PASTOR TO BE A CANDIDATE

How a Barber, Jeweler and Telegrapher Seeks to Be Electman in Nantucket.

Nantucket, Mass.—G. A. Bryant, once pastor of the Baptist church here, now a humble barber, whose romantic marriage to Miss Annie Landy, of Revere, with its subsequent exposure of his checkered past, unfrocked him as a clergyman a year ago, has given staid Nantucket another shock by announcing himself a candidate for selectman. There are nine candidates, from whom a board of five is to be chosen, and Mr. Bryant's name is placed on the lists.

Mr. Bryant has the cut of a college student. He is young and distinguished appearing. The political aspirations of this young man revive escapades that have gone to make an odd career. He was born in Iowa and graduated from the Moody Bible institute. Before his expulsion from the church he preached in several Boston pulpits. Besides studying for the ministry, he learned telegraphy, watchmaking and jewelry repairing.

Unfortunately for Mr. Bryant, the local newspaper at Waterloo, Ia., where he filled a pulpit before turning up in the east, came across the notice of his marriage to the Revere girl. Correspondence followed, and the letters were made public. They told how Bryant had been deposed as pastor of the church in Iowa and his name canceled from the church register, and charged that he had been twice married. It ended in Bryant leaving Nantucket.

Later he returned and opened a barber shop not far from the church where he had preached. There is one barber's chair in it, a jeweler's bench at one of the windows and in the other a limited array of cheap jewelry. In the corner is a telegraph instrument. He has also entered a bid for the position of island carpenter. He has one child and an increasing number of customers.
