24 Post Cards Free.

Here is an opportunity for anyone to obtain 24 handsomely colored souvenir post cards for nothing and get his choice of three different kinds, namely: 24 comic cards, 24 flower cards and a set of 24 cards entitled "Language of the Flowers." In each one of these sets there are 24 highly colored, souvenir post cards. All you have to do to obtain them is to send 25c for a year's subscription to the Kansas City Weekly Journal and tell them which set you want. Upon receipt of your subscription for the Kansas City Weekly Journal—the greatest newspaper of the southwest—you will be sent absolutely free the 24 post cards which you select. Be sure to specify whether you want the 24 comic cards, the 24 flower cards or the 24 language of the flowers cards. We know that you will be highly pleased with these post cards. The comic cards are very "funny"; the flower cards consist of the principal flowers and are all in beautiful colors; the "Language of the Flowers" cards are all in beautiful colors and have verses and mottoes which give you the sentiment of the flowers.

Remember for the small sum of 25c you receive the Kansas City Weekly Journal for a full year and get your choice of any one of the sets of post cards. Send 25c and address

The Kansas City Weekly Journal,
Kansas City, Mo.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

A "Hot" Election at Sheldon.

While Jasper's city election was devoid of any particular interest or excitement, not all of our neighboring towns were so blessed. Sheldon, with three candidates for mayor and four for city marshal had a tooth and toe nail campaign of it for several days prior to the election and there was as much bad blood, according to report, as in the days of the free silver excitement. The chief cause of the contention seems to have been the question of letting the Bell telephone company into the city on equal terms with the home company, with whom there was much dissatisfaction. The outcome of the election seems to favor the Bell people, and as a result Sheldon instead of having one phone company and poor service will probably have two companies and no service at all. That's usually the outcome of such scrapes as that.

Another Fire at Lamar.

Lamar had another disastrous fire on Monday of last week. This time it was the glove factory on North Broadway. The fire apparently had its origin in a poker room in the second story and was not checked until the upper half of the big building was entirely consumed. Rube Lucas, the cigar maker, was hard hit, losing perhaps a thousand dollars worth of tobacco. The glove factory lost a large part of its equipment, but there was insurance sufficient to nearly cover the loss. The fire boys, laboring heroically under disadvantages that would have discouraged "quitters," finally got the fire under control.

What will the population of Missouri be, when the census taker makes his report? The last time it was something over three millions. Many people believe this time it will, says Arthur Aull of the Lamar Democrat, be four millions, but they'll have a big surprise coming, when they see the figures. Our gain will be small. The agricultural portion of the state which represents two thirds, or at least over half of the population, like every other agricultural region in the country, hasn't increased in population, if indeed it has held its own. The increase in the population of St. Louis and Kansas City is about all that will send us ahead of the figures of ten, or rather nine, years ago. We've sent hundreds of thousands of citizens to Oklahoma, Texas and the territories, to say nothing of the great region to the northwest. True, we have imported thousands from Iowa and Illinois, but not as many as we have sent away. No agricultural states, save perhaps Oklahoma, Texas, and Nebraska will show any great increase in population. Texas, when the next census is completed, is almost sure to have Missouri's place as the fifth state in the union.

Col. Beamer Still Digging.

Col. D. A. Beamer informs us that when the big drill gets down fifteen hundred feet he will stop for perhaps a couple of weeks and put in the casing in order to preserve the hole. Then he will start up again. The school of mines will examine the rest of the cuttings and he will have the whole thing published, showing what lies beneath our feet, for the first fifteen hundred feet.—Lamar Democrat.

Treed Eleven Billy-'Possums.

Since Taft's inauguration 'possum stories are all the rage and some of 'em are corkers, but this one, which F. W. Rumble does row and yam is whole cloth, beats anything we've heard yet. Monday night Mr. Rumble heard his dog, "Hobo," exclaiming with unusual violence out in the orchard and on his own himself thenceward discovered the dog had no less than eleven 'possums or 'possi, or whatever the plural of 'possum is, up one tree. Mr. Rumble got a firm grip on the tail of the nearest 'possum and yanked everyone of the eleven out out of the tree at one fell yank. This remarkable statement becomes more easily digestible when it is explained that one of the 'possums, an old female, was carrying the other ten in her "pocket." With the exception of the old man, "Hobo" had evidently treed the whole family.

