The millinery opening at the Vogue Hat Shop Friday and Saturday was quite an event, the crowd probably among the largest and the goods shown as handsome or handsomer than ever before. The fall styles in hats seem to have more of the saving grace of beauty about them than any new styles for many seasons past. The "Vogue" was very handsomely decorated and there was music during both days of the opening. Miss Hendricks also reports a brisk sale both days, showing that the new shapes are "catching on" early.

A. W. Cassidy has been buying goods in Kansas City this week.
