thornton, for $3,728. The city engineer's estimate on the contract was $4,400. Other bids were received as follows: Christ Johnson, $5,400; James Forrester, $4,257.50; C. A. Fleming, $4,195; Neils Larson, $4,504; Thomas Keough, $3,745; Thomas Garrick, $4,990; P. J. Ryan, $5,421; and Newman & Hoy, $4,895.

Bids were opened and taken under consideration for the construction of the following sewers:

River on Arch street, from a point east of the city hall to the intersection of the street; Christ Johnson, $478.42; John Lind, $560; and P. J. Ryan, $537. Engineer's estimate, $430.

Sewer on DeLoe street, from Bidwell to Bellows street; Christ Johnson, $2,480; and John Lind, $2,600. Engineer's estimate, $1,682.

SMALLPOX KILLS TWO DURING THE WEEK

There Are Now Over a Hundred Cases in the State

The past week was productive of much smallpox in the state. The weekly report of Secretary H. M. Bracken of the state board of health shows that there were 105 cases with two deaths.

In Martin county, Nashville township, there were fourteen cases. In Polk county, Croston, there was one death. There were ten cases in Stearns county, Luxemburg township, and in Wright county, Victor township, there were seven cases with one death.

Mrs. Nelson Granted Divorce

Cordelia E. Nelson was yesterday granted a divorce from George O. Nelson, who she married at East Claire, Wis., April 27, 1895, when she was 19 years of age and he 24. In her complaint she alleged that he had mis-treated her for five years and that on one occasion he picked up a pair of scissors and cut off her hair. The children are given into the custody of the father and the mother is allowed to visit them each week.

Two of the Three Successful Contestants Have Worked as Strangers Under the Same Roof in St. Paul for Five Years—Omission of One Little Word Cost Frank McKernan Chance to Lead Men Who Shared With Him—H. B. Skillman Found City Library a Valuable Assistant Globe. "I purchased a number of books advertised in the newspapers as being helpful, but I found that the city library contains which gave me the most light on the subject. 'No, I had no assistance. I had intended to enlist the services of my sister and to send in the list in her name, but because our family moved about the opening of the contest she did not find time to aid me, and the results are my own. I sent in, all told, 180 answers and kept duplicate records of the answers that I filed with the newspaper. Comparison shows that The Globe's record, so far as my answers are concerned, is absolutely correct.

First Mistake

"Where did I fall? Well, I lost out on No. 26. 'By uniting we stand, by dividing we fall.' My answer was 'United we stand, divided we fall.' 'Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel.' I sent in as the answer, 'Patriotism is the last resort of a demagogue.' Then I failed on No. 35, 'A tree is known by its fruit and not by its leaves.' I sent in as the correct answer, 'A tree is known by its fruit, but not by its leaves.' On No. 35, 'All cats are alike gray in the night.' 'All cats are alike gray in the night,' and on the final proverb of the series I failed.

My explanation of the picture was, 'A miss is good as a mile.' The correct reply is 'A miss is as good as a mile.' The omission of that little 'as' cost me just $50. But I have no complaint to make. The contest certainly conducted along honorable lines and I feel very grateful indeed to The Globe for the opportunity to win a share in the distribution of the money. It came in very handsily these times of increased cost of living."

Mr. Skillman's Mistakes

Mr. Skillman failed to guess the correct answers to Nos. 9, 25, 28, 35 and 38 of the series of proverbs. He confesses to having expended some little money in the purchase of proverb books to aid him in the work. "I got away from the idea of asking my friends what the pictures meant early in the contest. Mr. Skillman said yesterday in explaining his success, 'I found that no two agreed and it was left to me to make the final decision in each case anyway. I answered advertisements and purchased proverb books at Toledo and Chicago. These did not give me the assistance I had anticipated, however, and the city library was the source of my deepest inspiration in guessing the correct answers.

"I admit that my wife came to my rescue several times when I was about to despair and give up the contest, and together we kept on to the close of the contest. 'I sent in a total of 212 answers, or 4 1/2 to a proverb, and you may be assured that this meant hard work. I kept a carefully prepared duplicate list of all my answers in the event that there might arise a dispute, but I am happy to say that The Globe's list exactly agrees with my list of the answers I submitted. I have no doubt that one of the most honestly conducted contests ever held in the country.

