The customary rate of passenger fares on railroads, except in sparsely settled country, is three cents a mile. The population of the Indian Territory, during the past few years, has grown rapidly; there has been a large increase in passenger traffic on this account and the Katy officials, recognizing the wants of the people and the justice of so doing, have voluntarily arranged to reduce the local passenger rate to a basis of three cents a mile. This reduction will take place on or about November 1st. There will be great rejoicing among the residents along the line of the M. K. & T.

A story is told of a certain well known politician in this county who had up $250 on the election of a certain candidate. The politician got a tip from Montgomery City that the candidate would have a majority of 100 less than the bet was made on, so he went to the man that he had bet with and said "let's call the bet off. Can't Eat Buckeyes.

The scientist have announced that the buckeye is not good to eat. Every boy who grew to manhood for the last thousand years knew that the buckeye would give him or her the bilious staggers and as an article of diet it would not do. An unknown writer speaking of boys, professors, buckeyes and poison says:

Boys browse too much in wood and field to need such tardy decisions from the department of agriculture. They know a hundred things to eat, and they know all poisons. Watch a boy on a short walk, one of those country meanderings which have no hint of haste. Poison ivy he gives a wide berth, but the tender leaf of "bread and butter" he crushes in his white teeth; stramonium-jimson weed—he scourges with a stick, while sassafras is devoured with a Nebuchadnezzar relish, and birch twigs are persistently nibbled; partridge berries and bunchberries he seizes in their flavory scarlet, but the exquisite red wax of the hemlock berry he shuns as Socrates would have done had his fate been optional; mint of the brookside, pennyroyal of the arid hillside, sorrel, both red and of oxalis brand—with all these dainty herbs he pleases his palate, avoiding meanwhile with the instinct of an animal every injurious leaf.

Now, what can the scientist of the department of agriculture expect from boys concerning their learned official decision? Scoffing and the laughter of derision throughout Boyville. Let the learned professors put a boy in the chair and they will arrive quicker at their decisions concerning wild wood edibles and poisons, and, moreover, they will hasten to publish to the world the fact of their previous ignorance.

Levi Wells joins the new TRIBUNE readers this week. The election of McKelvey made him feel so well that he could not do without the newest paper on earth.

Dr. L. Nutter, of Middletown, while a mighty good veterinarian, is also a good republican. He says "send the TRIBUNE along I know it is a good paper."

Uncle Will Clare put a dollar in our hands and instructed us to send him the TRIBUNE a year. If all the old guard and the young'ns take the TRIBUNE this year, we'll carry the county dead sure in 1902. Let the good work go on.

Do not get scared if your heart troubles you. Most likely you suffer from indigestion. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and gives the worn out stomach perfect rest. It is the only preparation known that completely digests all classes of food; that is why it cures the worst cases of indigestion and stomach trouble after everything else has failed. It may be taken in all conditions and cannot help but do you good. City Drug Store.

A touching and in spirit incident is reported of the election at Cawker City. At the age of 88, Uncle Jimmy Larkin, a survivor of the civil war, who has voted a straight Whig or Republican ticket since the days of William Henry Harrison, is an invalid and confined to his home. On election day the local Grand Army went in a body to Uncle Jimmy's home and carried him in a chair draped in flags to the voting place, the procession being headed by color-bearers and a drum corps. It probably will be the last vote for the old man and he had worried greatly for fear he couldn't cast it.

While Assistant Secretary of War McKelvey was traveling toward Clarks, Nebraska, after having made a political speech in another town, a cloudburst covered the whole valley through which he was passing. He and his driver had only three matches, two of which were blown out by the gale. Mr. McKelvey thereupon took from his grip a nightshirt which he wound around the butt of a whip. This he covered with vasoline, a product of petroleum, and set it on fire. The flames showed a torrent of water just in front. Had he and his driver gone fifty feet farther they would have been carried into a gulch and swept out to the river.
