Selection of Dairy Breed.

Beginners in dairying are constantly asking which is the best dairy breed. We cannot answer this question in a general way. Under certain specific circumstances one breed might be preferred to another. There is a type of cow which is especially adapted to dairy production. This type is found in all dairy breeds, and is even found among common cows of mixed breeding. Such cows, however, are not so apt to transmit their own good producing qualities as is the cow pure in breeding or graded along a certain definite line.

Without doubt, some breeds are better adapted to certain conditions than are others. This should be given careful thought before definitely selecting a breed. Personal inclination also has a bearing on the question. The man who has a special liking for the Jersey breed is not apt to succeed so well with Holsteins as with his favorite breed. This is really a most important consideration in selecting a breed. Choose the one that appeals to you, and then strive to develop the best in that breed.

A dairyman recently made the confession that the reason he sold out one breed and took up another was because his son had taken a great liking to the new breed and did not seem disposed to take much interest in the farm until the plan of changing to his chosen breed was suggested. The boy has now entered enthusiastically into the work of the farm because he is developing the breed he really likes.

Breed associations are always ready to furnish literature setting forth the advantages of their respective breeds, and by studying this and following his own inclinations the beginner should be able to make a wise choice. When a community is developing some one breed, the beginner will always find it to his advantage to fall in line with what the rest are doing. Usually when a whole community settles upon a breed, it has been found that it is well adapted to the existing conditions. Many opportunities are presented as a result of this community interest in a single breed. One should weigh the matter very carefully before deciding to take up a different breed than is being handled by the majority of his neighbors.—Kansas Farmer.

Make Hay While the Sun Shines

Better make hay while the sun is shining, but plant corn whenever the ground is in condition. You cannot afford to wait for your neighbor to get through with his planter. We have the best planter on the market—the Sattley New Way—and now is the time to use it. Frank Crabtree was in and bought one this week and quite a number are buying Swift's Fertilizers for they know it pays to fertilize corn. We carry it in stock ready to load at your command. We have a few cultivators at bargain prices and the Hercules Buggy is still our leader. Come see.

A Tale of the Trail.

This life's a middlin' crooked trail, and after forty year
Of knockin' round I'm free to say the right ain't always clear.
I've seen a lot of folks go wrong—got off th' main high road
An' fetch up in a swamp somewhere, almost before they knowed.
I don't set up to be no judge of right and wrong in men,
I ain't been perfect all my life an' may not be again;
An' when I see a chap who looks as though he's gone astray,
I want to think he started right, an' only lost his way.
I like to think the good in folks by far outweighs the ill;
Th' trail of life is middlin' hard an' lots of it uphill;
There's places where there ain't no guides or signposts up an' so
It's partly guesswork and part luck which way you chance to go.
I've seen the trails fork some myself, an' when I had to choose
I wasn't sure when I struck out if it was win or lose;
But I chose the guide board that led to Crandall Bros., and found them to be the most jolly and clever fellows I have met for some time. They set me right and sold me some good things to eat. I can sure recommend

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