"In answer to the proverb, the correct answer to which is 'A barking dog never bites,' I submitted three answers, none of which was the correct one. My answers were: 'A barking dog cannot bite,' 'Barking dogs never bite,' 'A barking dog seldom bites.' 'For No. 26, 'By uniting we stand, by dividing we fall,' I submitted two answers. One is the familiar 'United we stand, divided we fall,' and the other is 'In union there is strength.' Close to No. 36

"Replying to No. 28, 'Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel,' I guessed, 'Against the wild fire of the mob there is no defense.' I came close to getting No. 35, omitting the last clause from 'A tree is known by its fruit, and not by its leaves.' For No. 28, 'All cats are gray in the night,' I replied, 'All cats are alike gray in the night,' 'Spelling gray' both with an 'a' and an 'e.' 'This is like spring,' Mr. Skillman said as he sniffed the breeze coming up the river laden with its breath of perfume from the bursting buds on Raspberry island. 'Guess I'll take a few days off, and I plan to go to the country for a few days. My success in the proverb contest will pay the expenses of a few days at the lake.'"

THE ROOM LAW IS DELIVERED FOR TIME

Aldermanic Committee Fails to Report for Lack of Attendance

The Hackney wine room ordinance forbidding women the right to frequent saloons, except under certain specified conditions, failed to receive a favorable report from the committee on streets of the board of aldermen yesterday. This does not mean that the committee is opposed to the ordinance, but that favorable action was not deemed wise because but four members of the committee were present at the meeting, consequently it was referred back to the board of aldermen without recommendation.

Ald. Lynch moved that a favorable report be made. Ald. Bantz stated that there was already a wine room ordinance, and that he did not see the necessity of passing another. The controversy presented at the meeting was next questioned, but Corporation Attorney Michael settled that point by stating that an ordinance even more stringent than the Hackney ordinance which was adopted in Denver, Colo., was declared legal by the supreme court of the United States.

Favors Main Feature

Ald. Hebl, while stating that he favored the ordinance in its main feature, which was for the purpose of keeping a certain class of women from frequenting saloons, suggested that it be amended to simply take in this class. He stated that St. Paul had a large German population, and that they should be protected by any law from enjoying their ordinary recreations. Mr. Michael said that such a classification would be special legislation and would be unconstitutional. He also stated that a woman that thought anything of her reputation would not enter a saloon for a glass of beer unless accompanied by her husband or father, and that in terms of this ordinance made exceptions of such cases. Mr. Morgan also said that the ordinance would not affect a start on the saloons in the city, and these were places he declared to be a disgrace to St. Paul.

Considered Unnecessary

Certain aldermen have intimated that they did not consider such an ordinance necessary, or that all the saloons in the city should be punished for the misdeeds of a few. In speaking of the matter yesterday one alderman pointed out what he considered the proper manner to handle the matter. He stated that the ordinance was not necessary, as it was a matter of disorderly conduct on the part of the saloon keeper who permits these things to be done. He stated that the common council, said this alderman, has the power to grant and revoke saloon licenses.

There is a small number of saloon keepers who encourage this sort of trade, and they have made their places a menace to morality and an added burden on the police department. I have no doubt that the recommendation for a revocation of their saloon licenses, made by the proper official, would reach the common council, and that these saloons would be immediately put out of business."

SHOW SCORES A HIT

Knights of Pythias Entertainment Wins the Audience

Amateur and mediocre are not always synonymous adjectives in describing theatrical efforts. This fact was promptly attested by the good sized audience that greeted the initial performance of the musical comedy, "The Rough Mr. Rider," which was presented at Mozart hall last evening by St. Paul Lodge No. 2 Knights of Pythias.

A rollicking comedy filled with many good songs was shown to good advantage by the charmingly successful male chorus, handsomely gowned and an adequate male cast.

Dr. John Daven as The Rough Mr. Rider, the bogan hero, was, through the many humorous complications in which he was placed by the stories he told of San Juan Hill, obliged to confess that he was never there.

The Gam Shoe Man, as sung by Mr. L. Le Clair, and chorus of little girls, the Hebrew parodies by Morey Abrams, and the dialogue, singing and dancing of the chorus, were enthusiastically enjoyed.

The singing of Mrs. A. P. Herschler, in the "Bole Man," with a chorus of girls, and Miss Violet King of "Violet Was a Maiden Fair," accompanied by six young men in chorus, made decided hits.

The performance will be repeated Friday and Saturday evening and Saturday matinee.

AGED MAN IS RUN DOWN BY WHEELMAN

Morris Kanovsky Is A Rested, Charged With Violating Bicycle Ordinance

Joseph Bergfeld, an aged man living at 298 Elm street, was knocked down and painfully injured yesterday evening by Morris Kanovsky, a bicyclist. Kanovsky, it is said, was scorching down East Fourth street and collided with Bergfeld at Minnesota street. Bergfeld was taken to a nearby store and after having his wounds, which consisted of scratches and bruises, dressed, was taken home in a buggy.