Ralph Boucher went to Kansas City Monday to take the government mail clerk examination, after which he goes to join his parents at Fowler, Kans., until he hears from the examination. Frank Crow is in Ralph's place at Wolf's.

NEWS COMMENT

What's the use, we'd like to know, of electing a new president if the cartoonists persist in sticking to the old one in this manner?

At any rate the chap that concocted the new tariff has settled the question of who is the champion idiot of the universe. We were about to hand the palm to Chief Crazy Soaks.

Still ten days left in which to take that farewell 2 cent a-mile ride. No hurry.

Thank goodness, before the new tariff on socks can possibly be in operation it will be warm enough to go barefooted.

That is to say, unless the "dope" is wrong "Lil Abthub" Johnson's white wife will shortly distinguish the difference between being married to the world's champion pugilist and being married to just a common ordinary nigger.

Raising the Calf on Skim Milk.

There was a time when the typical Missouri farmer laughed at the idea of raising calves in any other than the natural way. However, recently the high price of land has made it impossible for any profit to be made raising calves in the good old way. Farmers who have figured carefully on this proposition have concluded that when land gets above $50 an acre it becomes impossible to keep a cow for the chance of a calf. Ten years ago there were but few farmers paying any attention to the sale of milk and cream. Now there are fully 30,000 in Missouri that are counting on this as a part of their income. These farmers are mostly selling cream for buttermaking purposes, and raising the calf by hand. There was a time when it was thought that a calf raised on skim milk must necessarily be stunted in size, unthrifty in appearance and one that a respectable farmer would not wish to have on his place. It is well understood now by most farmers that are selling cream that such calves are entirely unnecessary and in fact are not caused by feeding of skim milk, but from carelessness and ignorance regarding proper methods of feeding.

The man who proposes to raise calves on skim milk must, first of all, get the idea out of his mind that such calves are necessarily unthrifty. He must not be satisfied with his work until he is able to raise a calf in this manner that is good as one raised by its mother. The feeding of the calf by hand should begin at least within three days after its birth. Some prefer to take the calf away from its mother before it has nursed and begin feeding by hand at once. Others prefer to leave the calf with the cow from two to four days. They should not be allowed to run longer than that on account of the fact that the older the calf is, the harder it is to teach it to drink from a bucket, and the more the mother is disturbed when it is removed. The calf should be placed out of the sight of the mother and allowed to pass over one feeding period before an attempt is made to teach it to drink. It is practically useless to attempt to get a calf to drink unless it is hungry. No special difficulty is experienced in getting the calf to drink from a pail. The usual method is to allow the calf to suck the finger for a short time until it will keep its nose in the pail itself. The milk fed should be fresh milk from the mother fed before it has time to cool. The calf need not be fed more than twice a day, although it is somewhat better if convenient to feed it three times. The feeding of the mother's milk should be continued for about two weeks time, feeding not over three quarts at a feed or possibly a gallon each feed to a large calf. At the end of about two weeks, the calf is ready to begin the feeding of skim milk. It is best to make the change from the whole milk to skim milk gradually, using several days for this purpose. At the end of three weeks the calf should be receiving nothing but skim milk. It is very important that this skim milk be fresh, sweet and warm. The young calf is a delicate animal for the first two or three months of its life and special attention must be given to keeping the conditions just right during this time. There is no difficulty in raising the calf with perfect satisfaction, if the necessary precautions are observed. It will not do to think that feeding sour milk or cold milk or over-feeding will not be injurious, if it is only done once. A single mistake of this kind may cause the death of the calf.

Other points regarding this subject will be included in future articles. C. H. Eckles, Agricultural College & Experiment Station, Columbia, Missouri.
