GREAT PLACE FOR SAILORS.

Philadelphia's Contribution to Uncle Sam's Navy.

Though only established in its present location since Jan. 15, the naval recruiting office in Philadelphia has already become the foremost one of its kind in the United States, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. So successful has it been that it is all probability it will be made permanent and will be expected to furnish a large part of the new material for the United States navy as the battleships now under construction are placed in service. The station is in charge of Lieutenant-Commander Charles Laird, U. S. N. During the first five weeks the office was opened for recruiting, from Jan. 15 to Feb. 23, there were over 400 applicants. Of these 311 passed the examination and are now ready to be mustered into service. All of the new men are native born and are of a character superior to the recruits from the offices in other cities. There are over 3,000 vacancies in the naval service at present, and this number will be materially increased before the session of congress is ended, as provision must be made for several men-of-war to be named within a year. The recently enrolled men will join the ranks as landsmen, the lowest grade of the seamen's branch. They are chiefly laborers, farmers, mechanics and clerks, who enter the service at the pay of $16 per month and rations. Special efforts are being made to elevate the naval service throughout, and inducements are now offered so as to make it desirable for a good class of young men to enlist. Preference is given to Americans, who will be given every opportunity for advancement. These recruits may advance to the positions of petty officers, the pay for which is $20 per month, with retirement after thirty years of service at a pension of $40 per month.

A DEPARTED SPIRIT

Attends His Own Funeral and Thanks His Friends.

Of peculiar interest were the funeral services of Gerry Valentine. Mr. Valentine was one of the early settlers of this place, and was more than 80 years old. He was an ardent Spiritualist, and when he died he left directions for his funeral, which were intended to be a practical demonstration of his belief. The services were held in the Universalist church. The preacher was Samuel Wheeler, a noted Spiritualist of Philadelphia, and he chose "The Rainbow Bridge" as his subject. Then the meeting was given over into the hands of Mrs. Minnie Brown, a clairvoyant from Philadelphia. Immediately after Mrs. Brown had taken her position several raps were heard. "Our brother has a message for Cyrus F. Osgood," said the medium. "He wishes to thank Mr. Osgood and the others for their care in carrying out his wishes in regard to his funeral ceremonies." Mrs. Brown then gave the information that Mr. Valentine was not alone, but that J. O. Ransome, Mr. Parkhurst and Mr. Wyatt, former friends of the dead man, had accompanied him on his "life journey in the world." Several other shades of departed Spiritualists had come with them. They reported that they had made things homelike for Mr. Valentine, and gave messages to the friends of the latter which were intended to cheer and comfort them. The announcements were hailed by the many Spiritualists in the audience with pleasure, and after a few more congratulatory raps Mr. Valentine's spirit and its companions rapped "Adieu."—Hammantion (N. ON HIS DIGNITY.

A Man Who Was Beneath Editorial Notice.

Just after we went to press last week, and while on our way to Abraham White's grocery, we met Dan Williams, who owns the livery stable on Violet street. Mr. Williams did not return our bow of recognition, but advancing upon us in a threatening manner, said: "Mr. Colwell, you owe me two dollars, and you either hand over or I will take it out of your hide!" "Mr. Williams," we kindly replied, though much astonished at his abruptness, "we know we owe you two dollars, but we cannot pay it at present. As soon as the money comes in on subscript, in you shall have it." This was the best we could do, but so far from letting the matter drop he knocked our hat into the middle of the street. Then he knocked us after the hat. Then he kicked us and called us names. We did not fight back. Our editorial dignity was at stake, and we maintained it. Even when Mr. Williams hit us in the back with an old tin can we did not turn to bandy words with him. We think that an editor should maintain his dignity at all times and under all circumstances, and our wife is highly pleased at our conduct in the affair mentioned. Mr. Williams is beneath our notice. He may kick us again and again, but it will only be to strengthen the feeling of public sympathy toward us.—Clymer Independent.

WEEKLY FAREWELL.

One simply can't find anything more delicate and fetching than the butterfly parasol. A beauty which a lucky belle will carry it of silk with four exquisite butterflies embroidered on every other gore. And such butterflies as they were! Lovely, large creatures, embroidered in more pastel tints than one dreamed existed, and seemingly ready to take flight at the faintest move. But they can't. They must continue to adorn Beauty's sunshade.

Political fever has attacked some of our people in severe form. Before these items are in type, each candidate will have met his doom and the political issues of the nation decided. Though the votes may not be counted satisfactory to each of us, let us remember there is a just God who presides over the destinies of man and that each of us are candidates for the same heavenly place and some day our votes shall be counted.