Kanovsky was locked up at the central station, charged with violating the bicycle ordinance.

STREETS VACATED FOR CEMETERY PURPOSES

Petition of German Lutheran Association Favored by Council Committee

The petition of the German Lutheran Cemetery association for the vacation of portions of Mackubin, Kent and Idaho streets for cemetery purposes, was favorably reported on by the committee on streets of the common council. Ald. Lynch opposed the vacation of these streets. It was stated by a member of the association that the part of Kent street which was asked to be vacated had been used for a long time for cemetery purposes, and that there were at the present time many graves there.

DRAINAGE CAMPAIGN WILL START TODAY

Commission Will Begin Work Under the New State Law

When the state drainage commission meets this afternoon at the governor's office, steps will be taken to carry out the provisions of the Cole law, by which a comprehensive system of state drainage is to be planned. Millions of acres of state swamp land in northern Minnesota will eventually be reclaimed and made a valuable asset of the state.

By the terms of the Cole law, the state drainage commission, consisting of the governor, state auditor and secretary of state, is to make a commission to devise a plan for the reclamation of the state lands. The general purpose is to merge all drains and ditches into one system whereby state swamp lands will be forever reclaimed.

The Cole law carries an appropriation of $7,500 a year for the next two years for making a topographical survey. George A. Ralph, state drainage engineer, who naturally expects to be made the engineer to draw plans for the system contemplated by the new law, says that the appropriation is not large enough, but it will suffice to give the commission an opportunity to make a start on the work and to have it in a condition where it will commend itself to the attention of the next legislature. For the general purpose of state drainage, the legislature appropriated $30,000 a year for the past two years. An increase in the appropriation from two years ago of $10,000 a year. The commission will operate under a new drainage law, passed by the legislature in 1905, and which is said by experts to be the best law governing state drainage yet put upon the statute books of the state. An idea of the magnitude of the work to be done is gained by the statement that in Roseau county alone there are 150,000 acres of swamp land which may be transformed into good meadows and fertile fields by drainage.

The commission is composed of the governor, the secretary of state and the auditor. They will have general oversight of the work. At the meeting today it is anticipated that an engineer will be employed to secure preliminary plans for establishing the system. An informal meeting of the commission was held in Gov. Johnson's office yesterday afternoon.

RARE BOOK BOUGHT

Historical Society Buys Old Volume of Western Adventure

The State Historical society has just purchased a rare book which was published in 1831 and deals with travels and scenes west of the Mississippi river at that time. It is written by William J. Snelling, under the pen name of John S. Bell. He was a son of Col. Josiah Snelling, after whom the fort was named.

The book is evidently one of a series of adventures and travels. While the records of the society do not show so much concerning the author as his two brothers, it is evidently because he was a rover and a world wide traveler. Clark tells of the journey of Lieut. Z. M. Pike up the Mississippi river. The author mentions that he was in the battle of Tippecanoe.

The size of the present day edition is short stories, which would be called "pocket size." Its reading matter is largely in the form of anecdotes. There are some quaint illustrations. The curio dealers had a price of $15 on the book, but allowed the society to take it for $13.50.

The general nature of the country, the Indians and the animals and products are dealt with. Much of it is devoted to a gossip account of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Another chapter tells of the journey of Lieut. Z. M. Pike up the Mississippi river. The author mentions that he was in the battle of Tippecanoe.

VETERAN ALASKAN SAYS YEAR'S CLEANUP IS LARGE

The winter's cleanup of gold in the Nome district has been the largest for the past winter in the history of the Alaskan gold fields, according to Capt. S. E. Lewis of Nome, who is at the Ryan hotel on his way back to Nome from a business trip to New York.

Capt. Lewis was the owner of the steamship Pioneer, which achieved fame in the pioneer days of the Alaskan excitement, and which later was lost at sea. He has retired from the steamship business and is now engaged in the railroad and mining enterprises with headquarters at Nome. Capt. Lewis has a number of old friends among St. Paul business men and his quarters at the Ryan hotel were a rendezvous for St. Paul friends.

"The gold output of the district during last winter broke all records," Capt. Lewis says, "and reliable estimates place the money value of the gold taken out of the frozen ground at $2,000,000. The gold is taken out with blast, pick and shovel and is washed from the dirt as soon as the snows melt and water is available for sluicing. The work of separating the gold from the dirt has already commenced. The probability of getting water to the alluvial gravel beds is being solved by digging great ditches, and several millions of eastern capital will be invested this season in developing these ditches.

The Miocene ditch, fifty-six miles in length and the Solomon river and Giffen ditches are long enough to be known all over Alaska. It is known that there is gold in abundance in the gravel in these gravel beds, but water is absolutely necessary to their being worked to insure results.

The boners who flooded the Nome country at the first discovery of gold have left and the men who are now there are industrious, sober miners who are working intelligently to get the best result from their labors. Nome has settled down to a prosperous mining camp, with business being done on a business basis. Capital is being invested from the states and it is expected that the active mining season, to open June 1, will be the most successful in the history of the new country. The harbor at Nome will open June 1, and the steamers leaving Seattle for Nome will be crowded to their capacity. Possibly all their available passenger space has been taken before this. The fare is $10, but men who have spent the winter in the states are anxious to get back to their labors and the place where they have their money invested."

Capt. Lewis, who is interested in the Council City & Solomon River railroad, running sixty miles into the interior from Nome, is confident that the national government will give Alaska a home rule government as soon as the Alaskans determine what they want. He says that opinion as to what is best is widely divided, and that Congress cannot be expected to determine what to do for the Alaskans until they themselves agree as to what they want.

DATE FOR TRIAL OF GOTTSCHALK IS FIXED

Attorney for Suspect and County Attorney Will Have Case Called May 8

Stan Donnelly, attorney for Edward Gottschalk, and County Attorney Kane have agreed upon Monday, May 8, as the date for the trial of the murder suspect. Unless unforeseen incidents arise the trial will be set for that date when the calendar is called on Monday.

Donnelly was undoubtedly proceeded against the alleged murderer under the indictment charging him with the murder of Herman, as it is contended by the police that they have a stronger case against Gottschalk on that ground than was the case against Christian Schindler, the Seventh street butcher.

MICHAEL BLOCKS PLANS OF COUNCIL

Sibley Street Will Not Be Improved Unless Money Is Advanced

The preliminary order for the widening of Sibley street was factually reported back to the board of aldermen by the committee on streets yesterday.

This cannot be taken to indicate that the work for this improvement will be taken up at once, as Corporation Attorney Michael informed the committee that the final order could not be made until funds for that purpose were available.

It was the understanding when the common council appropriated the $30,000 given by the street railway company for the building of a pavilion on Como, that an equal sum should be placed in the annual tax budget to be used on Sibley street. It was stated at that time that the widening of Sibley would not be delayed thereby, but that it would be possible to anticipate the money to be raised next year by taxation, and complete the improvement this year.

According to the opinion of the corporation attorney this will be impossible unless some one is willing to advance the money to secure his pay from next year's taxes.

Ald. Hebl stated that he understood that the Union Depot company had offered to loan the council the necessary funds so that work could commence at once. He had no exact information on the subject.

It is considered probable that with the passage of the preliminary order for widening Sibley street that certain interests will offer to loan the money, and that the improvement will actually be made this year.

GETS BIG VERDICT

Railway Mail Clerk Wins Damage Suit Against Soo

A sealed verdict of $7,500 was brought in by a jury in Judge Hallam's court yesterday morning in favor of the plaintiff in the suit of Frank B. McCord, a railway mail clerk, against the St. Paul & Northern Pacific railway company.

McCord was injured by a wreck on the Soo line, when a wreck occurred at Bulwer Junction, Minn., Dec. 31, 1904. He was extricated from the debris with difficulty and sent to St. Barnabas hospital in Minneapolis, from whence he emerged shortly after in apparently good health. About a week after his discharge he began to complain of pain in head and spine and slowly became a physical wreck. He is 23 years of age.

Dr. Sweeney and Ohage, who testified in the case Wednesday, stated that they could find no organic ailment in McCord's case, and that the necessity of mental shock. Dr. Sweeney suggested a change of climate and a complete rest for several weeks at a quiet place. McCord fainted away once while the trial was on and court was suspended until medical assistance could be secured.

The Soo road has given notice of appeal and a stay of thirty days was granted by the court.

Another case in which the plaintiff, Arthur B. McKim, was injured in the same accident while working by the side of McCord, is being tried in the district court. McKim was also a mail clerk and sued for $30,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received.

JUDGE LEWIS REJECTS TAX SALE OF PROPERTY

Judge Lewis yesterday filed an order in the circuit court in which he held that the judgment sale through which Ashley Coffman secured lots 14 and 18, in block 4, Elmer and Morrissons neighborhoods, a part of Manchester Park, was not legal in that the announcement of the proposed sale was only published once. The ownership of the property is held to be invested in the defendant, the Reserve Loan, Investment and Improvement company.

The same is held in the case of Coffman against Thomas Cochran, in which lot 4 of block 8 of the same locality is concerned.
